RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. BLAIR.

RESOLUTION No. 15.

In the House of Representatives, February 16, 1953.

Pursuant to the act of June 1, 1945 (P. L. 1340) known as the Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act, the Secretary of Revenue is given broad powers to suspend operating privileges of persons involved in motor vehicle accidents.

Under certain circumstances as set forth in sections four and five of this law, the Secretary of Revenue has authority to suspend the operating privilege pending the securing of a release from liability, and this applies whether or not the particular accident results in any litigation or in a judgment.

Inasmuch as this law relates primarily to financial responsibility for damages in civil suits arising from motor vehicle accidents rather than to an exercise of the police power of the State to protect the public safety, broad powers of the Secretary of Revenue to suspend operating privileges may seriously be questioned; now therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Representatives, That the Joint State Government Commission shall study the Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act with a view toward preventing the arbitrary and unnecessary suspension of the operating privilege when no litigation or judgment is involved or when such suspension is otherwise without the scope of the act, and be it further

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission shall report to the next regular session of the General Assembly its findings and recommendations, together with such drafts of legislation, as are necessary to carry the same into effect.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Messrs. SCHMIDT, READINGER, SEYLER and TOLL. (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 16.

In the House of Representatives, February 16, 1953.

Whereas, The McCarran-Walters immigration bill as enacted by Congress over presidential veto contains many inequitable provisions which are of great concern to the fair minded and thinking citizens of this nation; and

Whereas, It is of utmost concern to this nation that a modern immigration system be instituted which reflects the desire of the majority of Americans that many present residents of other areas of the world be admitted to this country on a basis which gives full recognition to the desirability of admitting properly qualified persons to this country without imposition of strict quota limitations to persons from certain areas, and without limitation in regard to their racial or national background; therefore be it

Resolved, (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby memorializes the Congress of the United States to repeal the provisions of the McCarran-Walters Immigration Act; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of each House of the Congress of the United States and to each Senator and Representative from Pennsylvania in the Congress of the United States.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Messrs. THOMPSON, COOPER and EWING.

RESOLUTION No. 17.

In the House of Representatives, February 16, 1953.

Whereas, There are in this Commonwealth fourteen State Teachers Colleges, wherein the enrollment is upwards of eleven thousand students; and

Whereas, There is a great need in Pennsylvania for three thousand more teachers annually; and

Whereas, Many prospective students who would prefer to attend State Teachers Colleges are deterred from so doing because many of the buildings of such institutions are fire and health hazards; now, therefore be it

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission is hereby directed to make, with the aid of engineers and architects which it is hereby authorized to employ, a study of the buildings in relation to fire and health hazards, of all State Teachers Colleges; and be it further

Resolved, That the Commission report its findings and recommendations to the next session of the General Assembly, together with the approximate cost of eliminating such hazards.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. ANDREWS. (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 18.

In the House of Representatives, February 16, 1953.

Whereas, the Constitution of Pennsylvania, Article II, Sections 16 and 17, provides for the manner in which the Commonwealth shall be apportioned into senatorial and representative districts; and

Whereas, the Constitution of Pennsylvania, Article II, Section 18, places a mandatory duty on the General Assembly, after each United States decennial census, to apportion the Commonwealth into senatorial and representative districts agreeable to the provisions of Article II, Sections 16 and 17; and

Whereas, the General Assembly has not so apportioned the Commonwealth after the last United States decennial census in 1950, or since the apportionment under the Act of May 10, 1921, P. L. 449 455, after the United States decennial census of 1920; and

Whereas, the present apportionment of this Commonwealth into senatorial and representative districts is not agreeable to or in conformance with Article II, Sections 16 and 17, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania; and

Whereas, in the 32 years since the last apportionment in 1921, the shift and growth in population in this Commonwealth have raised complex technical and political problems with relation to apportionment under the provisions of the Constitution; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur) that a commission is hereby created which shall consist of ten members who shall be the following persons: The head of the Department of Political Science, or person occupying a similar capacity, of the University of Pittsburgh, the University of Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania State College and Temple University; the president of the League of Women Voters of Pennsylvania; the president of the Pennsylvania Bar Association; two members of the Senate, to be appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate, one from each of the major political parties; and two members of the House of Representatives, to be appointed by the Speaker of the House, one from each of the major political parties. The commission shall organize by electing a chairman, vice-chairman and secretary. The secretary need not be a member of the commission. The members of the commission shall serve without compensation, but shall be reimbursed for all necessary expenses incurred in the discharge of their duties.

It shall be the duty of the commission to study and investigate the present system of apportionment of this Commonwealth into senatorial and representative districts and the present population and its distribution in this Commonwealth, and to recommend in detail a specific reapportionment plan to guide the General Assembly in reapportioning the Commonwealth into senatorial and representative districts in a manner agreeable to the provisions of Article II, Sections 16 and 17, of the Constitution and to the spirit of representative government in Pennsylvania.

The commission shall have the power to employ and fix the compensation of such stenographers and assistants as may be deemed necessary to carry out the work of the commission, but due diligence shall be exercised by the commission to enlist such voluntary assistance as may be available from citizens, research organizations, and other agencies in Pennsylvania or elsewhere, generally recognized as qualified to aid the commission with information or advice. The Legislative Reference Bureau, the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Internal Affairs, and other agencies of the Commonwealth, as well as all local governments within the Commonwealth, shall give the commission, on request, such information and assistance as may be reasonably accessible; and be it Further resolved that the sum of $30,000 is hereby appropriated for the use of the commission created by this resolution.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

PERMISSION TO ADD ADDITIONAL SPONSORS

Mrs. VARALLO asked and obtained unanimous consent to add additional sponsors to a resolution to be introduced by her.

Mr. TOLL asked and obtained unanimous consent to add additional sponsors to a group of bills to be introduced by him.

Mr. McGEE asked and obtained unanimous consent to add additional sponsors to a bill to be introduced by him.

Mr. TAYLOR asked and obtained unanimous consent to add additional sponsors to a bill to be introduced by him.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. JOHNSON asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, yesterday when the Members arrived here they were very pleasantly surprised to find a cigar in their respective mail boxes and it said on the cigar, "Grandfather Gleason," I believe. They conveyed the glad tidings that a grandchild had been born to our good Member from Lycoming, Representative Gleason. So, we want to congratulate this young man on this great achievement.

Personally, I do not smoke cigars and I am sure that the Minority Leader is a pipe smoker, but be that as it may, I enjoyed the token and on behalf of the Members on our side of the House, I certainly want to thank and congratulate Representative Gleason.

I now yield to the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Maxwell.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson, yields to the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Maxwell.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to differ just a little with the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson. I also received in my mail box a round, long brown object wrapped in cellophane. Now he called this a cigar. There is no brand name on it but I really believe that cognomen for this type of whatever you want to call it is "El Ropo."

I understand that my good friend Mr. Gleason made an outlay of approximately $35 or $40 for these so called "El Ropos." If he would only have consulted me I am sure I could have saved him a great deal of money. Because I could have gotten him the finest Manila hemp. I could have bought it by the yard, and he would have saved considerable money. But no doubt he will still save money because he will probably deduct it from his income tax as necessary expenses.

But laying all joking aside, I know that my colleague on the other side of the House is very proud of the fact that he has a new grandson, and I am sure that if this boy grows into the likeness of his charming daughter-in-law and his son, whom it has been my pleasure to have met and to have spent some time with last year; I know that this child in the years to come will be the pride and joy of Mr. Gleason.

I think it would be very appropriate at this time, out of consideration of the fine gesture of Mr. Gleason in giving us these fine cigars, that the House give him a rising vote of thanks. I so move you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I second that motion. The motion was agreed to.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. HEWITT asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I differ from the Majority Leader inasmuch as I do smoke. I smoke a cigar called "El Verso." The cigar that I received in my mailbox—you will notice I did not rise and make this unanimous, I was sitting down when the others rose. I would call the cigar an "El Stinko."

I appreciate the good intentions of the gentleman from Lycoming, the grandparent of this daughter and I do hope that when she grows up, she will not have the strength of that cigar but will be more like the one I smoke—an El Verso.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the new grandpa, the gentleman from Lycoming, Mr. Gleason.

Mr. GLEASON. Mr. Speaker, I want to tell "Sittin' Bull" there that if he cannot smoke them, he can chew them.

You know when I get up before one of these things (indicating microphone) it kind of reminds me of the fellow back home when he went to join the army the last time.

He talked pretty slowly. He went to a recruiting office and he said:

"I - want - to - join - the - army."

Of course, all through his conversation there was that slow talk and the boys at the desk kind of snickered. He kind of looked them over and he said:

"I'll - tell - you - fellows - something—I - can - shoot - a - darned - sight - faster - than - I - can - talk."

So, that is the way I am—I can shoot a little better than I can get up here and shoot off over the microphone.

I want to thank the gentlemen, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Maxwell. Doc Maxwell came up and 'coon hunted with me a year ago and I took him over the mountains a little and I found out he was not so good as his boy was.

But Doc, I want to straighten you on one thing—It was not a boy; it was a girl. I was hoping it would be a boy because we need a tractor driver on the farm soon. Grandpa is getting too old, but it is like the fellow said about prohibition, he said: "It's better than no liquor at all." So, we will accept what we get. I thank everybody.

RESOLUTION

CONDOLENCE

Mrs. COYLE offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration. The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 17, 1953.

Whereas, For those of us who knew Paul C. Lewis, over the years, it seems difficult to realize that he has been called to the Great Beyond; especially is this true for he seemed as strong and hardy as an oak tree on a hill top; and

Whereas, Paul C. Lewis, known affectionately as "Paul" to everyone who knew him, was himself a body of radiant affection and kindness. He was born in Philadelphia on June 20, 1909; educated in the public schools of Philadelphia, was very active in the Democratic Party in Philadelphia and was a member of this House of Representatives from 1936 to 1938. Some years later he entered the vending machine business and became general manager of the industrial division of the Berlo Vending Machine Company. He also served as secretary of the Eagles Football Team. His wife was the former Margaret Rimmel; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the sympathy of the Members of this House of Representatives be extended to the widow of Paul C. Lewis; and be it further

Resolved, That this resolution be entered upon the Journal of the House and that a copy thereof be transmitted by the Chief Clerk to Mrs. Paul C. Lewis, 3419 Midvale Avenue, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

RESOLUTION

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

Messrs. JOHNSON and ANDREWS offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 17, 1953.

We pause today to celebrate the two hundred and twenty-first birthday of the first President of this Nation, to whose prudence, valor, wisdom and sacrifice we owe our liberty and our independence; and to pay tribute to his greatness, to acknowledge his accomplishments and from his life to draw inspiration and help and guidance.

His complete poise—an alliance of coolness and determination with unconquerable energy—was the secret of his many successes.

His willingness to sacrifice position and fortune and life, if necessary, in order to win the freedom and liberty of which he dreamed, coupled with his ability to withstand hardship and privation won for him the love and admiration and respect of the men who made up his army.

These were natural qualities of greatness, fostered, not by books or schools, but by an active life in the outdoors with strong, courageous men and in hazardous undertaking.

It was in 1777 at Valley Forge, that he was put to the most severe test of his courage, his energy, his determination to win, and his willingness to sacrifice.

It was then that his army was prostrated by sickness and rife for mutiny. He was faced with popular apathy, military cabals and the disaffection of the Continental Congress, but his strength of character, his ability to hold the confidence of his soldiers and his courage and endurance combined to maintain the flame of national unity.

In the annals of modern greatness, he stands alone.

Nature made him great and he made himself not only the outstanding citizen of his time, but made his greatness immortal; therefore be it

Resolved, By this House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, that, as we pause in our labors for that Commonwealth and its people, to pay tribute to our first President, we will, from his life, draw inspiration to make our work and our lives and our willingness to sacrifice more closely resemble his, and that as he survived Valley Forge through courage and fortitude and his abiding faith in his God, so will we seek to find the right road to peace and happiness and finding it, to carry on undauntedly and courageously until that end is reached.

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

RESOLUTION

CONGRATULATIONS

Mr. AUKER offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 17, 1953.

George W. and Armanda (Hannawalt) Jones were the happiest people in McVeytown, on February 16, 1891, for on that day was born the tiny bundle of happiness that was to occupy a seat on the Republican side of this hall during the 1939, 1941, 1953 and many subsequent sessions.

The precious tot was named George E. Jones and after a suitable infancy, was sent forth to gather his education in the McVeytown and Lewistown public schools.

At the age of twelve he became a newsboy and at the age of twenty he established a restaurant business, which is still successful and flourishing.

He became a musician and renowned as a bandsman, organizing and directing many musical organizations.

He became a husband when he married Viola P. Clemens, and he became a father six times.

He was successful in all of his endeavors, therefore, he became a Legislator. The success of his first two terms is fact and the success of his third and following terms is assured; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the members of the House of Representatives extend our heartiest congratulations to the not so tiny bundle of happiness sitting in seat 163 and express our hope that he shall occupy it as he occupies his life, well and long.

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Jones.

Mr. GEORGE E. JONES. Mr. Speaker, do you expect me to say something here?

I want to thank the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker, for his choice of words. I couldn't do it any better.

The SPEAKER. The Chair congratulates and thanks the gentleman.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. CROWE asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, the resolution which I am about to offer requests a copy of the plans of the Pennsylvania Water Resources Committee, which was appointed by the Governor to check the INCODEL Plan and come up with some other plan.

Personally, Mr. President, no plans have been made available to this Legislature and I think we should have a chance to see what is contemplated. In the Poconos, according to a brief sketch I saw in one of the newspapers, practically every stream that amounts to anything is going to be damned up. To be very frank about it, I think it is an outrage. I would like to see the plans before I make any further comment.

SENATE RESOLUTIONS

INCODEL PLANS TO BE MADE AVAILABLE TO MEMBERS OF SENATE

Mr. CROWE offered the following resolution which was twice read as follows:

In the Senate, February 23, 1953.

Whereas, The Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania appointed the Pennsylvania Water Resources Committee to study the Incodel Plan and the water supply in southeastern Pennsylvania; and

Whereas, The committee prepared and filed a report with the Governor, a copy of which was made available to the Members of the Senate; and

Whereas, The engineers' reports and plans upon which the committee based its findings and recommendations are not available to the Members of the Senate; therefore be it

Resolved, That all engineers' reports and plans made in connection with the study of the Incodel Plan and the water supply in southeastern Pennsylvania be made available to the Members of the Senate for use and study.

RULE 39 SUSPENDED

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be suspended and the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the resolution just read.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

It was agreed to.

RESOLUTION REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

URGING APPOINTMENT OF SENATE COMMITTEE TO ASCERTAIN LICENSURE PROCEDURE OF STATE ATHLETIC COMMISSION

Messrs. SILVERT and McMENAMIN offered the following resolution which was twice read and referred to the Committee on State Government:

In the Senate, February 23, 1953.

Whereas, The State Athletic Commission of this Commonwealth has the duty of administering the laws allowing and regulating boxing, sparring and wrestling matches and exhibitions within this Commonwealth; and

Whereas, Questions have arisen as to the qualifications of certain persons to whom the State Athletic Commission has issued promoters' and managers' licenses; therefore be it

Resolved, That the President pro tempore of the Senate appoint three senators as a Senate committee to ascertain from the State Athletic Commission the methods and criteria by which it determines the fitness and qualifications of persons making application for State licenses as promoters or managers; and be it further

Resolved, That the said Senate committee shall, at its earliest convenience, make a written report to the Senate as to its findings.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

TIME OF NEXT MEETING

Mr. FREED offered the following concurrent resolution, which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, February 23, 1953.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That when the Senate adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday, March 2, 1953, at four o'clock p.m., E.S.T.; and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday, March 2, 1953, at four-thirty o'clock p.m., E.S.T.

Ordered That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. McCUSKER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. McCUSKER. Mr. President, I have the distinct honor of presenting this resolution pertaining to my former State Senator, Louis Farrell, who recently passed away.

Mr. President, Senator Farrell endeared himself to the hearts of each and everyone in Harrisburg and Philadelphia, so that he became affectingly known as "Uncle Lou." I would like to point out that only recently it came to my attention that old Senators never die, they merely pass away. So let it be with "Uncle Lou."

Mr. President, I would like to say that as this resolution is passed, I am sure "Uncle Lou," from his heavenly microphone, will say to each and every one, "God bless your hearts."

SENATE RESOLUTION

EULOGIZING FORMER SENATOR LOUIS H. FARRELL

Mr. McCUSKER offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, February 23, 1953.

Louis H. Farrell, former State Senator from Northeast Philadelphia's Eighth District, died on January 27, 1953, at Abington Hospital.

Senator Farrell was born on April 5, 1877, on a farm at Bustleton, Philadelphia, and lived there for the remainder of his life.

He had a deep sense of civic responsibility and devoted more than thirty-three years of his lifetime to public service. He served for 21 years as a city real estate assessor, and served in the Senate of Pennsylvania from 1938 to 1950.

While in the Senate he introduced legislation which would remove restrictions on the sale of colored oleomargarine as a part of his program in championing the cause of the people he represented. He introduced bills to reapportion Philadelphia's Senatorial Districts, and to make the registration laws more reasonable and just.

Senator Farrell was a vestryman at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Welsh Road, Bustleton, for 50 years. He was active in Masonic affairs and a member of Jerusalem Lodge, F. & A. M., Frankford Consistory, Jerusalem Royal Arch Chapter 3, and Philadelphia Consistory.

In recognition of Senator Farrell's long and useful life as a public officer of great trust, as an energetic lodge man, as a loyal churchman and as a devoted family man, and in recollection of our pleasant personal and official association with him as a Senator; therefore be it

Resolved, That the members of the Senate of Pennsylvania extend our deepest sympathy to his family in this, their hour of loss; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to Mrs. Alice Farrell, at 9427 Bustleton Avenue, Philadelphia.

STATEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The PRESIDENT. This is the first time the Chair has desired to have a vote. The Chair would certainly have liked to have voted in support of that resolution.

Senator Farrell was one of the grandest men that ever sat in this Senate in my time, and that goes back longer than the Chair would like to admit sometimes.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

"Plan of Organization

"One of the most significant aspects of the State Government Survey Committee's plan for increasing the efficiency of governmental operations—the grouping of related activities into basic operating elements or Administrations—was explained in detail by the Survey Committee today.

"In its final report, now being readied for Governor John S. Fine, the Committee proposed the creation of nine such operating Administrations, embracing functions now scattered among 26 independent governmental units, plus a Management Administration that would be concerned with the administrative machinery and business operations of the government.

"The total accountability of the State government has grown to more than $1,000,000,000 a year including borrowed funds and monies received from Federal taxing authorities," the Committee explained.

"This is big business as well as a big burden on those who must provide those funds, and it is imperative that functions be so organized that the manifold responsibilities of government can be discharged in a businesslike manner."

"In evaluating the plan of organization developed by the Survey Committee, Chairman Francis J. Chesterman, of Philadelphia, urged, the following points should be kept in mind:

"1. The State government is suffering from an administrative "topheaviness" resulting from the addition of new functions from time to time with administrative heads reporting directly to the Governor. At the present time 42 different administrative officials report directly to the Chief Executive—an intolerable situation from the standpoint of efficient administration. Under the proposed plan the total would be reduced from 42 to 12—a much more reasonable figure.

"2. While the Committee suggests the abolition of certain governmental units and the elimination of the independent status of others, such action would not result in the elimination of any essential functions. Rather, service to the public would be improved because the rearrangement would facilitate the coordination of related activities.

"3. The Committee has carefully guarded against forcing unrelated activities into an organizational unit, in the belief that such an artificial consolidation is not only expensive but depreciates the functions involved. For example, the Committee suggests that the Liquor Control Board and the Public Utility Commission, being unrelated to the functions of the nine operating Administrations, be maintained as independent agencies under the Governor.

"4. While the Committee believes its plan of organization to be a sound and workable one, it does not intend to indicate that other alternatives, faithful to the principles in question, would not serve the purpose."

"The principal reason underlying the recommendation for the establishment of a Management Administration, it was explained, 'was the recognition by the Committee of the fact that the present organization of the government makes inadequate provision for attention to administrative performance, as distinct from policy-making and technical functioning.

"This inadequacy stem from the lack of a top position charged with the administrative effectiveness and business efficiency of the widespread operations of the State government. Considering the inevitable preoccupation of the Governor with matters of policy, and the almost infinite demands on his time from other sources, it is unrealistic to expect a Governor to fulfill this need."

"Insofar as the nine operating Administrations are concerned, the Committee's plan would have the effect of introducing a new form of administrative organization between the department level and the Governor, not only to reduce the number of officials reporting directly to the Governor, but to achieve better coordination of related functions.

"The Survey Committee cited the proposed new Health and Welfare Administration as an example in explaining just how its proposed grouping would work.

"In this instance the Department of Health (less the Bureau of Milk Sanitation), the Department of Welfare including a revitalized Bureau of Institutional Management; the Department of Public Assistance, and the Bureau of Rehabilitation now in the Department of Labor and Industry would be brought together into one Administration under a capable administrator who would report directly to the Governor.

"Each of the affected departments would continue under the direction of a responsible, qualified Secretary," the Committee emphasized, "but instead of reporting directly to the Governor, the department heads would report to the Health and Welfare Administrator.

"It is our belief that with the help of a capable administrator who is immediately concerned with their problems, and with the improvement in coordination that can be expected, the department heads should be able to operate their respective programs even more effectively than they can at the present time."

"Even where the elimination of existing agencies is recommended, the Committee continued, there would be no impairment of any essential services.

"For example," it was pointed out, "the Committee has recommended that the Department of Mines be eliminated as an independent agency and its functions incorporated into the Labor and Industry Administration; and that the Milk Control Commission be abolished as an independent unit and its functions absorbed into the Agriculture Administration.

"The Committee's only objective in proposing such changes is to achieve a more logical and efficient assignment of responsibilities and to eliminate unnecessary duplication of 'housekeeping' functions. No interference whatsoever with present programs is contemplated."

"Other departments the Survey Committee suggests eliminating are Commerce and Internal Affairs. Their functions also, except for promotional activities which the Committee suggests be discontinued, would be assigned to more appropriate departments.

"The composition of the nine basic operating Administrations suggested by the Committee follows

"1. Public Education Administration—The Department of Public Instruction (less administration of the Solicitation Act, the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors, the Bureau of Professional Licensing and the School Employees Retirement Board); the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission.

"2. Works Administration, embracing all activities incident to the planning, construction and maintenance of state highways and works—Highway Department (less the Division of Highway Forestry), Construction Bureau now in Property and Supplies; Bureau of Grounds and Buildings now in Property and Supplies; State Planning Board; Division of City Planning and Landscape Architecture now in the Department of Internal Affairs.

"3. Health and Welfare Administration—Department of Health (less milk sanitation), Department of Welfare, including a revitalized Bureau of Institutional Management; Department of Public Assistance; Bureau of Rehabilitation now in Labor and Industry.

"4. Labor and Industry Administration—Department of Labor and Industry (less Bureau of Rehabilitation); Bureau of Weights and Measures now in Internal Affairs; and the Department of Mines.

"5. Finance Administration, including all functions associated with the collection, custody and disbursement of state funds, which are now lodged in the Treasury Department, the Department of Revenue and the State Tax Equalization Board.

"6. Law Administration, consolidating all activities relating to the interpretation and enforcement of the law, as in the Federal Government's Department of Justice, which are now assigned to the Attorney General, the Pennsylvania State Police, the Board of Parole and the Board of Pardons.

"7. State Administration—the present State Department, the Department of Military Affairs, State Council of Civil Defense; Department of Banking; Insurance Department; the School Employees Retirement Board now in the Department of Public Instruction; and the Bureaus of Land Records and Municipal Affairs now in the Department of Internal Affairs.

"8. Agriculture Administration—present Department of Agriculture; Milk Control Commission; Bureau of Milk Sanitation now in the Department of Health.

"9. Conservation Administration—Game Commission, Fish Commission, Department of Forests and Waters, Division of Highway Forestry now in the Department of Highways; Sanitary Water Board now in the Department of Health; and Topographic and Geologic Survey now in the Department of Internal Affairs."

"Banking

"The State Government Survey Committee suggested today that the Insurance Department and the Department of Banking be merged into a new Department of Financial Institutions at a saving of approximately $80,000 a biennium in administrative, or 'housekeeping' expense.

"The recommendation for the consolidation of the two departments, Chairman Francis J. Chesterman, of Philadelphia, pointed out, as part of the Survey Committee's over-all plan for achieving more efficient governmental organization.

"The Survey Committee revealed its proposal in a report on the Department of Banking.

"Although time has not permitted a detailed study of the Insurance Department," the Committee pointed out, "the similarity of the general functions and methods of operation of the two departments suggests that they might profitably be combined into one department."

"The Survey Committee, nearing the end of a study of governmental operations requested by Governor John S. Fine, found that the Department of Banking 'is operated in an efficient and economical manner and is carrying out its functions in a manner satisfactory both to the financial institutions supervised and to the general public.'

"The Committee's recommendations, 'aimed at enabling the department to meet its expanding responsibilities with a minimum of increased cost,' included:

"1. The Banking Board and the Building and Loan Board should be more effective in assisting the Secretary of Banking in determining policy matters.

"2. Conferences of bank examiners and building and loan examiners should be held at least annually in order to increase the efficiency and uniformity of examination procedures.

"3. Cooperation between Building and Loan Bureau and officials of the Pennsylvania Savings and Loan League should be encouraged on legislative matters, dividend rates, questions of competition with Federal Savings and Loan Associations, installment share sinking-fund, loans and other problems of mutual interest.

"4. Bills to financial institutions for examination costs should be itemized and bills for overhead costs should be supplemented with information as to how such charges are made up. In order to verify the Department's present method of allocating costs, actual cost records should be maintained for a period of a year.

"5. The Consumer Credit Division and the Motor Vehicle Sales Finance Divisions should be consolidated into a Bureau of Consumer Credit, headed by a deputy Secretary of Banking. A Consumer Credit Board should be established to assist the Secretary of Banking in the formulation of policies for this type of business. Examinations of sales agencies should be more thorough.

"6. The leased quarters of the Pennsylvania Securities Commission in downtown Harrisburg should be vacated as soon as the existing lease permits and the offices located in regularly assigned quarters in the Department of Banking. The Commission's present quarters were leased in 1949 at a cost of $12,000 a year, the Committee noted.

"The Department of Banking does not receive any appropriation from the State, the Survey Committee explained. The actual expenses of examinations are paid by the institutions examined. License fees charged consumer credit and motor vehicle sales finance organizations are deposited in the Banking Fund to meet the expenses of that part of the department.

"The Pennsylvania Securities Commission is an independent administrative board affiliated with the Department of Banking. The Securities Commission does receive an appropriation from the General Fund but receipts from the licensing of investment dealers, advisers and salesmen are deposited in the General Fund and these Receipts, the Committee pointed out, are sufficient to offset the amount of the appropriation.

"On the subject of examination the Committee pointed out that while the cooperation that has been achieved between Federal and State bank examiners has been most effective in reducing expenses and inconveniences, 'the same degree of cooperation has not been achieved between Federal and State building and loan examiners.'

"The department is endeavoring to remedy this condition by assigning more building and loan examiners,' it was explained, 'and by changing its examination forms to agree with those used by the Home Loan Bank Board.'

"On the subject of consumer credit, the Committee pointed out that 'no regulations have ever been promulgated for credit or consumer discount companies and the regulations for small loan companies are in need of revision.'

"Agencies engaged in the business of financing motor vehicle sales, the Committee pointed out, are required to be licensed by the Motor Vehicle Sales Finance Division and it is impowered to make investigations for discovering violations of the Motor Vehicle Sales Finance Act.

"State banks engaging in motor vehicle financing are investigated by the bank examiners at the time the other affairs of the banks are being examined,' the Committee noted. 'National banks, licensed for motor sales financing, are not investigated, neither are out-of-state sales finance companies investigated.'

"Investigations of this type of business are considered policing as contrasted to the protective functions of bank and building and loan examination. In the four years ending September 30, 1951, investigations have resulted in the refunding to borrowers of $70,523 in unlawful charges made by installment sellers and sales finance licensees.'

"The Committee was aided in its study of the Department of Banking by a task force consisting of George R. Bailey, vice president of the Harrisburg National Bank; T. N. Burke, vice president, Interstate Finance and Consumer Discount Company, Philadelphia; Norman T. Hayes, vice president, Philadelphia National Bank; R. J. Hopkins, president, Titusville Trust Company; R. G. Kirschmann, secretary-treasure, Johnstown Finance and Loan Company; and G. M. Watson, treasurer, State Capital Savings and Loan Association, Harrisburg.

"The task force was assisted by a research staff from the Pennsylvania Economy League, Inc., consisting of G. Fred Berger, Consultant on Banking Practices and Procedures; John N. Carson, Secretary; and Martin P. Klingel, Assistant Director of the Economy League, Philadelphia."

"Labor and Industry

"The State Government Survey Committee today suggested operating improvements in the Department of Labor and Industry which 'would in a few years save the Commonwealth at least five percent of the department's present expenditures, or approximately $500,000 a biennium.'

"The greatest need for improvement was found in the fields of employment security, workmen's compensation, and inspection, the Committee explained, noting that 'other activities of the department are generally operating efficiently and carrying out the functions for which they were created.'

"The conditions in need of correction are ones of long standing,' Chairman Francis J. Chesterman, of Philadelphia, pointed out, 'and it is to the credit of the Secretary of the Department that he is endeavoring to correct them as rapidly as possible.'

"The Survey Committee, now in the final stages of a study of governmental operations requested by Governor John S. Fine, offered the following recommendations for improving the department's operating efficiency:

"1. The Special Administration Fund of the Bureau of Employment Security should be placed under the same controls as other funds.

"2. The Board of Review of the Bureau of Employment Security should coordinate the work of referees, but should not hear second appeals de novo.

"3. The insuring requirements of the workmen's compensation law should be strictly enforced to provide maximum protection for employees.

"4. Hearings before workmen's compensation referees should be expedited to eliminate the costly back-log of cases.

"5. The management of the State Workmen's Insurance Fund should be reorganized on a business basis. The investment portfolio should be under the direction of the proposed Investment Council.

"6. Duplication of statistical services within the department should be eliminated.

"7. An advisory committee should be established for each division in the Bureau of Inspection to supply technical advice and assistance.

"8. The Division of Mines, Quarries and Explosives and the Department of Mines should be combined into a Bureau of Mines and Minerals.

"9. The Divisions of Accident Prevention and Occupational Disease Prevention should be abolished because their work duplicates that of other units.

"10. The Bureau of Inspection should be reorganized to achieve proper assignment, coordination and control of all inspectors. Personnel should be increased in order that all required inspections may be made. Uniform districts should be established and all inspectors should report to the District Supervisor. Inspection fees should be increased to cover the expenses of operating the Bureau. Revised inspection manuals should be prepared and kept current, and in-service training programs should be conducted.

"11. The Bureau of Industrial Standards should be made a division in the Bureau of Inspection with sufficient personnel to conduct meaningful tests of equipment offered for inspection.

"12. The industrial Board should be abolished as a departmental administrative board and should be reconstituted as an advisory board to the Division of Industrial Standards. The members of this Board should be qualified to offer competent advice on technical problems as well as to assist in the formulation of policy.

"13. The Bureau of Rehabilitation and the State Board of Vocational Rehabilitation should be transferred to the proposed Health and Welfare Administration with which their functions are closely allied, in order to secure greater coordination of services.

"The comments of the Survey Committee on the department's various activities—

"On the Bureau of Employment Security:

"This bureau administers both the unemployment compensation law and the employment services. It is entirely financed by federal grants, although the money is really furnished by part of the federal payroll tax that Pennsylvania employers are required to pay. Since the inception of the Unemployment Tax Act more than $205,000,000 has been paid by state employers, but only about half that amount has been returned to Pennsylvania.

"Penalties and interest accruing from delinquent employer accounts are deposited in a special administration fund subject only to the control of the Secretary of Labor and Industry and the limitation that no other funds are available for the projects for which it is expended. As of January 1, 1953, a total of $2,048,937 had been paid into this fund and the balance as of that date was $987,875. "This fund may be expended for the payment of costs of administration not properly chargeable against federal grants. In 1947, Act 316 was passed enlarging the purposes for which it might be expended to include acquisition of land and buildings to house the offices of Unemployment Compensation.

"The sum of $807,078 has been spent for a building site and for architect's fees, and an additional $253,983 has been expended for a number of surveys, rentals and salaries. On March 1, 1953, bids will be taken for the construction of a 16-story building adequate for all offices of the entire department. The building will be financed by the General State Authority.

"Referees located in various sections of the state hear appeals on employment compensation cases. A second hearing may be conducted by a Board of Review at which all of the original evidence is again presented. Recently a modification of this plan has been adopted permitting the waiving of the original hearing before a referee."

"On the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation:

"The Bureau has not given proper attention at all times to the enforcement of the insuring requirements of the compensation law and thus failed to protect employees. This has resulted in loss to the Commonwealth in litigation and in the imposition of burdens on relief agencies. Employers of few persons are especially difficult to insure. Applicants for self-insurance were not always thoroughly screened as to their financial ability to pay compensation.

"It is understood from the Secretary of the department that since the Committee started its survey changes have been instituted to enforce the insuring requirements. Unemployment Compensation reports have been checked for names of employers and field men have increased their activities with the result that 5752 new contracts of Workmen's Compensation Insurance have been placed in the calendar year 1952.

"Three representatives of the Self-Insurers Advisory Board have been asked to cooperate in suggesting changes to strengthen self-insurance. New regulations have been promulgated requiring a filing of a minimum of $25,000 in bonds or other securities and if liabilities exceed that figure, evidence of re-insurance must be filed. All trust agreements are being re-examined."

"On the Workmen's Compensation Board:

"This board hears and determines petitions and appeals from the decisions of referees in workmen's compensation cases. Delay in hearing and determining workmen's compensation and occupational disease cases has resulted in a large backlog of undetermined cases now in the hands of referees.

"The referees do not seem to be performing their duties in an orderly fashion. There is a shortage of referees and of competent reporting personnel. The policy of continuances and postponements is too liberal. Loss to claimants, extra expenses to the state and to employers result from this condition of affairs and relief organizations are unduly burdened by these delays.

"Two steps have been taken to correct the large backlog of cases. The Governor has appointed an Administrative Assistant with the responsibility to get the referees' calendars current and salaries of referees have been adjusted to a more equitable scale, which should make it easier to secure the services of competent personnel to fill the vacant positions."

"On the State Workman's Insurance Fund:

"The State Workmen's Insurance Board administers the State Workmen's Insurance Fund, which was created to provide workmen's compensation insurance and is constituted from premiums paid by employers for compensation insurance.

"This Fund is overstaffed; salaries of employees are generally low compared with industry. Some local offices are poorly conducted; absenteeism; irregular work loads and lack of proper supervision were found.

"Personnel is not properly screened as to qualifications; overstaffing results from the ineffective personnel. Valuable office space is taken up by many hundreds of tons of correspondence which might be destroyed or micro-filmed. Payments of dividends, although regularly recommended by the Board, were delayed several years. The 1947-48 dividends were not paid until March 1952. In October of 1952 dividends for 1949 and 1950 were paid.

"Despite the severe criticism of the personnel and operating methods of the Fund, it must be pointed out that it has operated at a profit in a line that most casualty insurance companies consider unprofitable business.

"The investment portfolio now totals $16,500,000. The investment of these funds is the responsibility of the Board, consisting of the Secretary of Labor and Industry, the State Treasurer and the Insurance Commissioner. In practice, the Secretary of Labor and Industry handles the investments."

"On the Bureau of Industrial Standards:

"The work of this bureau is ineffective. It inspects and approves only equipment submitted to it and conducts no subsequent field inspections to determine that quality of devices approved is maintained. There are only two employees in the Bureau."

"On the Bureau of Inspection:

"The present set-up is confusing and inefficient. The seven divisions operate as independent units. In some divisions all inspectors have headquarters in Harrisburg; in others, field offices are established. For practical purposes the majority of inspectors use their homes as offices and no one has knowledge of their daily itineraries.

"There is no system of assignment for inspectors. They roam about as they see fit and many of their reports are so identical from day to day as to make them suspect.

"Suitable monthly reports and summaries are lacking and considerable duplication of record keeping exists between the local offices and Harrisburg. The entire bookkeeping system is outmoded. There is no in-service training program for inspectors.

"No standardization procedure and no time limit for reporting accidents exists. There is duplication of accident investigations by this Bureau and the Bureau of Women and Children. Duplications of other inspections exist within the Bureau and with other agencies such as the Department of Welfare, the Department of Health and the State Police.

"Insurance company inspections of boilers and elevators are accepted, but even with this outside aid there are many thousands of each that have never been inspected or even registered.

"The present regulations of the Buildings Division are uncoordinated and archaic. In fact, regulations and manuals issued by all divisions need revision not only in contents, but as to format and availability to the public. Codification of all laws administered by the Department was published in October 1952, and could well serve as a basis for assembling the information which is required by the public.

"The only work performed by the Accident Prevention Division is a duplication of statistics kept in the Bureau of Research and Information. The functions of the Occupational Disease Prevention Division are being actively conducted by the Department of Health with technically trained personnel and specialized equipment. This division in the Department of Labor and Industry is doing only photography and printing.

"Salaries of all inspectors and office personnel are considered inadequate. Many inequalities in classification of employees exist."

"On the Bureau of Rehabilitation:

"The Bureau maintains a case load of about 18,000, with about 10,000 annual additions and eliminations. The biennial cost of the Bureau is about $2,300,000 of which two-thirds is paid by the Federal government. During the past year about 3500 persons were supplied with training, surgery, treatment, or helpful appliances.

"Rehabilitation work has been profitable by moving disabled persons from relief rolls and making them productive citizens. A study of 691 disabled cases formerly on relief showed a difference between $762,000 annual relief costs before rehabilitation and $1,407,000 annual earnings after rehabilitation.

"An experiment in rehabilitating the mentally ill is now being conducted at one mental hospital."

"The Committee's study of the Department of Labor and Industry was based on a survey made by a volunteer 'task force' headed by Louis B. F. Raycroft, Philadelphia, retired president of the Electric Storage Battery Corp.

"The task force was organized as follows:

"Group 1, Bureau of Employment Security and Bureau of Research and Information—Penrose Hertzler, Pottsville, general counsel for the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company, chairman; William I. Cassidy, Reading, secretary of the Manufacturers' Association of Berks County; and Mr. Raycroft.

"Group 2, State Workmen's Insurance Fund, Bureau of Workmen's Compensation, and Workmen's Compensation Board—Samuel C. Devey, Wilmerding, personnel director, Westinghouse Air Brake Co., chairman; Robert S. Carson, Indiana, executive assistant to the president of the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Company; and Dr. G. L. Laverty, Harrisburg.

"Group 3, Industrial Board, Bureau of Industrial Standards and Bureau of Inspection—Theodore A. Serrill, Harrisburg, manager of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association, chairman; Dan Farrell, Pittsburgh, Supervisor of Safety, United States Steel Corporation; and John H. Seeton, Philadelphia, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association.

"Group 4, Labor Relations Board, Bureau of Mediation—Robert D. Henderson, professor, Bucknell University, chairman; Sterling G. McNeese, Harrisburg attorney.

"Group 5, Bureau of Women and Children, Bureau of Hours and Minimum Wages—John E. Means, Lancaster, secretary of the Pennsylvania Retailers Association, chairman; W. J. Mooney, Harrisburg, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Association of Dyers and Cleaners; and Charles York, of York, secretary of the Pennsylvania Cannery Association.

"Group 6, Bureau of Rehabilitation—Dr. Laverty and Walter Linn, Philadelphia, secretary, Pennsylvania Self-Insurers Association."

"A.M., Monday, February 23, 1953

"Release No. 25

"State

"Reorganization of the Department of State into a new State Administration with increased responsibilities was suggested today by the State Government Survey Committee.

"The objective of the Committee in suggesting the reorganization, Chairman Francis J. Chesterman, of Philadelphia, explained, 'is to capitalize upon the department's traditional role and to provide it with staff competence to perform the variety of functions that are common to but not an integral part of the specialized duties of other departments.'

"As steps toward the fulfillment of that objective and the achievement of savings estimated at approximately $18,500 a biennium, the Survey Committee recommended:

"1. Consolidation of two of the department's present bureaus—the Elections Bureau and the Commission Bureau—into one Bureau of Commissions and Elections in order to establish a more uniform work load.

"2. Elimination of a third bureau—the Legislative Bureau—and the transfer of its responsibilities to the Legislative Reference Bureau of the General Assembly. Also, revision of the present procedure for the punctuation of laws to make punctuation a part of the legislative process rather than a function of the Department of State.

"3. Establishment in the State Administration of a centralized Licensing Department, creation of which had been urged earlier by the Committee.

"4. Transfer of the Bureau of Land Records and the Bureau of Municipal Affairs to the State Administration from the Department of Internal Affairs. The functions of the Bureau of Municipal Affairs, the Committee suggested, should be restricted to a secretarial-archival role.

"5. Transfer to the State Administration of the Department of Military Affairs and the State Council of Civil Defense. The separate entities of these two agencies should be retained in their respective civilian and military functions, the Committee said, with continued full cooperation between the two.

"6. Incorporation in the State Administration of the proposed Department of Financial Institutions which, under an earlier recommendation, would be made up of the present departments of Banking and Insurance.

"7. Merging of the School Employees' Retirement Board and the State Employees' Retirement Board into a single Retirement Board in the State Administration.

"This recommendation does not contemplate the merger of the two retirement funds,' the Committee emphasized. 'The two funds should be kept separate, but the clerical functions involved should be consolidated under one director in order to eliminate duplication of services, functions, personnel and mechanical installations.'

"8. Revision of the laws governing the commissioning of elected and appointed officers to eliminate differences in forms and procedures wherever possible.

"9. Revision of the laws governing the appointment of notaries public to vest the power of appointment in the Secretary of the Commonwealth subject to a test by the present Civil Service Board or the proposed Personnel Board to determine the applicant's competence.

"10. Codification of the corporation laws of the Commonwealth to establish a single uniform procedure, eliminate unnecessary diversity of language and reduce the duplication of records.

"11. Modification of the corporation laws to permit the substitution of microfilm for the original copy and to authorize the submission of microfilm records as primary evidence in legal proceedings.

"The merger of the Commission Bureau and the Elections Bureau, the Survey Committee explained, was prompted by the fact that the peak work load of the Commission Bureau occurs in odd-numbered years when the Legislature is in session, while the peak work load of the Elections Bureau occurs in even-numbered years when general elections are held.

"If the two were combined into one bureau,' the Committee said, 'an even work load could be established and a saving effected of at least $15,500 a biennium.'

"The Committee asserted that the Legislative Bureau in the Department of State is active and has significant duties only during those periods when the General Assembly is in session and the months immediately following the close of the sessions.

"Elimination of the Bureau, it was noted, would necessitate the establishment in the State Administration of a position of legislative record clerk to receive, record and file bills and resolutions passed by the General Assembly; to transmit bills to the Governor for his signature or veto; to attest the Governor's signature on bills; and to receive and file the Governor's vetoes.

"On the subject of the punctuation of laws, the Survey Committee pointed out that Pennsylvania is the only state that gives an administrative officer of the executive department the duty of punctuating the laws after passage.

"Although punctuation is not technically a part of the law,' the Committee explained, 'it does at times influence the interpretation of the law and is therefore more properly a part of the legislative process.'

"In detailing its recommendation for the merging of the two Retirement Boards, the Committee suggested that the new consolidated Board 'be limited to five members, readily available for prompt decisions and action on investment opportunities.'

"The Retirement Board should have administrative responsibility for the retirement funds and should depend on the proposed Investment Council for financial advice and counsel on general investment policies,' the Committee added.

"The State Employees' Retirement Board is now attached to the Department of State; the School Employees' Retirement ment Board is presently affiliated with the Department of Public Instruction.

"A second retirement board attached to the Department of State—the Municipal Employees' Retirement Board—has never been active, the Committee said, and should be dissolved. The reason for its inactivity: before any municipal plans were approved other legislation was passed permitting employees of political subdivisions to join Federal Social Security.

"The comments of the Committee on other recommendations follow:

"On the need for more uniformity in commission forms and procedures:

"Approximately 75 different forms are used in commissioning elective and appointive officers as a result of the unnecessary variations in the wording of the laws. Although the issuance of commissions is basically a simple clerical operation, these many variations require considerable supervisory attention and are time consuming."

"On the laws governing notaries public and justices of the peace:

"The present procedure for the appointment of notaries is not only rather complex, but does not make provision for any tests to determine the competence of persons being commissioned.

"Also, under the present law neither notaries nor justices of the peace are required to notify the Commission Bureau of any change of address or name, and as a result it is impossible for the files to be accurate.

"If certain changes in the laws governing notaries public and justices of the peace were made, savings of $3000 a biennium could be realized."

"On the need for revision of the corporation laws:

"Photocopying was introduced into the Corporation Bureau in 1939 for reproducing documents that had to be recorded. Since that date over 900,000 copies of documents have been made. A Duplex photocopy costs approximately 15 cents; a Simplex photocopy approximately 23 cents. The cost of original and duplicate microfilm, including cost of materials and payroll, is approximately 4 cents.

"Although all records have been microfilmed, the original or photocopies cannot be destroyed because of an opinion of the Attorney General that microfilm is not a "copy" as required by law.

"Also, the work of the Corporation Bureau is made complex by unnecessary variations in the laws governing corporations, cooperatives and associations that are not justified by the subject of the law.

"The work load of the Bureau has more than doubled in the past ten years. It is estimated that it takes two years to train a clerk to handle the technical details without immediate supervision, but 17 of the 42 clerks have had less than a year and a half of service."

"The Committee based its study of the Department of State on a survey made possible through the cooperation of Dr. Rufus H. Fitzgerald, Chancellor, and Dr. Charles B. Nutting, Vice Chancellor, University of Pittsburgh Dr. William G. Willis directed the study. Staff assistance was provided by Dr. Albert B. Martin and Dr. Rosalind L. Branning."

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. SNOWDEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. SNOWDEN read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 203, entitled:

An Act to amend subsection (a) of Section 9 of the act approved the twenty-sixth day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-nine (P. (2) A contract for the sale apart from the land of growing crops or other identified things attached to realty and capable of severance without material harm thereto but not described in subsection (1)

(a) is a contract for sale of goods within this Article whether the subject matter is to be severed by the buyer or by the seller even though it forms part of the realty at the time of contracting and subject to any third party rights provided by the law relating to realty records the parties can by identification work a constructive severance at the time of contracting and

(b) may be executed and recorded as a document transferring an interest in land and shall then constitute notice to third parties of the buyer's rights under the contract for sale

Part 2

Form Formation and Readjustment of Contract

Section 2—201 Formal Requirements Statute of Frauds

(1) Except as otherwise provided in this section a contract for the sale of goods for the price of $500 or more is not enforceable by way of action or defense unless there is some writing sufficient to indicate that a contract for sale has been made between the parties and signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his authorized agent or broker. A writing is not insufficient because it omits or incorrectly states a term agreed upon but the contract is not enforceable under this paragraph beyond the quantity of goods shown in such writing.

(2) Between merchants if within a reasonable time a writing in confirmation of the contract and sufficient against the sender is received and the party receiving it has reason to know its contents it satisfies the requirements of subsection (1) against such party unless written notice of objection to its contents is given within ten days after it is received.

(3) A contract which does not satisfy the requirements of subsection (1) but which is valid in other respects is enforceable

(a) if the goods are to be specially manufactured for the buyer and are not suitable for sale to others in the ordinary course of the seller's business and the seller before notice of repudiation is received and under circumstances which reasonably indicate that the goods are for the buyer has made either a substantial beginning of their manufacture or commitments for their procurement or

(b) if the party against whom enforcement is sought admits in his pleading or otherwise in court that a contract for sale was made or

(c) with respect to goods for which payment has been made and accepted or which have been received and accepted (Section 2—606)

Section 2—202 Final Written Expression Parol or Extrinsic Evidence Terms with respect to which the confirmatory memoranda of the parties agree or which are otherwise set forth in a writing intended by the parties as a final expression of their agreement with respect to such terms as are included therein may not be contradicted by evidence of any prior agreement or of a contemporaneous oral agreement but may be explained or supplemented

(a) by course of dealing or usage of trade (Section 1—205) or by course of performance (Section 2—208) and

(b) by evidence of consistent additional terms unless the court finds the writing to have been intended also as a complete and exclusive statement of the terms agreed upon

Section 2—203 Seals Inoperative The affixing of a seal to a writing evidencing a contract for sale or an offer to buy or sell goods does not constitute the writing a sealed instrument and the law with respect to sealed instruments does not apply to such a contract or offer

Section 2—204 Formation in General (1) A contract for sale of goods may be made in any manner sufficient to show agreement

(2) Conduct by both parties which recognizes the existence of a contract is sufficient to establish a contract for sale even though the moment of its making cannot be determined

(3) Even though one or more terms are left open a contract for sale does not fail for indefiniteness if the parties have intended to make a contract and there is a reasonably certain basis for giving an appropriate remedy

Section 2—205 Firm Offers An offer by a merchant to buy or sell goods in a signed writing which gives assurance that it will be held open needs no consideration to be irrevocable for a reasonable time or during a stated time but in no event for a time exceeding three months but such term on a form supplied by the offeree must be separately signed by the offeror

Section 2—206 Offer and Acceptance in Formation of Contract (1) Unless the contrary is unambiguously indicated by the language or circumstances

(a) an offer to make a contract shall be construed as inviting acceptance in any manner and by any medium reasonable in the circumstances

(b) an order or other offer to buy goods for prompt or current shipment can be accepted either by such shipment or by a prompt promise thereof

(2) Unless the seller states the contrary a shipment sent in response to an order to which it does not conform is an acceptance and at the same time a breach. But a shipment of non-conforming goods offered as an accommodation to the buyer in substitution for the goods described in the order is not an acceptance

(3) The beginning of a requested performance can be a reasonable mode of acceptance but in such a case an offeror who is not notified of acceptance within a reasonable time may treat the offer as having lapsed before acceptance

Section 2—207 Additional Terms in Acceptance or Confirmation (1) A definite and seasonable expression of acceptance or a written confirmation which is sent within a reasonable time operates as an acceptance even though it states terms additional to or different from those offered or agreed upon

(2) The additional terms are to be construed as proposals for addition to the contract and between merchants become part of the contract unless they materially alter it or notification of objection to them has already been given or is given within a reasonable time

Section 2—208 Course of Performance or Practical Construction Where the contract for sale involves repeated occasions for performance by either party with knowledge of the nature of the performance and opportunity for objection to it by the other any course of performance accepted without objection shall be relevant to determine the meaning of the agreement or to show a waiver or modification of any term inconsistent with such course of performance

Section 2—209 Modification and Waiver (1) An agreement modifying a contract within this Article needs no consideration to be binding

(2) A signed agreement which excludes modification except by a signed writing cannot be otherwise modified but except as between merchants such a requirement on a form supplied by the merchant must be separately signed by the other party

(3) The requirements of the Statute of Frauds section of this Article (Section 2—201) must be satisfied if the contract as modified is within its provisions

(4) Although an attempt at modification does not satisfy the requirements of subsection (2) or (3) it can operate as a waiver

(5) Unless reliance on it has made retraction unjust a waiver which affects an executory portion of the contract may be retracted by receipt of reasonable notification that strict performance will be required of any term waived

Section 2—210 Delegation of Performance Assignment of Rights (1) A party may perform his duty through a delegate unless otherwise agreed or unless the other party has a substantial interest in having his original promisor perform or control the acts required by the contract. No delegation of performance relieves the party delegating from liability for any breach

(2) Unless otherwise agreed all rights of either seller or buyer can be assigned except where the assignment would materially change the performance of the other party. A right to damages for breach of the whole contract or a right arising out of the assignor's due performance of his entire obligation can be assigned despite agreement otherwise

(3) Unless the circumstances indicate the contrary a prohibition of assignment of "the contract" is to be construed as barring only the delegation to the assignee of the assignor's performance

(4) An assignment of "the contract" or of "all my rights under the contract" or an assignment in similar general terms is an assignment of rights and unless the circumstances indicate the contrary (as in an assignment for security) it is a delegation of performance of the duties of the assignor and its acceptance by the assignee constitutes a promise by him to perform those duties. This promise is enforceable by either the assignor or the other party to the original contract

(5) The other party may treat any assignment which delegates performance as impairing his expectation of performance and may without prejudice to his rights against the assignor demand assurances from the assignee (Section 2—609)

Part 3

General Obligation and Construction of Contract

Section 2—301 General Obligations of Parties The obligation of the seller is to transfer and deliver and that of the buyer is to accept and pay in accordance with the contract

Section 2—302 Unconscionable Contract or Clause (1) If the court finds the contract or any clause of the contract to be unconscionable it may refuse to enforce the contract or may strike any unconscionable clauses and enforce the contract as if the stricken clause had never existed

(2) When it is claimed or appears to the court that the contract or any clause thereof may be unconscionable the court may afford the parties an opportunity to present evidence as to its commercial setting purpose and effect to aid the court in making the determination

Section 2—303 Allocation or Division of Risks Where this Article allocates a risk or a burden as between the parties "unless otherwise agreed" the agreement may not only shift the allocation but may also divide the risk or burden

Section 2—304 Price Payable in Money Goods Realty or Otherwise (1) The price can be made payable in money or otherwise If it is payable in whole or in part in goods each party is a seller of the goods which he is to transfer

(2) Even though all or part of the price is payable in an interest in realty the transfer of the goods and the seller's obligations with reference to them are subject to this Article but not the transfer of the interest in realty or the transferor's obligations in connection therewith

Section 2—305 Open Price Term (1) The parties if they so intend can conclude a contract for sale even though the price is not settled In such a case the price is a reasonable price at the time for delivery if

(a) nothing is said as to price or

(b) the price is left to be agreed by the parties and they fail to agree or

(c) the price is to be fixed in terms of some agreed market or other standard as set or recorded by a third person or agency and it is not so set or recorded

(2) A price to be fixed by the seller or by the buyer means a price for him to fix in good faith

(3) When a price left to be fixed otherwise than by agreement of the parties fails to be fixed through fault of one party the other may at his option treat the contract as cancelled or himself fix a reasonable price

(4) Where however the parties intend not to be bound unless the price be fixed or agreed and it is not fixed or agreed there is no contract In such a case the buyer must return any goods already received or if unable so to do must pay their reasonable value at the time of delivery and the seller must return any portion of the price paid on account

Section 2—306 Output Requirements and Exclusive Dealings (1) A term which measures the quantity by the output of the seller or the requirements of the buyer means such actual output or requirements as may occur in good faith except that no quantity unreasonably disproportionate to any stated estimate or in the absence of a stated estimate to any normal or otherwise comparable prior output or requirements may be tendered or demanded

(2) Where in connection with a contract for sale there is a lawful agreement for exclusive dealing by either the seller or the buyer in the kind of goods concerned good faith also imposes on each party an obligation of due diligence

Section 2—307 Delivery in Single Lot or Several Lots Unless otherwise agreed all goods called for by a contract for sale must be tendered in a single delivery and payment is due only on such tender but where the circumstances gives either party the right to make or demand delivery in lots the price if it can be apportioned may be demanded for each lot

Section 2—308 Absence of Specified Place for Delivery Unless otherwise agreed

(a) the place for delivery of goods is the seller's place of business or if he has none his residence but

(b) in a contract for sale of identified goods which to the knowledge of the parties at the time of contracting are in some other place that place is the place for their delivery and

(c) documents of title may be delivered through customary banking channels

Section 2—309 Absence of Specific Time Provisions Notice of Termination (1) The time for shipment or delivery or any other action under a contract is not provided in this Article or agreed upon shall be a reasonable time

(2) Where the contract provides for successive performances but is indefinite in duration it is valid for a reasonable time but unless otherwise agreed may be terminated at any time by either party

(3) Termination of a contract require that reasonable notification be received by the other party and an agreement dispensing with notification is invalid if its operation would be unconscionable

Section 2—310 Open Time for Payment or Running of Credit Authority to Ship Under Reservation Unless otherwise agreed

(a) payment is due at the time and place at which the buyer is to receive the goods even though the place of shipment is the place of delivery and

(b) if the seller is authorized to send the goods he may ship them under reservation and may demand payment against tender of the documents of title but in the absence of such a term as C I F C O D or cash against documents the buyer may inspect the goods after their arrival before he pays and

(c) if delivery is otherwise authorized and made by way of documents of title payment is due at the time and place at which the buyer is to receive the documents regardless of where the goods are to be received and

(d) where the seller is required or authorized to ship the goods on credit the credit period runs from the time of shipment but post-dating the invoice or delaying its dispatch will correspondingly delay the starting of the credit period

Section 2—311 Options and Cooperation Respecting Performance (1) A contract for sale which is otherwise sufficiently definite (subsection (3) of Section 2—204) is not made invalid by the fact that the agreement leaves particulars of performance to be specified by one of the parties

(2) Unless otherwise agreed specifications relating to assortment of the goods are at the buyer's option and specifications or arrangements relating to shipment are at the seller's option

(3) Where the exercise of such an option will materially affect the other party's performance but is not seasonably exercised or where one party's cooperation is necessary to the agreed performance of the other but is not seasonably forthcoming the other party in addition to all other remedies

(a) is excused for any resulting delay in his own performance and

(b) may also either proceed to perform in any reasonable manner or await the time for his own performance and then treat the failure to exercise the option or to cooperate as a breach by failure to deliver or accept the goods

Section 2—312 Warranty of Title and Against Infringement (1) Unless otherwise agreed there is in a contract for sale a warranty by the seller that

(a) the title conveyed shall be good and its transfer rightful and

(b) the goods shall be delivered free from any security interest or other lien or encumbrance of which the buyer at the time of contracting has no knowledge and also free from any rightful claim of any third person by way of infringement or otherwise unless the circumstances at the time of contracting place the risk of such claim upon the buyer

(2) Where the circumstances give the buyer reason to know that the person selling does not claim title in himself or that he is purporting to sell only such right or title as he or a third person may have no personal obligation is imposed by this section on the person selling unless otherwise agreed

Section 2—213 Express Warranties by Affirmation the seller are created as follows

Promise Description Sample (1) Express warranties by

(a) Any affirmation of fact or promise made by the seller to the buyer which relates to the goods and becomes a basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods shall conform to the affirmation or promise

(b) Any description of the goods which is made a basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods shall conform to the description

(c) Any sample or model which is made a basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the whole of the goods shall conform to the sample or model

(2) It is not necessary to the creation of an express warranty that the seller use formal words such as "warrant" or "guarantee" or that he have a specific intention to make a warranty but an affirmation merely of the value of the goods or a statement purporting to be merely the seller's opinion or commendation of the goods does not create a warranty

Section 2—314 Implied Warranty Merchantability Usage of Trade (1) Unless excluded or modified (Section 2—316) a warranty that the goods shall be merchantable is applied in a contract for their sale if the seller is a merchant with respect to goods of that kind or though not a merchant states generally that they are guaranteed The serving for value of food or drink to be consumed either on the premises or elsewhere is a sale

(2) Goods to be merchantable must at least be such as

(a) pass without objection in the trade under the contract description and

(b) are of fair average quality in the trade and within the description and

(c) are fit for the ordinary purposes for which such goods are used and

(d) run within the variations permitted by the agreement of even kind quality and quantity within each unit and among all units involved and

(e) are adequately contained packaged and labeled as the agreement may require and

(f) conform to the promises or affirmations of fact made on the container or label if any

(3) Unless excluded or modified (Section 2—316) other implied warranties may arise from course of dealing or usage of trade

Section 2—315 Implied Warranty Fitness for Particular Purpose Where the seller at the time of contracting has reason to know any particular purpose for which the goods are required and that the buyer is relying on the seller's skill or judgment to select or furnish suitable goods there is unless excluded or modified under the next section an implied warranty that the goods shall be fit for such purpose

Section 2—316 Exclusion or Modification of Warranties (1) If the agreement creates an express warranty words disclaiming it are inoperative

(2) Exclusion or modification of the implied warranty of merchantability or of fitness for a particular purpose must be in specific language and if the inclusion of such language creates an ambiguity in the contract as a whole it shall be resolved against the seller except that

(a) all implied warranties are excluded by expressions like "as is" "as they stand" "with all faults" or other language which in common understanding calls the buyer's attention to the exclusion of warranties and makes plain that there is no implied warranty and

(b) when the buyer has examined the goods or the sample or model as fully as he desired or has refused to examine the goods there is no implied warranty with regard to defects which an examination ought in the circumstances to have revealed to him and

(c) an implied warranty can also be excluded or modified by course of dealing or course of performance or usage of trade

(3) Remedies for breach of warranty can be limited in accordance with the provisions of this Article on liquidation or limitation of damages and on contractual modification of remedy (Sections 2—718 and

Section 2—317 Cumulation and Conflict of Warranties Express or Implied Warranties whether express or implied shall be construed as consistent with each other and as cumulative but if such construction is unreasonable the intention of the parties shall determine which warranty is dominant In ascertaining that intention the following rules apply

(a) Exact or technical specifications displace an inconsistent sample or model or general language of description

(b) A sample from an existing bulk displaces inconsistent general language of description

(c) Express warranties displace inconsistent implied warranties other than an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose

Section 2—318 Third party Beneficiaries of Warranties Express or Implied A seller's warranty whether express or implied extends to any natural person who is in the family or household of his buyer or who is a guest in his home if it is reasonable to expect that such person may use consume or be affected by the goods and who is injured in person by breach of the warranty A seller may not exclude or limit the operation of this section

Section 2—319 F O B and F A S Terms (1) Unless otherwise agreed the term F O B (which means "free on board") at a named place even though used only in connection with the stated price is a delivery term under which

(a) when the term is F O B the place of shipment the seller must at that place ship the goods in the manner provided in this Article (Sec 2—504) and bear the expense and risk of putting them into the possession of the carrier or

(b) when the term is F O B the place of destination the seller must at his own expense and risk transport the goods to that place and there tender delivery of them in the manner provided in this Article (Section 2—503)

(c) when under either (a) or (b) the term is also F O B vessel car or other vehicle the seller must in addition at his own expense and risk load the goods on board If the term is F O B vessel the buyer must name the vessel and in an appropriate case the seller must comply with the provisions of this Article on the form of bill of lading (Section 2—323)

(2) Unless otherwise agreed the term F A S vessel (which means "free alongside") at a named port even though used only in connection with the stated price is a delivery term under which the seller must

(a) at his own expense and risk deliver the goods alongside the vessel in the manner usual in that port and

(b) obtain and tender a receipt for the goods in exchange for which the carrier is under a duty to issue a bill of lading

(3) Unless otherwise agreed in any case falling within subsection (1) (a) or (c) or subsection (2) the buyer must seasonably give any needed instructions for making delivery including when the term is F A S or F O B the loading berth of the vessel and in an appropriate case its name and sailing date The seller may treat the failure of needed instructions as a failure of cooperation under this Article (Section 2—311) He may also at his option move the goods in any reasonable manner preparatory to delivery or shipment

(4) Under the term F O B vessel or F A S unless otherwise agreed the buyer must make payment against tender of the required documents and the seller may not tender nor the buyer demand delivery of the goods in substitution for the documents

Section 2—320 C I F and C & F Terms (1) The term C I F means that the price includes in a lump sum the cost of the goods and the insurance and freight to the named destination The term C & F or C F means that the price so includes cost and freight to the named destination

(2) Unless otherwise agreed and even though used only in connection with the stated price and destination the term C I F destination or its equivalent requires the seller at his own expense and risk to

- (a) put the goods into the possession of a carrier at the port for shipment and obtain a negotiable bill or bills of lading covering the entire transportation to the named destination and
- (b) load the goods and obtain a receipt from the carrier (which may be contained in the bill of lading) showing that the freight has been paid or provided for and
- (c) obtain a policy or certificate of insurance including any war risk insurance of a kind and on terms then current at the port of shipment in the usual amount in the currency of the contract shown to cover the same goods covered by the bill of lading and providing for payment of loss to the order of the buyer or for the account of whom it may concern but the seller may add to the price the amount of the premium for any such war risk insurance and
- (d) prepare an invoice of the goods and procure any other documents required to effect shipment or to comply with the contract and
- (e) forward and tender with commercial promptness all the documents in due form with any indorsement necessary to perfect the buyer's rights

(3) Unless otherwise agreed the term C & F or its equivalent has the same effect and imposes upon the seller the same obligations and risks as a C I F term except the obligation as to insurance

(4) Under the term C I F or C & F unless otherwise agreed the buyer must make payment against tender of the required documents and the seller may not tender nor the buyer demand delivery of the goods in substitution for the documents

Section 2—321 C I F or C & F "Net Landed Weights" "Payment on Arrival" Warranty of Condition on Arrival Under a contract containing a term C I F or C & F

(1) Where the price is based on or is to be adjusted according to "net landed weights" "delivered weights" "out turn" quantity or quality or the like unless otherwise agreed the seller must reasonably estimate the price The payment due on tender of the documents called for by the contract is the amount so estimated but after final adjustment of the price a settlement must be made with commercial promptness

(2) An agreement described in subsection (1) or any warranty of quality or condition of the goods on arrival places upon the seller the risk of ordinary deterioration shrinkage and the like in transportation but has no effect on the place or time of identification to the contract for sale or delivery or on the passing of the risk of loss

(3) Unless otherwise agreed where the contract provides for payment on or after arrival of the goods the seller must before payment allow such preliminary inspection as is feasible but if the goods are lost delivery of the documents and payment are due when the goods should have arrived

Section 2—322 Delivery "Ex-Ship" (1) Unless otherwise agreed a term for delivery of goods "ex-ship" (which means from the carrying vessel) or in equivalent language is not restricted to a particular ship and requires delivery from a ship which has reached a place at the named port of destination where goods of the kind are usually discharged

(2) Under such a term unless otherwise agreed

(a) the seller must discharge all liens arising out of the carriage and furnish the buyer with direction which puts the carrier under a duty to deliver the goods and

(b) the risk of loss does not pass to the buyer until the goods leave the ship's tackle or are otherwise properly unloaded

Section 2—323 Form of Bill of Lading Required in Overseas Shipment "Overseas" (1) Where the contract contemplates overseas shipment and contains a term C I F or C & F or F O B vessel the seller unless otherwise agreed must obtain a negotiable bill of lading stating that the goods have been loaded on board or received for shipment

(2) Where in a case within subsection (1) a bill of lading has been issued in a set of parts unless otherwise agreed if the documents are not to be sent from abroad the buyer may demand tender of the full set otherwise only one part of the bill of lading need be tendered Even if the agreement expressly requires a full set

(a) due tender of a single part is acceptable within the provisions of this Article on cure of improper delivery (subsection (1) of Section 2—508) and

(b) even though the full set is demanded if the documents are sent from abroad the person tendering a single part may nevertheless require payment against such parts as are then available if accompanied by an indemnity which the buyer in good faith deems adequate

(3) A shipment by water or by air or a contract contemplating such shipment is "overseas" insofar as by usage of trade or agreement it is subject to the commercial financing or shipping practices characteristic of international deep water commerce

Section 2—324 "To Arrive" Term Under a term "to arrive" or "no arrival no sale" or the like unless otherwise agreed

(a) the seller must properly ship conforming goods and if they arrive by any means he must tender them on arrival but he assumes no obligation that the goods will arrive unless he has caused the non-arrival and

(b) where without fault of the seller the goods are in part lost or have so deteriorated as no longer to conform to the contract or arrive after the contract time the buyer may proceed as if there had been casualty to unique goods (Section 2—613)

Section 2—325 "Letter of Credit" Term "Confirmed Credit" (1) Failure of the buyer seasonably to furnish an agreed letter of credit is a breach of the contract for sale

(2) After the furnishing of a proper letter of credit the seller may not without seasonably notifying the buyer require payment directly from him

(3) Unless otherwise agreed the term "letter of credit" or "banker's credit" in a contract for sale means an irrevocable credit issued by a financing agency of good repute and where the shipment is overseas of good international repute The term "confirmed credit" means that the credit must also carry the direct obligation of such an agency which does business in the seller's financial market

Section 2—326 Sale on Approval and Sale or Return

(1) A "sale on approval" is a contract for sale under which the goods delivered notwithstanding such use by the buyer as is consistent with their testing or trying out are to remain the sellers' until acceptance by the buyer A "sale or return" is a contract for sale under which the goods even though they conform to the contract or have been accepted by the buyer are subject to return at his option

(2) There is a contract for sale or return when goods are delivered to the buyer for resale and are charged at a fixed price but even though they conform to the contract are returnable against recredit or repayment of their price in full or less minor charges Where the buyer has a place of business at which he deals in goods of the kind involved such words as "on consignment" or "on memorandum" or other words purporting to reserve title to the seller until payment or resale are insufficient as against the buyer's creditors to keep the transaction from being a sale or return unless the seller complies with any applicable law requiring a consignor's interest or the like to be evidenced by a sign or establishes that the buyer is known to be primarily engaged in selling the goods of others or complies with the filing provisions of the Article on Secured Transactions (Article 9)

(3) Any "or return" term of a contract for sale is to be treated as a separate contract for sale within the statute of frauds section of this Article (Section 2—201) and as contradicting the sale aspect of the contract within the provisions of this Article on parol or extrinsic evidence (Section 2—202)

Section 2—327 Special Incidents of Sales on Approval and Sale or Return (1) Under a sale on approval unless otherwise agreed

- (a) although the goods are identified to the contract the risk of loss and the title do not pass to the buyer until acceptance and
- (b) use of the goods consistent with the purpose of trial is not acceptance but failure seasonably to notify the seller of election to return the goods is acceptance if the goods conform to the contract acceptance of any part is acceptance of the whole and
- (c) after due notification of election to return the return is at the seller's risk and expense but a merchant buyer must follow any reasonable instructions

(2) Under a sale or return unless otherwise agreed

- (a) the option to return extends to the whole or any commercial unit of the goods while in substantially their original condition but must be exercised seasonably and
- (b) the return is at the buyer's risk and expense

Section 2—328 Sales by Auction (1) In a sale by auction if goods are put up in lots each lot is the subject of a separate sale

(2) A sale by auction is complete when the auctioneer so announces by the fall of the hammer or in other customary manner Where a bid is made while the hammer is falling in acceptance of a prior bid the auctioneer may in his discretion reopen the bidding or declare the goods sold under the bid on which the hammer was falling

(3) Such a sale is with reserve unless the goods are in explicit terms put up without reserve In an auction with reserve the auctioneer may withdraw the goods or the bidder may retract his bid until the auctioneer's announcement of completion but a bidder's retraction does not revive any previous bid In an auction without reserve the goods cannot be withdrawn nor a bid retracted

(4) If the auctioneer knowingly receive a bid on the seller's behalf or the seller makes or procures such a bid except at a forced sale or where notice has been given that liberty for such bids is reserved the buyer may at his option avoid the sale or take the goods at the price of the last prior good faith bid

Title Creditors and Good Faith Purchasers

Section 2—401 Passing of Title Reservation for Security Limited Application of This Section Each provision of this Article with regard to the rights obligations and remedies of the seller the buyer purchasers or other third parties applies irrespective of title to the goods except where the provision refers to such title Insofar as situations are not covered by the other provisions of this Article and matters concerning title become material the following rules apply

(1) Title to goods cannot pass under a contract for sale prior to their identification to the contract (Section 2—501) Subject to this provision title to goods passes from the seller to the buyer in any manner and on any conditions explicitly agreed on by the parties except that

- (a) any reservation by the seller of the title (property) in goods delivered or otherwise identified to a contract for sale is limited in effect to reservation of a security interest and

- (b) no agreement that a contract for sale is a "cash sale" alters the effects of identification or impairs the rights of good faith purchasers from the buyer

(2) Unless otherwise explicitly agreed title passes to the buyer at the time and place at which the seller completes his performance with reference to the physical delivery of the goods despite any reservation of a security interest and even though document of title is to be delivered at a different time or place and in particular despite any reservation of a security interest by the bill of lading

- (a) if the contract requires or authorizes the seller to send the goods to the buyer but does not require him to deliver them at destination title passes to the buyer at the time and place of shipment but
- (b) if the contract requires delivery at destination title passes on tender there

(3) Unless otherwise explicitly agreed where delivery is to be made without moving the goods

- (a) if the seller is to deliver a document of title title passes at the time when and the place where he delivers such documents or
- (b) if the goods are at the time of contracting already identified and no documents are to be delivered title passes at the time and place of contracting

(4) A rejection or other refusal by the buyer to receive or retain the goods whether or not justified or a justified revocation of acceptance reverts title to the goods in the seller Such reversion occurs by operation of law and is not a "sale"

Section 2—402 Rights of Seller's Creditors Against Sold Goods (1) A creditor of the seller may treat a sale or an identification of goods to a contract for sale as void if as against him a retention of possession by the seller is fraudulent under any rule of law of the state where the goods are situated except that retention of possession in good faith and current course of trade by a merchant-seller for a commercially reasonable time after a sale or identification is not fraudulent

(2) Nothing in this Article shall be deemed to impair the rights of creditors of the sellers where identification to the contract and delivery are made not in current course of trade but in satisfaction of or as security for a pre-existing claim for money security or the like and are made under circumstances which apart from this Article would constitute the transaction a fraudulent transfer or avoidable preference

Section 2—403 Power to Transfer Good Faith Purchase of Goods "Entrusting" (1) A purchaser of goods acquires all title which his transferor has or has power to transfer except that a purchaser of a limited interest acquires rights only to the extent of the interest purchased A person with voidable title has power to transfer a good title to a good faith purchaser for value

(2) Any entrusting of possession of goods to a merchant who deals in goods of that kind gives him power to transfer all rights of the entruster to a buyer in ordinary course of business

(3) "Entrusting" includes any delivery and any acquiescence in retention of possession regardless of any condition expressed between the parties to the delivery or acquiescence and regardless of whether the procurement of the entrusting or the possessor's disposition of the goods have been such as to be larcenous under the criminal law

(4) The rights of other purchasers of goods and of lien creditors are governed by the Articles on Secured Transactions (Article 9) Bulk Transfers (Article 6) and Documents of Title (Article 7)

Part 5

Performance

Section 2—501 Insurable Interest in Goods Manner of Identification of Goods (1) The buyer obtains an insurable interest in goods by identification of existing goods as goods to which the contract refers even though the goods so identified are nonconforming and he has an option to return or reject them Such identification can be made at any time and in any manner explicitly agreed to by the parties In the absence of explicit agreement identification occurs

- (a) when the contract is made if it is for the sale of goods already existing and identified
- (b) if the contract is for the sale of future goods other than those described in paragraph (c) when goods are shipped marked or otherwise designated by the seller as goods to which the contract refers
- (c) when the crops are planted or otherwise become growing crops or the young are conceived if the contract is for the sale of unborn young to be born within twelve months after contracting or for the sale of crops to be harvested within twelve months or the next normal harvest season after contracting whichever is longer

(2) The seller retains an insurable interest in goods so long as title to or any security interest in the goods remains in him and where the identification is by the seller alone he may until default or insolvency or notification to the buyer that the identification is final substitute other goods for those identified

Section 2—502 Buyer's Right to Goods on Seller's Insolvency (1) Subject to subsection (2) and even though the goods have not been shipped a buyer who has paid a part or all of the price of goods in which he has an insurable interest may on making and keeping good a tender of any unpaid portion of their price recover them from the seller if the seller becomes insolvent within ten days after receipt of the first installment on their price

(2) If the identification creating his insurable interest has been made by the buyer he acquires the right to recover the goods only if they conform to the contract for sale

Section 2—503 Manner of Seller's Tender of Delivery (1) Tender of delivery requires that the seller put and hold conforming goods at the buyer's disposition and give the buyer any notification reasonably necessary to enable him to take delivery The manner time and place for tender are determined by the agreement and this Article and in particular

- (a) tender must be at a reasonable hour and if it is of goods they must be kept available for the period reasonably necessary to enable the buyer to take possession but
- (b) unless otherwise agreed the buyer must furnish facilities reasonably suited to the receipt of the goods

(2) Where the case is within the next section respecting shipment tender requires that the seller comply with its provisions

(3) Where the seller is required to deliver at a particular destination tender requires that he comply with subsection (1) and also in any appropriate case tender documents as described in subsections (4) and (5) of this section

(4) Where goods are in the possession of a bailee and are to be delivered without being moved tender requires that the seller either

- (a) tender a negotiable document of title covering such goods or
- (b) procure acknowledgment by the bailee of the buyer's right to possession of the goods

Tender to the buyer of a non-negotiable document of title or of other written direction to the bailee to deliver is sufficient tender unless the buyer seasonably objects and receipt by the bailee of notification of the buyer's rights fixes those rights as against the bailee and all third persons but risk of loss of the goods and of any failure by the bailee to obey the direction remains on the seller until the buyer has had a reasonable time to present it and a refusal by the bailee to obey it defeats the tender

(5) Where the contract requires the seller to deliver documents

- (a) he must tender all such documents in correct form except as provided in this Article with respect to bills of lading in a set (subsection (2) of Section 2—323) and

- (b) tender through customary banking channels is sufficient and dishonor of a draft accompanying the documents constitutes non-acceptance or rejection

Section 2—504 Shipment by Seller Where the seller is required or authorized to send the goods to the buyer and the contract does not require him to deliver them at a particular destination then unless otherwise agreed he must

- (a) put the goods in the possession of a carrier and make such a contract for their transportation as may be reasonable having regard to the nature of the goods and other circumstances of the case and
- (b) obtain and promptly deliver or tender in due form any document necessary to enable the buyer to obtain possession of the goods or otherwise required by the agreement or by usage of trade and
- (c) promptly notify the buyer of the shipment Failure to notify the buyer under paragraph (c) or to make a proper contract under paragraph (a) is a ground for rejection only if material delay or loss ensues

Section 2—505 Seller's Shipment Under Reservation (1) Where the seller has identified goods to the contract by or before shipment

- (a) his procurement of a negotiable bill of lading to his own order or otherwise reserves in him a security interest in the goods but no more His procurement of it to the order of a financing agency or of the buyer indicates in addition only the seller's expectation of transferring that interest to the person named
- (b) a non-negotiable bill of lading to himself or his nominee reserves possession of the goods as security but except in a case of conditional delivery (subsection (2) of Section 2—507) a non-negotiable bill of lading naming the buyer as consignee reserves no security interest even though the seller retains possession of the bill of lading

(2) When shipment by the seller with reservation of a security interest is in violation of the contract for sale it constitutes an improper contract for transportation within the preceding section but impairs neither the rights given to the buyer by shipment and identification of the goods to the contract nor the seller's powers as a holder of a negotiable document

Section 2—506 Rights of Financing Agency (1) A financing agency by making payment or advances against a draft which relates to a shipment of goods acquires to that extent the shipper's rights in the goods and his right to have the draft honored by the buyer in addition to its own rights under the draft and any document of title securing it

(2) The right to reimbursement of a financing agency which has in good faith honored or purchased the draft under commitment to or authority from the buyer is not impaired by subsequent discovery of defects with reference to any relevant document

Section 2—507 Effect of Seller's Tender Delivery on Condition (1) Tender of delivery is a condition to the buyer's duty to accept the goods and unless otherwise agreed to his duty to pay for them Tender entitles the seller to acceptance of the goods and to payment according to the contract

(2) Where payment is due and demanded on the delivery to the buyer of goods or documents of title his right as against the seller to retain or dispose of them is conditional upon his making the payment due

Section 2—508 Cure by Seller of Improper Tender or Delivery Replacement (1) Where any tender or delivery by the seller is rejected because non-conforming and the time for performance has not yet expired the seller may seasonably notify the buyer of his intention to cure and may then within the contract time make a conforming delivery

- (2) Where the buyer rejects a non-conforming tender which the seller had reasonable grounds to believe would be acceptable with or without money allowance the seller may if he seasonably notifies the buyer have a further reasonable time to substitute a conforming tender

Section 2—509 Risk of Loss in the Absence of Breach
(1) Where the contract requires or authorizes the seller to ship the goods

- (a) if it does not require him to deliver at destination the risk of loss passes to the buyer when the goods are duly delivered to the carrier even though the shipment is under reservation but
- (b) if it does require him to deliver at destination the risk of loss passes to the buyer when the goods are there duly tendered

In neither case does risk of loss turn on the time of delivery of documents of title

(2) Where the case is not within subsection (1) and the goods are not held by a bailee to be delivered without being moved (subsection (4) of Section 2—503) the risk of loss passes to the buyer on his receipt of the goods if the seller is a merchant otherwise the risk passes to the buyer on tender of delivery

(3) The provisions of this section are subject to contrary agreement of the parties and to the provisions of this Article on sale on approval (Section 2—327)

Section 2—510 Effect of Breach on Risk of Loss (1) Where a tender or delivery of goods fails to conform to the contract the risk of their loss remains on the seller until cure or acceptance

(2) Where the buyer rightfully revokes acceptance he may to the extent of any deficiency in his effective insurance coverage treat the risk of loss as resting on the seller

(3) Where the buyer as to conforming goods already identified to the contract for sale repudiates or is otherwise in breach before risk of their loss has passed to him the seller may to the extent of any deficiency in his effective insurance coverage treat the risk of loss as resting on the buyer

Section 2—511 Tender of Payment by Buyer Payment by Check (1) Unless otherwise agreed tender of payment is a condition to the seller's duty to tender and complete any delivery

(2) Tender of payment is sufficient when made by any means or in any manner current in the ordinary course of business unless the seller demands payment in legal tender and gives any extension of time reasonably necessary to procure it

(3) Payment by check is conditional and is defeated as between the parties by dishonor of the check on due presentment

Section 2—512 Payment by Buyer Before Inspection (1) Where the contract requires payment before inspection non-conformity of the goods does not excuse the buyer from so making payment unless

- (a) the non-conformity appears without inspection or
- (b) despite tender of the required documents the circumstances would justify injunction against honor under the provisions of this Act (Section 5—111)

(2) Payment pursuant to subsection (1) does not constitute an acceptance of the goods or impair the buyer's right to inspect or any of his remedies

Section 2—513 Buyer's Right to Inspection of Goods

(1) Unless otherwise agreed where the buyer has not previously examined the goods tendered or delivered or identified to the contract for sale he has a right subject to subsection (3) to inspect them at any reasonable place and time and in any reasonable manner When the seller is required or authorized to send the goods to the buyer the inspection may be after their arrival

(2) Expenses of inspection must be borne by the buyer but may be recovered from the seller if the goods do not conform and are rejected

(3) Unless otherwise agreed and subject to the provisions of this Article on C I F contracts (subsection (3) of Section 2—321) the buyer is not entitled to inspect the goods before payment of the price when the contract provides

- (a) for delivery "C O D" or on other like terms or

(b) for payment against documents of title except where such payment is due only after the goods are to become available for inspection

(4) A place or method of inspection fixed by the parties is presumed to be exclusive but unless otherwise expressly agreed it does not postpone identification or shift the place for delivery or for passing the risk of loss If compliance becomes impossible inspection shall be as provided in this section unless the place or method fixed was clearly intended as an indispensable condition failure of which avoids the contract

Section 2—514 When Documents Deliverable on Acceptance When on Payment Unless otherwise agreed documents against which a draft is drawn are to be delivered to the drawee on acceptance of the draft if it is payable more than three days after presentment otherwise only on payment

Section 2—515 Preserving Evidence of Goods in Dispute In furtherance of the adjustment of any claim or dispute

- (a) either party on reasonable notification to the other and for the purpose of ascertaining the facts and preserving evidence has the right to inspect test and sample the goods including such of them as may be in the possession or control of the other and
- (b) the parties may agree to a third party inspection or survey to determine the conformity or condition of the goods and may agree that the findings shall be binding upon them in any subsequent litigation or adjustment

Part 6

Breach Repudiation and Excuse

Section 2—601 Buyer's Rights on Improper Delivery Subject to the provisions of this Article on breach in installment contracts (Section 2—612) and unless otherwise agreed under the sections on contractual limitation of remedy (Section 2—718 and 2—719) if the goods or the tender of delivery fail in any respect to conform to the contract the buyer may

- (a) reject the whole or
- (b) accept the whole or
- (c) accept any commercial unit or units and reject the rest

Section 2—602 Manner and Effect of Rightful Rejection (1) Rejection of goods must be within a reasonable time after their delivery or tender It is ineffective unless the buyer reasonably notifies the seller

(2) Subject to the provisions of the two following sections on rejected goods (Sections 2—603 and 2—604)

- (a) after rejection any exercise of ownership by the buyer with respect to any commercial unit is wrongful as against the seller and
- (b) if the buyer has before rejection taken physical possession of goods in which he does not have a security interest under the provisions of this Article (subsection (3) of Section 2—711) he is under a duty after rejection to hold them with reasonable care at the seller's disposition for a time sufficient to permit the seller to remove them but
- (c) the buyer has no further obligations with regard to goods rightfully rejected

(3) The seller's rights with respect to goods wrongfully rejected are governed by the provisions of this Article on seller's remedies in general (Section 2—703)

Section 2—603 Merchant Buyer's Duties as to Rightfully Rejected Goods (1) Subject to any security interest in the buyer (subsection (3) of Section 2—711) when the seller has no agent or place of business at the market of rejection a merchant buyer is under a duty after rejection of goods in his possession or control to follow any reasonable instructions received from the seller with respect to the goods and in the absence of such instructions to make reasonable efforts to sell them for the seller's account if they are perishable or threaten to decline in value speedily Instructions are not reasonable if on demand indemnity for expenses is not forthcoming

(2) When the buyer sells goods under subsection (1) he is entitled to reimbursement from the seller or out of the proceeds for reasonable expenses of caring for and selling them and if the expenses include no selling commission then to such commission as is usual in the trade or if there is none to a reasonable sum not exceeding ten per cent on the gross proceeds

(3) In complying with this section the buyer is held only to good faith and good faith conduct hereunder is neither acceptance nor conversion nor the basis of an action for damages

Section 2—604 Buyer's Options as to Salvage of Rightfully Rejected Goods Subject to the provisions of the immediately preceding section on perishables if the seller gives no instructions within a reasonable time after notification of rejection the buyer may store the rejected goods for the seller's account or reship them to him or resell them for the seller's account with reimbursement as provided in the preceding section Such action is not acceptance or conversion

Section 2—605 Waiver of Buyer's Objections by Failure to Particularize (1) The buyer's failure to state in connection with rejection a particular defect which is ascertainable by reasonable inspection precludes him from relying on the unstated defect to justify rejection or to establish breach

(a) where the seller could have cured it if stated seasonably or

(b) between merchants when the seller has after rejection made a request in writing for a full and final written statement of all defects on which the buyer proposes to rely

(2) Payment against documents made without reservation of rights precludes recovery of the payment for defects apparent on the face of the documents

Section 2—606 What Constitutes Acceptance of Goods

(1) Acceptance of goods occurs when the buyer

(a) signifies his acceptance to the seller or

(b) fails to make an effective rejection (Subsection (1) of Section 2—602) but such acceptance does not occur until the buyer has had a reasonable opportunity to inspect them or

(c) does any act inconsistent with the seller's ownership but if such act is wrongful as against the seller it is an acceptance only if ratified by him

(2) Acceptance of a part of any commercial unit is acceptance of that entire unit

Section 2—607 Effect of Acceptance Notice of Breach

(1) The buyer must pay at the contract rate for any goods accepted

(2) Acceptance of goods by the buyer precludes rejection of the goods accepted and if made with knowledge of a non-conformity cannot be revoked because of it unless the acceptance was on the reasonable assumption that the non-conformity would be seasonably cured but acceptance does not of itself impair any other remedy provided by this Article for non-conformity

(3) When a non-conforming tender has been accepted the buyer must within a reasonable time after he discovers or should have discovered the breach notify the seller of breach or be barred from any remedy The burden is on the buyer to establish any breach with respect to the goods accepted

Section 2—608 Revocation of Acceptance in Whole or in Part (1) The buyer may revoke his acceptance of a lot or commercial unit whose non-conformity substantially impairs its value to him if he has accepted it

(a) on the reasonable assumption that its non-conformity would be cured and it has not been seasonably cured or

(b) without discovery of such non-conformity if his acceptance was reasonably induced either by the difficulty of discovery before acceptance or by the seller's assurances

(2) Revocation of acceptance must occur within a reasonable time after the buyer discovers or should have discovered the ground for it and before any substantial change in condition of the goods which is not caused by their own defects It is not effective until the buyer notifies the seller of it

(3) A buyer who so revokes has the same rights and duties with regard to the goods involved as if he had rejected them

Section 2—609 Right to Adequate Assurance of Performance (1) A contract for sale imposes an obligation on each party that the other's expectation of receiving due performance will not be impaired When reasonable grounds for insecurity arise with respect to the performance of either party the other may in writing demand adequate assurance of due performance and until he receives such assurance may if commercially reasonable suspend any performance for which he has not already received the agreed return

(2) Between merchants the reasonableness of grounds for insecurity and the adequacy of any assurance offered shall be determined according to commercial standards

(3) Acceptance of any improper delivery or payment does not prejudice the aggrieved party's right to demand adequate assurance of future performance

(4) After receipt of a justified demand failure to provide within a reasonable time not exceeding thirty days such assurance of due performance as is adequate under the circumstances of the particular case is a repudiation of the contract

Section 2—610 Anticipatory Repudiation When either party repudiates the contract with respect to a performance the loss of which will substantially impair the value of the contract to the other the aggrieved party may

(a) resort to any remedy for breach (Sections 2—703 and 2—711) or

(b) await performance by the repudiating party or negotiate for retraction the repudiating party meanwhile being free to retract as provided and limited by the next section and

(c) in either case suspend his own performance

Section 2—611 Retraction of Repudiation (1) Until the repudiating party's next performance is due he can retract his repudiation unless the aggrieved party has since the repudiation cancelled or materially changed his position or otherwise indicated that he considers the repudiation final

(2) Retraction may be by any method which clearly indicates to the aggrieved party that the repudiating party intends to perform but must include any assurance justifiably demanded under the provisions of this Article (Section 2—609)

(3) Retraction reinstates the repudiating party's rights under the contract with due excuse and allowance to the aggrieved party for any delay occasioned by the repudiation

Section 2—612 "Installment Contract" Breach (1) An "installment contract" is one which requires or authorizes the delivery of goods in separate lots to be separately accepted and paid for even though the contract contains a clause "each delivery is a separate contract" or its equivalent

(2) The buyer may reject any installment which is non-conforming if the non-conformity substantially impairs the value of that installment and cannot be cured or if the non-conformity is a defect in the required documents but if the non-conformity does not fall within subsection (3) and the seller gives adequate assurance of its cure the buyer must accept that installment

(3) Whenever non-conformity or default with respect to one or more installments substantially impairs the value of the whole contract there is a breach of the whole But the aggrieved party reinstates the contract if he accepts a non-conforming installment without seasonably notifying of cancellation or if he brings an action with respect only to past installments or demands performance as to future installments

Section 2—613 Casualty to Unique Goods Where the contract relates to identified goods which are irreplaceable or are treated by the parties as unique for purpose of the contract and the goods suffer casualty without fault of either party before the risk of loss passes to the buyer or in a proper case under a "to arrive" term (Section 2—324) then

- (a) if the loss is total the contract is avoided and
- (b) if the loss is partial or the goods have so deteriorated as no longer to conform to the contract the buyer may nevertheless demand inspection and his option either treat the contract as avoided or accept the goods with due allowance from the contract price for the deterioration or deficiency in quantity but without further right against the seller

Section 2—614 Substituted Performance (1) Where without fault of either party the agreed berthing loading or unloading facilities fail or an agreed type of carrier becomes unavailable or the agreed manner of delivery otherwise becomes commercially impracticable but a commercially reasonable substitute is available such substitute performance must be tendered and accepted

(2) If the agreed means or manner of payment fails because of domestic or foreign governmental regulation the seller may withhold or stop delivery unless the buyer provides a means or manner of payment which is commercially a substantial equivalent If delivery has already been taken payment by the means or in the manner provided by the regulation discharges the buyer's obligation unless the regulation is discriminatory oppressive or predatory

Section 2—615 Excuse by failure of Presupposed Conditions Except so far as a seller may have assumed a greater obligation and subject to the preceding section on substituted performance

- (a) delay in delivery or non-delivery in whole or in part by a seller who complies with paragraphs (b) and (c) is not a breach of his duty under a contract for sale if performance as agreed has been made impracticable by the occurrence of a contingency the non-occurrence of which was a basic assumption on which the contract was made or by compliance in good faith with any applicable foreign or domestic governmental regulation or order whether or not it later proves to be invalid

- (b) Where the causes mentioned in paragraph (a) affect only a part of the seller's capacity to perform he must allocate production and deliveries among his customers but may at his option include regular customers not then under contract He may so allocate in any manner which is fair and reasonable

- (c) The seller must notify the buyer seasonably that there will be delay or non-delivery and when allocation is required under paragraph (b) of the estimated quota thus made available for the buyer

Section 2—616 Procedure on Notice Claiming Excuse

(1) Where the buyer receives notification of a material or indefinite delay or an allocation justified under the preceding section he may by written notification to the seller as to any delivery concerned and where the prospective deficiency substantially impairs the value of the whole contract under the provisions of this Article relating to breach of installment contracts (Section 2—612) then also as to the whole

- (a) terminate and thereby discharge any unexecuted portion of the contract or

- (b) modify the contract by agreeing to take his available quota in substitution

(2) If after receipt of such notification from the seller the buyer fails so to modify the contract within a reasonable time not exceeding thirty days the contract lapses with respect to any deliveries affected

(3) The provisions of this section may not be negated by agreement except insofar as the seller has assumed a greater obligation under the preceding section

Part 7

Remedies

Section 2—701 Remedies for Breach of Collateral Contracts Not Impaired Remedies for breach of any obligation or promise collateral or ancillary to a contract for sale are not impaired by the provisions of this Article

Section 2—702 Seller's Remedies on Discovery of Buyer's Insolvency (1) Where the seller discovers the buyer to be insolvent he may

- (a) refuse delivery except for cash including payment for all goods theretofore delivered under the contract and stop delivery under this Article (Section 2—705) and

- (b) subject to the rights of a buyer in ordinary course or other good faith purchaser or lien creditor under this Article (Section 2—403) and within ten days after receipt reclaim any goods received by the buyer on credit but if misrepresentation of solvency has been made to the particular seller in writing within three months before delivery the ten days limitation does not apply

(2) Successful reclamation of goods excludes all other remedies with respect to them

Section 2—703 Seller's Remedies in General Where the buyer wrongfully rejects or revokes acceptance of goods or fail to make a payment due on or before delivery or repudiates with respect to a part or the whole then with respect to any goods directly affected and if the breach is of the whole contract (Section 2—612) then also with respect to the whole undelivered balance the aggrieved seller may

- (a) withhold delivery of such goods
- (b) stop delivery by any bailee as hereafter provided (Section 2—705)
- (c) proceed under the next section respecting goods still unidentified to the contract
- (d) resell and recover damages as hereafter provided (Section 2—706)
- (e) so far as any goods have not been resold recover damages for their non-acceptance (Section 2—708) or in a proper case their price (Section 2—709)
- (f) cancel

Section 2—704 Seller's Right to Identify Goods to the Contract Notwithstanding Breach An aggrieved seller under the preceding section may identify to the contract conforming goods not already identified if at the time he learned of the breach they are in his possession or control If the goods were then in process of procurement or manufacture he may complete the process and identify them to the contract unless in reasonable commercial judgement the completion will materially increase the damages

Section 2—705 Seller's Stoppage of Delivery in Transit or Otherwise (1) The seller may stop delivery of goods in the possession of a carrier or other bailee when he discovers the buyer to be insolvent (Section 2—702) and may stop delivery of carload truckload planeload or larger shipments of express or freight when the buyer wrongfully repudiates or fails to make a payment due before delivery or if for any other reason the seller has a right to withhold or reclaim the goods

(2) As against such buyer the seller may stop delivery until

- (a) receipt of the goods by the buyer or
  - (b) acknowledgment to the buyer by any bailee of the goods except a carrier that the bailee holds the goods for the buyer or
  - (c) such acknowledgment to the buyer by a carrier by reshipment or as warehouseman or
  - (d) negotiation to the buyer of any negotiable document of title covering the goods
- (3) (a) To stop delivery the seller must so notify as to enable bailee by reasonable diligence to prevent delivery of the goods
- (b) After such notification the bailee must hold and deliver the goods according to the directions of the seller but the seller is liable to the bailee for any ensuing charges or damages
- (c) If a negotiable document of title has been issued for goods the bailee is not obliged to obey a notification to stop until surrender of the document

Section 2—706 Seller's Resale Including Contract for Resale (1) Under the conditions stated in Section 2—703 on seller's remedies the seller may resell the goods concerned or the undelivered balance thereof Where the resale is made in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner the seller may recover the difference between the resale price and the contract price together with any incidental damages allowed under the provisions of this Article (Section 2—710) but less any expense saved in consequence of the buyer's breach

(2) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (3) or unless otherwise agreed resale may be at public or private sale including sale by way of one or more contracts to sell or identification to an existing contract of the seller. Sale may be as a unit or in parcels and at any time and place and on any terms but every aspect of the sale including the method manner time place and terms must be commercially reasonable. The resale must be reasonably identified as referring to the broken contract but it is not necessary that the goods be in existence or that any or all of them have been identified to the contract before the breach

(3) Where the resale is at private sale the seller must give the buyer reasonable notification of his intention to resell

(4) Where the resale is at public sale

(a) only identified goods can be sold except where there is a recognized market for a public sale of futures in goods of the kind and

(b) it must be made at a usual place or market for public sale if one is reasonably available and except in the case of goods which are perishable or threaten to decline in value speedily the seller must give the buyer reasonable notice of the time and place of the resale and

(c) if the goods are not to be within the view of those attending the sale the notification of sale must state the place where the goods are located and provide for their reasonable inspection by prospective bidders and

(d) the seller may buy

(5) A purchaser who buys in good faith at a resale takes the goods free of any rights of the original buyer even though the seller fails to comply with one or more of the requirements of this section

(6) The seller is not accountable to the buyer for any profit made on any resale. A person in the position of a seller (Section 2—707) or a buyer who has rightfully rejected or justifiably revoked acceptance must account for any excess over the amount of his security interest as hereinafter defined (subsection (3) of Section 2—711)

Section 2—707 "Person in the Position of a Seller" A buyer's agent or other consignor who has paid or become responsible for the price or anyone who otherwise holds as against the buyer or consignee a security interest in goods similar to that of a seller is a "person in the position of a seller" and may as provided in this Article withhold or stop delivery (Section 2—705) and resell (Section 2—706) and recover incidental damages (Section 2—710)

Section 2—708 Seller's Damages for Non-Acceptance The measure of damages for non-acceptance is the difference between the price current at the time and place for tender and the unpaid contract price together with any incidental damages provided in this Article (Section 2—710) but less any expense saved in consequence of the buyer's breach except that if the foregoing measure of damages is inadequate to put the seller in as good a position as performance would have done then the measure of damages is the profit (including reasonable overhead) which the seller would have made from full performance by the buyer

Section 2—709 Action for the Price (1) When the buyer fails to pay the price as it becomes due the seller may recover together with any incidental damages under the next section the price

(a) of goods accepted or of conforming goods lost or damaged after risk of their loss has passed to the buyer and

(b) of goods identified to the contract if the seller is unable after reasonable effort to resell them at a reasonable price or the circumstances reasonably indicate that such effort will be unavailing

(2) Where the seller sues for the price he must hold for the buyer any goods which have been identified to the contract and are still in his control except that if resale becomes possible he may resell them at any time prior to the collection of the judgment. The net proceeds of any such resale must be credited to the buyer and payment of the judgment entitles him to any goods not resold

(3) After the buyer has wrongfully rejected or revoked acceptance of the goods or has failed to make a payment due or has repudiated (Section 2—610) a seller who is held not entitled to the price under this section shall nevertheless be awarded damages for non-acceptance under the preceding section

Section 2—710 Seller's Incidental Damages Incidental damages to an aggrieved seller include any commercially reasonable charges expenses or commissions incurred in stopping delivery in the transportation care and custody of goods after the buyer's breach in connection with return or resale of the goods or otherwise resulting from the breach

Section 2—711 Buyer's Remedies in General Buyer's Security Interest in Rejected Goods (1) Where the seller fails to make delivery or repudiates or the buyer rightfully rejects or justifiably revokes acceptance then with respect to any goods involved and with respect to the whole if the breach goes to the whole contract (Section 2—612) the buyer may cancel and whether or not he has done so may in addition to recovering so much of the price as has been paid

(a) "cover" and have damages under the next section as to all the goods affected whether or not they have been identified to the contract or

(b) recover damages for non-delivery as provided in this Article (Section 2—713)

(2) Where the seller fails to deliver or repudiates the buyer may also

(a) if the goods have been identified recover them as provided in the Article (Section 2—502) or

(b) in a proper case obtain specific performance or replevy the goods as provided in this Article (Section 2—716)

(3) On rightful rejection or justifiable revocation of acceptance a buyer who has paid all or part of the price has a security interest in goods in his possession or control for the amount paid plus any expenses reasonably incurred in their inspection receipt transportation care and custody and may on notifying the seller of his intention to do so hold such goods and resell them on like manner as an aggrieved seller (Section 2—706)

Section 2—712 "Cover" Buyer's Procurement of Substitute Goods (1) After a breach within the preceding section the buyer may "cover" by making in good faith and without unreasonable delay any reasonable purchase of or contract to purchase goods in substitution for those due from the seller

(2) The buyer may recover from the seller as damages the difference between the cost of cover and the contract price together with any incidental or consequential damages as hereinafter defined (Section 2—715) but less any expense saved in consequence of the seller's breach

(3) Failure of the buyer to effect cover within this section does not bar him from any other remedy

Section 2—713 Buyer's Damages for Non-Delivery (1) The measure of damages for non-delivery is the difference between the price current at the time the buyer learned of the breach and the contract price together with the incidental and consequential damages as provided in this Article (Section 2—715) but less any expense saved in consequence of the seller's breach

(2) Current price is to be determined as of the place for tender or in case of rejection after arrival or revocation of acceptance as of the place of arrival

Section 2—714 Buyer's Damages for Breach in Regard to Accepted Goods (1) Where the buyer has accepted goods and given notification (subsection (3) of Section 2—607) he may recover as damages for any non-conformity of tender the loss resulting in the ordinary course of events from the seller's breach as determined in any manner which is reasonable

(2) The measure of damages for breach of warranty is the difference at the time and place of acceptance between the value of the goods accepted and the value they would have had if they had been as warranted unless special circumstances show proximate damages of a different amount

(3) In a proper case any incidental and consequential damages under the next section may also be recovered

(3) Unless otherwise agreed and except where a draft is drawn under a credit issued by the drawee the drawee of an international sight draft owes the drawer no duty to pay an unadvised draft but if it does so and the draft is genuine may appropriately debit the drawer's account

Section 7—201 Who May Issue a Warehouse Receipt A warehouse receipt may be issued by a warehouseman

Section 7—202 Form of Warehouse Receipt Essential Terms Optional Terms (1) A warehouse receipt need not be in any particular form

(2) Unless a warehouse receipt embodies within its written or printed terms each of the following the warehouseman is liable for any loss caused by the omission to a person injured thereby

- (a) the location of the warehouse where the goods are stored

(3) A warehouseman may insert in his receipt any other terms which are not contrary to the provisions of this Act and do not impair his obligation of delivery (Section 7—403) or his duty of care (Section 7—204) Any contrary provisions shall be ineffective

Section 7—203 Liability for Non-Receipt or Misdescription A party to or purchaser for value in good faith of a document of title other than a bill of lading relying in either case upon the description therein of the goods may recover from the issuer damages caused by the non-receipt or misdescription of the goods except to the extent that the document conspicuously indicates that the issuer does not know whether any part or all of the goods in fact were received or conform to the description as where the description is in terms of marks or labels or kind quantity or condition or the receipt or description is qualified by "said to contain" or the like if such indication be true or the party or purchaser otherwise has notice

Section 7—204 Duty of Care Contractual Limitation of Warehouseman's Liability (1) A warehouseman is liable for any loss or injury to the goods caused by his failure to exercise such care in regard to them as a reasonably careful man would exercise under like circumstances but unless otherwise agreed he is not liable for any loss or injury to the goods which could not have been avoided by the exercise of such care Damages may be limited by a term in the warehouse receipt or storage agreement limiting the amount of liability in case of loss or damage and setting forth a specific liability per article or item or value per unit of weight beyond which the warehouseman shall not be liable Provided however That such liability may on written request of the bailor at the time of signing such storage agreement or within a reasonable time after receipt of the warehouse receipt be increased on part or all of the goods thereunder in which event increased rates may be charged based on such increased valuation but that no such increase shall be permitted contrary to a lawful limitation of liability contained in the warehouseman's tariff if any No such limitation is effective with respect to the warehouseman's liability for conversion to his own use

(2) Reasonable provisions as to the time and manner of presenting claims and instituting actions based on the bailment may be included in the warehouse receipt or tariff

(3) This section does not repeal or change any existing law or rule of law which imposes a higher responsibility upon the warehouseman or invalidates contractual limitations which would be permissible under this Article

Section 7—205 Title Under Warehouse Receipt Defeated in Certain Cases Field Warehouse Receipt (1) a buyer in the ordinary course of business of fungible goods sold and delivered by a warehouseman who is also in the business of buying and selling such goods takes free of any claim under a warehouse receipt even though it has been duly negotiated

(2) Where goods are stored under a field warehousing or similar arrangement on premises which are part of the place of business of the depositor or which are within the depositor's premises or substantially contiguous thereto any security interest in such goods resting on the transfer of a warehouse receipt is subject to the Article on Secured Transactions (Article 9) and can be perfected only as provided in that Article (subsection (2) of Section 9—305)

Section 7—206 Termination of Storage at Warehouseman's Option (1) A warehouseman may on notifying the person on whose account the goods are held and any other person known to claim an interest in the goods require payment of any charges and removal of the goods from the warehouse at the termination of the period of storage fixed by the document or if no period is fixed within a stated period not less than thirty days after the notification If the goods are not removed before the date specified in the notification the warehouseman may sell them in accordance with the provisions of the section on enforcement of a warehouseman's lien (Section 7—210)

(2) If a warehouseman in good faith believes that the goods are about to deteriorate or decline in value to less than the amount of his lien within the time prescribed in subsection (1) for notification advertisement and sale the warehouseman may specify in the notification any reasonable shorter time for removal of the goods and in case the goods are not removed may sell them at public sale held not less than one week after a single advertisement or posting

(3) If as a result of a quality or condition of the goods of which the warehouseman had no notice at the time of deposit the goods are a hazard to other property or to the warehouse or to persons the warehouseman may sell the goods at public or private sale without advertisement on reasonable notification to all persons known to claim an interest in the goods If the warehouseman after a reasonable effort is unable to sell the goods he may dispose of them in any lawful manner and shall incur no liability by reason of such disposition

(4) The warehouseman must deliver the goods to any person entitled to them under this Article upon due demand made at any time prior to sale or other disposition under this section

(5) The warehouseman may satisfy his lien from the proceeds of any sale or disposition under this section but must hold the balance for delivery on the demand of any person to whom he would have been bound to deliver the goods

Section 7—207 Goods Must Be Kept Separate Fungible Goods (1) Unless the warehouse receipt otherwise provides a warehouseman must keep separate the goods covered by each receipt so as to permit at all times identification and delivery of those goods except that different lots of fungible goods may be commingled

(2) Fungible goods so commingled are owned in common by the persons entitled thereto and the warehouseman is severally liable to each owner for that owner's share. Where because of overissue a mass of fungible goods is insufficient to meet all the receipts which the warehouseman has issued against it the persons entitled include all holders to whom overissued receipts have been duly negotiated.

Section 7—208 Altered Warehouse Receipts Where a blank in a negotiable warehouse receipt has been filled in without authority a purchaser for value and without notice of the want of authority may treat the insertion as authorized. Any other unauthorized alteration leaves the receipt enforceable against the issuer according to its original tenor.

Section 7—209 Lien of Warehouseman (1) A warehouseman has a lien on any goods for charges subsequent to the date of issue of the warehouse receipt for storage or transportation (including demurrage and terminal charges) insurance labor or charges present or future in relation to goods covered by the document and for expenses necessary for preservation of the goods or reasonably incurred in their sale pursuant to this Article. But against a purchaser for value of a negotiable warehouse receipt a warehouseman's lien is limited to charges stated in the receipt or if no charges are stated then to a reasonable charge.

(2) The warehouseman may also reserve a security interest for a maximum amount specified on the receipt for charges other than those specified in subsection (1) such as for money advanced and interest.

(3) A warehouseman's lien for charges and expenses under subsection (1) is effective against the bailor or any person entitled to the goods unless the warehouseman had noticed that the bailor lacked authority to subject the goods to such charges and expenses but a security interest under subsection (2) if not effective against a person as to whom the document confers no right in the goods covered by it under Section 7—503 and any security interest reserved by the warehouseman is governed by the Article on Secured Transactions (Article 9).

(4) A warehouseman loses his lien on any goods which he unjustifiably refuses to deliver or which he surrenders.

Section 7—210 Enforcement of Warehouseman's Lien (1) Except as provided in subsection (2) a warehouseman's lien may be enforced by public or private sale of the goods in bloc or in parcels at any time or place and on any terms which are commercially reasonable after notifying all persons known to claim an interest in the goods. Such notification must include a statement of the amount due the nature of the proposed sale and the time and place of any public sale. The fact that a better price could have been obtained by a sale at a different time or in a different method from that selected by the warehouseman is not of itself sufficient to establish that the sale was not made in a commercially reasonable manner. If the warehouseman either sells the goods in the usual manner in any recognized market therefor or if he sells at the price current in such market at the time of his sale or if he has otherwise sold in conformity with commercially reasonable practices among dealers in the type of goods sold he has sold in a commercially reasonable manner. A sale of more goods than apparently necessary to be offered to insure satisfaction of the obligation is not commercially reasonable except in cases covered by the preceding sentence.

(2) A warehouseman's lien on goods other than goods stored by a merchant in the course of his business may be enforced only as follows:

- (a) All persons known to claim an interest in the goods must be notified.
- (b) The notification must be delivered in person or sent by registered letter to the last known address of any person to be notified.
- (c) The notification must include an itemized statement of the claim a description of the goods subject to the lien a demand for payment within a specified time not less than ten days after receipt of the notification and a conspicuous statement that unless the claim is paid within that time the goods will be advertised for sale and sold by auction at a specified time and place.

(d) The sale must conform to the terms of the notification.

(e) The sale must be held at the nearest suitable place to that where the goods are held or stored.

(f) After the expiration of the time given in the notification an advertisement of the sale must be published once a week for two weeks consecutively in a newspaper of general circulation where the sale is to be held. The advertisement must include a description of the goods the name of the person on whose account they are being held and the time and place of the sale. The sale must take place at least fifteen days after the first publication. If there is no newspaper of general circulation where the sale is to be held the advertisement must be posted at least ten days before the sale in not less than six conspicuous places in the neighborhood of the proposed sale.

(3) Before any sale pursuant to this section any person claiming a right in the goods may pay the amount necessary to satisfy the lien and the reasonable expenses incurred under this section. In that event the goods must not be sold but must be returned by the warehouseman subject to the terms of the receipt and this Article.

(4) The warehouseman is liable for loss resulting from failure to comply with the requirements for sale under this section and in case of willful violation is liable for conversion. The warehouseman may bid at any public sale pursuant to this section.

(5) A purchaser in good faith of goods sold to enforce a warehouseman's lien takes the goods free of any rights of persons against whom the lien was valid despite non-compliance by the warehouseman with the requirements of this section.

(6) The warehouseman may satisfy his lien from the proceeds of any sale pursuant to this section but must hold the balance if any for delivery on demand to any person to whom he would have been bound to deliver the goods.

(7) The rights provided by this section shall be in addition to all other rights allowed by law to a creditor against his debtor.

(8) Where a lien is on goods stored by a merchant in the course of his business the lien may be enforced in accordance with either subsection (1) or (2).

Section 7—303 Diversion Reconsignment Change of Instructions (1) Unless the bill of lading otherwise provides the carrier may deliver the goods to a person or destination other than that stated in the bill or may otherwise dispose of the goods on instructions from

- (a) the holder of a negotiable bill or
- (b) the consignor on a non-negotiable bill or
- (c) the consignee on a non-negotiable bill in the absence of contrary instructions from the consignor if the goods have arrived at billed destination or if the consignee is in possession of the bill or
- (d) the consignee on a non-negotiable bill if he owns the goods or is entitled as against the consignor to dispose of them

(4) Any person who negotiates or transfers a single part of a bill of lading drawn in a set is liable to holders of that part if it were the whole set

(5) The bailee is obliged to deliver in accordance with Part 4 of this Article against the first presented part of a bill of lading lawfully drawn in a set Such delivery discharges the bailee's obligation on the whole bill

Section 7—305 Destination Bills (1) Instead of issuing a bill of lading to the consignor at the place of shipment a carrier may at the request of the consignor procure the bill to be issued at destination or at any other place designated in the request

(2) Upon request of anyone entitled as against the carrier to control the goods while in transit and on surrender of any outstanding bill of lading or other receipt covering such goods the issuer may procure a substitute bill to be issued at any place designated in the request

Section 7—306 Altered Bills of Lading An unauthorized alteration or filling in of a blank in a bill of lading leaves the bill enforceable according to its original tenor

Section 7—307 Lien of Carrier (1) A carrier has a lien on any goods for charges subsequent to the date of its receipt of the goods for storage or transportation (including demurrage and terminal charges) and for expenses necessary for preservation of the goods or incident to their transportation or reasonably incurred in their sale pursuant to this Article But against the purchaser for value of a negotiable bill of lading a carrier's lien is limited to charges stated in the bill or the applicable tariffs or if no charges are stated then to a reasonable charge

(2) A carrier's lien for charges and expenses under subsection (1) is effective against the consignor or any person entitled to the goods unless the carrier had notice that the consignor lacked authority to subject the goods to such charges and expenses

Section 7—309 Duty of Care Contractual Limitation of Carrier's Liability (1) A carrier who issues a bill of lading whether negotiable or non-negotiable must exercise the degree of care in relation to the goods which a reasonably careful man would exercise under like circumstances but the damages may be limited by a provision that the carrier's liability shall not exceed a value stated in the document if the carrier's rates vary with value and the consignor by the carrier's tariff is afforded an opportunity to declare a higher value or a value as lawfully provided in the tariff or where no tariff is filed he is otherwise advised of such opportunity but no such limitation is effective with respect to the carrier's liability for conversion to its own use

(2) Reasonable provisions as to the time and manner of presenting claims and instituting actions based on the shipment may be included in a bill of lading or tariff

(3) This section does not repeal or change any existing law or rule of law which imposes a higher responsibility upon carriers or invalidates contractual limitations which would be permissible under this Article

Part 4

Section 7—401 Irregularities in Issue of Receipt or Bill or Conduct of Issuer The obligations imposed by this Article on an issuer apply to a document of title regardless of the fact that

- (a) the document may not comply with the requirements of this Article or of any other law or regulation regarding its issue form or content or
- (b) the issuer may have violated laws regulating the conduct of his business or
- (c) the goods covered by the document were owned by the bailee at the time the document was issued or
- (d) if it is a warehouse receipt the person issuing does not come within the definition of warehouseman

Section 7—402 Duplicate Receipt or Bill Overissue Neither a duplicate nor any other document of title purporting to cover goods already represented by an outstanding document of the same issuer confers any right in the goods except as provided in the case of bills in a set overissue of documents for fungible goods and substitutes for lost stolen or destroyed documents But the issuer is liable for damages resulting from his overissue or failure to identify a duplicate document as such by conspicuous notation on its face

Section 7—403 Obligation of Warehouseman or Carrier to Deliver Excuse (1) The bailee must deliver the goods to a person entitled under the document who complies with subsection (2) unless and to the extent that the bailee establishes any of the following

- (a) delivery of the goods to a person whose receipt was rightful as against the claimant
- (b) damage to or loss or destruction of the goods for which the bailee is not liable
- (c) previous sale or other disposition of the goods in lawful enforcement of a lien or on warehouseman's lawful termination of storage
- (d) the exercise by a seller of his right to stop delivery pursuant to the provisions of the Article on Sales (Section 2—705)
- (e) a diversion reconsignment or other disposition pursuant to the provisions of this Article (Section 7—303) or tariff regulating such right
- (f) release satisfaction or any other fact affording a personal defense against the claimant

(2) A person claiming goods covered by a document of title must at the bailee's request satisfy the bailee's lien and unless the person claiming is one against whom the document confers no right under Section 7—503 (1) surrender for cancellation or notation of partial deliveries any outstanding negotiable document covering the goods

(3) A bailee who delivers goods covered by an outstanding negotiable document without cancelling the document or conspicuously noting partial deliveries thereon also becomes liable for delivery of goods called for by the document to any person to whom the document is duly negotiated unless the person to whom the goods were delivered is one against whom the document confers no right under Section 7—503 (1)

(4) "Person entitled under the document" means holder in the case of a negotiable document or the person to whom delivery is to be made by the terms of or pursuant to written instructions under a non-negotiable document

Section 7—404 No Liability for Good Faith Delivery Pursuant to Receipt or Bill A bailee who in good faith including observance of reasonable commercial standards has received goods and delivered them according to the terms of the document of title is not liable although the person from whom he received the goods had no authority to dispose of them

Part 5

Warehouse Receipts and Bills of Lading Negotiation and Transfer

Section 7—501 Form of Negotiation and Requirements of "Due Negotiations" (1) A negotiable document of title running to the order of a named person is negotiable by his indorsement and delivery After his indorsement in blank or to bearer any person can negotiate it by delivery alone

(2) (a) A negotiable document of title is also negotiated by delivery alone when by its original terms it runs to bearer

(b) when a document running to the order of a named person is delivered to him the effect is the same as if the document had been negotiated

(3) Negotiation of a negotiable document of title after special indorsement requires indorsement by the special indorsee as well as delivery

(4) A negotiable document of title is "duly negotiated" when it is negotiated in the manner stated in this section to a holder who purchases it in good faith including observance of reasonable commercial standards and for value unless it is established that the negotiation is not in the current course of business or financing but a bailee may deliver the goods covered by the document of title to a person in possession of the document of title by the terms of which the goods are deliverable to his order or which has been negotiated to him in the manner provided in subsections (1) (2) or (3) of this section

(5) Indorsement of a non-negotiable document neither makes it negotiable nor adds to the transferee's rights

(6) The naming in a negotiable bill of a person to be notified of the arrival of the goods does not limit the negotiability of the bill nor constitute notice to a purchaser thereof of any interest of such person in the goods

Section 7—502 Rights Acquired by Due Negotiation (1) Subject to the following section and to the provisions of Section 7—205 on fungible goods and field warehouse receipts a holder to whom a negotiable document of title has been duly negotiated acquires thereby

- (a) title to the document
- (b) title to the goods
- (c) all rights accruing under the law of agency or estoppel and
- (d) the direct obligation of the bailee to hold or deliver the goods according to the terms of the document free of any defense or claims by him not apparent on its face

But a holder of a delivery order until it has been accepted by the bailee to whom it is addressed acquires rights only against the issuer of the delivery order

(2) Title and rights so acquired are not defeated by any stoppage of the goods represented by the document or by surrender of such goods by the bailee and are not impaired even though the negotiation or any prior negotiation constituted a breach of duty or even though any person has been deprived of possession of the document by misrepresentation fraud accident mistake duress loss theft or conversion or even though a previous sale or other transfer of the goods or document has been made to a third person

Section 7—503 Document of Title to Goods Defeated in Certain Cases A document of title confers no right in goods against a person who before issuance of the document had a legal interest in them and who neither delivered nor entrusted them to the person procuring the document with power of disposition or pursuant to a contract for sale nor acquiesced in his procurement of any document of title

(2) Title to goods based upon a delivery order is subject to the rights of anyone to whom a negotiable warehouse receipt or bill of lading covering such goods has been duly negotiated Title to goods based upon a bill of lading issued to a freight forwarder is subject to the rights of anyone to whom a bill issued by the freight forwarder covering such goods has been duly negotiated but delivery by the carrier against surrender of its bill of lading in accordance with Part 4 of this Article discharges the carrier's obligation to deliver

Section 7—504 Rights Acquired in the Absence of Due Negotiation Effect of Diversion Seller's Stoppage of Delivery (1) A transferee of a document whether negotiable or non-negotiable to whom the document has been delivered but not duly negotiated acquires the title and rights which his transferor had or had actual authority to convey

(2) In the case of a non-negotiable document until but not after the bailee receives notification of the transfer the rights of the transferee may be defeated by those creditors of the transferor who could treat the sale as void under Section 2—402 or by a purchaser from the transferor under Section 2—403 or by good faith dealings of the bailee with the transferor

(3) A diversion or other change of shipping instructions by the consignor in a non-negotiable bill of lading which causes the bailee not to deliver to the consignee defeats the consignee's title to the goods if they have been delivered to a buyer in ordinary course of trade and in any event defeats the consignee's rights against the bailee

(4) Delivery pursuant to a non-negotiable document may be stopped by a seller under Section 2—705 and subject to the requirement of due notification there provided A bailee honoring the seller's instructions is entitled to be indemnified by the seller against any resulting loss or expense

Section 7—505 Indorser Not a Guarantor for Other Parties The indorsement of a document of title issued by a bailee does not make the indorser liable for any default by the bailee or by previous indorsers

Section 7—506 Delivery Without Indorsement Right to Compel Indorsement The transferee of a negotiable document of title has a specifically enforceable right to have his transferor supply any necessary indorsement but the transfer becomes a negotiation only as of the time the indorsement is supplied

Section 7—507 Warranties on Negotiation or Transfer of Receipt or Bill Where a person negotiates or transfers a document of title for value otherwise than as a mere intermediary under the next following section then unless otherwise agreed he warrants to his purchaser in addition to any warranty made in selling the goods

- (a) that the document is genuine and
- (b) that he has no knowledge of any fact which would impair its validity or worth and
- (c) that his negotiation or transfer is rightful and fully effective with respect to the title to the document and the goods it represents

Section 7—508 Warranties of Collecting Bank as to Documents A collecting bank or other intermediary known to be entrusted with documents on behalf of another or with collection of a draft or other claim against delivery of documents warrants by such delivery of the documents only its own good faith and authority This rule applies even though the intermediary has purchased or made advances against the claim or draft to be collected

Section 7—509 Receipt or Bill When Adequate Compliance With Commercial Contract The question whether a document is adequate to fulfill the obligations of a contract for sale or the conditions of a credit is governed by the Articles on Sales (Article 2) and on Documentary Letters of Credit (Article 5)

Part 6

Warehouse Receipts and Bills of Lading Miscellaneous Provisions

Section 7—601 Lost and Missing Documents (1) If a document has been lost stolen or destroyed a court may order delivery of the goods or issuance of a substitute document and the bailee may without liability to any person comply with such order If the document was negotiable the claimant must post security approved by the court to indemnify any person who may suffer loss as a result of non-surrender of the document If the document was not negotiable such security may be required at the discretion of the court The court may also in its discretion order payment of the bailee's reasonable costs and counsel fees

(2) A bailee who without court order delivers goods to a person claiming under a missing negotiable document is liable to any person injured thereby and if the delivery is not in good faith becomes liable for conversion In the case of a bill of lading action by the carrier in good faith in accordance with the official classification and tariff is not conversion If the missing document was a negotiable warehouse receipt the claimant must post security with the warehouseman in an amount at least double the value of the goods at the time of posting to indemnify the warehouseman against any loss by reason of the delivery of the goods

Section 7—602 Attachment of Goods Covered by a Negotiable Document No lien attaches by virtue of any judicial process to goods in the possession of a bailee for which a negotiable document of title is outstanding unless the document be first surrendered to the bailee or its negotiation enjoined except where the document was originally issued upon delivery of the goods by a person who had no power to dispose of them The bailee shall not be compelled to deliver the goods pursuant to process until the document is surrendered to him or impounded by the court One who purchases the document for value without notice of the process or injunction takes free of the lien imposed by judicial process

Section 7—603 Conflicting Claims Interpleader If more than one person claims title or possession of the goods the bailee is excused from delivering until he has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claims or to bring an action to compel all claimants to interplead either in defending an action for non-delivery of the goods or by original action whichever is appropriate

Issue—Issuer

Section 8—201 "Issuer" With respect to obligations on or defenses to a security "issuer" includes a person who

(a) places or authorizes the placing of his name on a security (otherwise than as authenticating trustee registrar transfer agent or the like) to evidence that it represents a share participation or other interest in his property or in an enterprise or to evidence his duty to perform the principal obligation represented by the security or

(b) otherwise undertakes to perform the principal obligation represented by the security or

(c) directly or indirectly creates fractional interests in rights of property which are evidenced by securities or

(d) becomes responsible for or in place of any other person described as an issuer in this section

(2) (a) A security other than one issued by a government or governmental agency or unit even though issued with a defect going to its validity is valid in the hands of a purchaser for value and without notice of the particular defect unless the defect involves a violation of constitutional provisions in which case the security is valid in the hands of a subsequent purchaser for value and without notice of the defect

(b) The rule of subparagraph (a) applies to an issuer which is a government or governmental agency or unit only if either there has been substantial compliance with the legal requirements governing the issue or the issuer has received substantial consideration for the issue as a whole or for the particular security and a stated purpose of the issue is one for which the issuer has power to borrow money or issue the security

(3) Except as otherwise provided in the case of certain unauthorized signatures on issue (Section 8—205) lack of genuineness of a security is a complete defense even against a purchaser for value and without notice

(4) All other defenses of the issuer including non-delivery and conditional delivery of the security are ineffective against a purchaser for value who has taken without notice of the particular defense

(5) With respect to notice of a defect or defense a purchaser is charged with notice of information set forth on the security itself but a reference on the security to another instrument indenture or document or to a constitution statute ordinance rule regulation order or the like does not of itself charge a purchaser for value with such notice even though the security expressly states that a person accepting it admits such notice

(6) Nothing in this section shall be construed to affect the right of a party to a "when as and if issued" or a "when distributed" contract to cancel the contract in the event of a material change in the character of the security which is the subject of the contract or in the plan or arrangement pursuant to which such security is to be issued or distributed

Section 8—203 Staleness as Notice of Defects or Irregularities in Issue (1) After an act or event which creates a right to immediate performance of the principal obligation evidenced by the security or which requires that the security be presented or surrendered for redemption or exchange a purchaser is charged with notice of any defect or irregularity in its issue

(a) If the act or event is one requiring the payment of moneys or the delivery of securities or both on presentation or surrender of the security and such funds or securities are available and he takes the security more than one year after the date set for payment or exchange and

(b) in any other case if he takes the security more than two years after the date set for surrender or presentation or the date on which such performance became due

(2) A call which has been revoked is not within subsection (1)

Section 8—204 Effect of Issuer's Restrictions on Transfer A restriction on transfer imposed by the issuer even though otherwise lawful is ineffective unless noted conspicuously on the security

Section 8—205 Effect of Unauthorized Signature on Issue An unauthorized signature placed on a security prior to or in the course of issue is ineffective except that if the signing has been done by a person entrusted by the issuer with the signing of the security or of similar securities or their immediate preparation for signing or by an employee entrusted with their responsible handling the signature is effective in favor of a purchaser for value and without notice of the lack of authority

Section 8—206 Completion or Alteration of Instrument (1) Where a security contains the signatures necessary to its issue or transfer but is incomplete in any other respect

(a) any person may complete it by filling in the blanks as authorized and

(b) even though the blanks are incorrectly filled in the security as completed is enforceable by a purchaser who took it for value and without notice of such incorrectness

(2) A complete security which has been improperly altered even though fraudulently remains enforceable but only according to its original terms

Section 8—207 Rights of Issuer With Respect to Registered Owners (1) Prior to due presentment for registration of transfer of a security in registered form the issuer or indenture trustee may treat the registered owner as the person exclusively entitled to vote to receive notifications and otherwise to exercise all the rights and powers of an owner

(2) Nothing in this Article shall be construed to affect the liability of the registered owner of a security for calls assessments or the like

Section 8—208 Effect of Signature of Authenticating Trustee Registrar or Transfer Agent (1) A person placing his signature upon a security as authenticating trustee registrar transfer agent or the like warrants to a purchaser for value without notice of the particular defect that

- (a) the security is genuine and in proper form and
  - (b) his own participation in the issue of the security is within his capacity and within the scope of the authorization received by him from the issuer and
  - (c) the security is within the amount specified in such authorization
- (2) Unless otherwise agreed a person by so placing his signature does not assume responsibility for the validity of the security in other respects

Part 3

Purchase

Section 8—301 Rights Acquired by Purchaser Title Acquired by Bona Fide Purchaser (1) Upon delivery of a security the purchaser acquires the rights in the security which his transferor had or had actual authority to convey except that a purchaser who has himself been a party to any fraud or illegality affecting the instrument or who as a prior holder had notice of a claim against it cannot improve his position by taking from a later bona fide purchaser

(2) A bona fide purchaser in addition to acquiring the rights of a purchaser acquires also a perfect title to the security

(3) A purchaser of a limited interest acquires rights only to the extent of the interest purchased

Section 8—302 "Bona Fide Purchaser" A "bona fide purchaser" is a purchaser for value and without notice of any claims of ownership who takes delivery of a security in bearer form or of one in registered form issued to him or indorsed to him or in blank

Section 8—303 "Value" "Value" means

- (a) any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract including the extension of immediately available credit whether or not drawn upon and whether or not a charge-back is provided for in the event of difficulties in collection or
- (b) taking a security as collateral for or as total or partial satisfaction of a pre-existing claim or
- (c) taking delivery pursuant to a pre-existing contract to purchase

Section 8—304 Notice to Purchaser of Claims of Ownership (1) A purchaser (including a broker for seller or buyer) of a security is charged with notice of claims of ownership if

- (a) the security whether in bearer or registered form has been indorsed "for collection" or "for surrender" or for some other purpose not involving transfer or
- (b) he purchases the security within six months after he has received notification that it has been lost or stolen or
- (c) the security is in bearer form and has on it an unambiguous statement that it is the property of a person other than the transferor The mere writing of a name on a security is not such a statement

(2) The fact that the purchaser (including a broker for seller or buyer) has notice that the registered owner holds the security for a third person or that the security is registered in the name of a fiduciary does not create a duty of inquiry into the rightfulness of the transfer or constitute notice of claims of ownership If however the proceeds of the purchase are placed by the purchaser in the individual account of the fiduciary or are made payable in cash or to the fiduciary individually or the purchaser has reason to know that such proceeds are being used or that the transaction is for the individual benefit of the fiduciary the purchaser is charged with notice of claims of ownership

Section 8—305 Staleness as Notice of Claims of Ownership An act or event which creates a right to immediate performance of the principal obligation evidenced by the security or which requires that the security be presented or surrendered for redemption or exchange does not of itself constitute any notice of claims of ownership except in the case of a purchase

- (a) after one year from any date set for a required presentment or surrender for redemption or exchange or
  - (b) if funds are available for payment after six months from any date set for payment of money against presentation or surrender of the security
- Section 8—306 Warranties to Purchaser for Value (1) Unless otherwise agreed a person by transferring a security to a purchaser for value warrants only that
- (a) his transfer is effective and rightful and
  - (b) the security is genuine and has not been materially altered and
  - (c) he knows no fact which might impair the validity of the security

(2) Where a security is delivered by an intermediary known to be entrusted with delivery of the security on behalf of another or with collection of a draft or other claim against such delivery the intermediary by such delivery warrants only his own good faith and that he has authority from his principal even though he has purchased or made advances against the claim to be collected against the delivery A broker is not an intermediary within the meaning of this subsection in a transaction in which he has bought or sold the security for another

Section 8—307 Effect of Delivery Without Indorsement Right to Compel Indorsement Where a security in registered form has been delivered to a purchaser without a necessary indorsement he may become a bona fide purchaser only as of the time the indorsement is supplied but against the transfer the transfer is complete upon delivery and the purchaser has a specifically enforceable right to have any necessary indorsement supplied

Section 8—308 Indorsement How Made Special Indorsement Indorser Not a Guarantor Partial Assignment

(1) An indorsement of a security in registered form is made when the person specified by the terms of the instrument or by special indorsement to be entitled to the security signs on it or on a separate document an assignment or transfer of the security or a power to assign or transfer it or when the signature of such person is written without more upon the back of the security

(2) An indorsement may be in blank or special An indorsement in blank includes an indorsement to bearer A special indorsement specifies the person to whom the security is to be transferred A holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement

(3) Unless otherwise agreed the indorser by his indorsement assumes no obligation that the instrument will be honored by the issuer

(4) When an indorsement purports to be only of part of the security the transfer may be registered in accordance with the indorsement but delivery of a security so indorsed can not make the transferee a bona fide purchaser

Section 8—309 Effect of Indorsement Without Delivery An indorsement of a security whether special or in blank does not constitute a transfer and does not become effective until delivery of the security on which it appears or if the indorsement is on a separate document until delivery of both the document and the security

Section 8—310 Indorsement of Security in Bearer Form An indorsement of a security in bearer form may give notice of claims of ownership (Section 8—304) but does not otherwise affect any right to registration the holder may possess

Section 8—311 Effect of Unauthorized Indorsement Unless the owner has affirmed an unauthorized indorsement or is otherwise estopped from asserting its ineffectiveness

- (a) he may assert its ineffectiveness against the issuer or any purchaser other than a purchaser for value and without notice of claims of ownership who has in good faith received a new security on registration of transfer of the security so indorsed and

- (b) an issuer who registers the transfer of a security so indorsed is subject to liability for improper registration (Section 8—404)

Section 8—312 Effect of Guaranteeing Signature or Indorsement (1) Any person guaranteeing a signature as being that of an indorser of a security warrants to any person taking or dealing with the security in reliance on the guaranteed signature that

- (a) the signature is not forged and
- (b) the signer is the holder or has authority to sign in the name of the holder and
- (c) the signer has legal capacity to sign

But the guarantor does not warrant the rightfulness of the particular transfer

(2) Any person may guarantee an indorsement of a security and by so doing warrants not only the signature but also the rightfulness of the particular transfer

(3) The guarantor of a signature or an indorsement shall be liable to any person including an issuer who registers a transfer in reliance on the guarantee for any loss resulting from breach of the warranties stated in this section but no issuer may require an indorsement guarantee as a condition to registration or transfer of a security

Section 8—313 When Delivery to the Purchaser Occurs Purchaser's Broker as Holder (1) Delivery to a purchaser occurs when

- (a) he or a person designated by him acquires possession of a security or
- (b) his broker acquires possession of a security specially indorsed to or issued in the name of the purchaser or
- (c) his broker sends him confirmation of the purchase and also by book entry otherwise identifies a specific security in the broker's possession as belonging to the purchaser or
- (d) with respect to an identified security to be delivered while still in the possession of a third person when that person acknowledges that he holds for the purchaser

(2) Except as specified in subparagraphs (b) and (c) subsection (1) the purchaser is not the holder of securities held for him by his broker despite a confirmation of purchase and a book entry and other indication that the security is part of a fungible bulk held for customers and despite the customer's acquisition of a proportionate property interest in the fungible bulk

Section 8—314 Duty to Deliver When Completed (1) Unless otherwise agreed where a sale of a security is made through an exchange or otherwise through brokers

- (a) the selling customer fulfills his duty to deliver when he places such a security in the possession of the selling broker or of a person designated by the broker or if requested causes an acknowledgment that it is held for the selling broker to be made to him and
- (b) the selling broker including a correspondent broker acting for a selling customer fulfills his duty to deliver by placing the security or the like security in the possession of the buying broker or a person designated by him or by effecting clearance of the sale in accordance with the rules of the exchange on which the transaction took place

(2) Except as otherwise provided in this section and unless otherwise agreed a transferor's duty to deliver a security under a contract of purchase is not fulfilled until he places the security in form to be further negotiated by the purchaser in the possession of the purchaser or sends it to him or to a person designated by him or at the purchaser's request causing an acknowledgment that it is held for the purchaser to be made to him

Section 8—315 Action Against Purchaser Based Upon Wrongful Transfer (1) Any person against whom the transfer of a security is wrongful for any reason including his incapacity may against anyone except a bona fide purchaser reclaim possession of the security or obtain possession of any new security evidencing all or part of the same rights or have damages

(2) If the transfer is wrongful because of an unauthorized indorsement the owner may also reclaim or obtain possession of the security or new security even from a bona fide purchaser if the ineffectiveness of the purported indorsement can be asserted against him under the provisions of this Article on unauthorized indorsements (Section 8—311)

(3) The right to obtain or reclaim possession of a security may be specifically enforced and its transfer enjoined and the security impounded pending the litigation

Section 8—316 Purchaser's Right to Requisites for Registration of Transfer on Books (1) Unless otherwise agreed the transferor must on due demand supply his purchaser with any proof of his authority to transfer or with any other requisite which may be necessary to obtain registration of the transfer of the security but if the transfer is not for value a transferor need not do so unless the purchaser furnishes the necessary expenses Failure to comply with the demand gives the purchaser the right to reject or rescind the transfer

(2) Unless otherwise agreed the purchaser's demand for such requisites must be made within a reasonable time not exceeding three months from his receipt of the security

Section 8—317 Attachment or Levy Upon Security (1) No attachment or levy upon a security or any share or other interest evidenced thereby which is outstanding shall be valid until the security is actually seized by the officer making the attachment or levy but a security which has been surrendered to the issuer may be attached or levied upon at the source

(2) A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a security shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction by injunction or otherwise in reaching such security or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process

Section 8—318 No Conversion by Good Faith Delivery An agent or bailee who in good faith (including observance of reasonable commercial standards if he is in the business of buying selling or otherwise dealing with securities) has received securities and sold pledged or delivered them according to the instructions of his principal is not liable for conversion although the principal had no right to dispose of them

Section 8—319 Statute of Frauds A contract for the sale of securities is not enforceable by way of action or defense unless

- (a) there is some writing sufficient to indicate that a contract for sale has been made and signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his authorized agent or broker or
- (b) there has been delivery of the security or payment has been made out only to the extent of such delivery or payment or
- (c) confirmation of the sale or purchase has been received by the party against whom enforcement is sought and he has failed to send written objection to its contents within ten days after it is received or
- (d) the party against whom enforcement is sought admits in his pleading or otherwise in court that in fact a contract for sale was made

Part 4

Registration

Section 8—401 Duty of Issuer to Register Transfer (1) Where a person presents a security to the issuer with the request to register transfer of the security the issuer must register the transfer as requested if

- (a) the security is fully indorsed for transfer in conformity with the following section and
- (b) the issuer has no knowledge of the unrightfulness of the transfer and no duty to inquire into its rightfulness (Section 8—403) and
- (c) proof is submitted of payment or waiver of any taxes applicable to the transfer or of consent to transfer

(2) Where the issuer has registered a transfer pursuant to this section he is not liable to any person suffering loss as a result of such registration

Section 8—402 Sufficiency of Indorsement (1) A security is fully indorsed for transfer when the indorsements on or with it are sufficient to make the person presenting it a holder of the security

(2) Unless the issuer has notice that the person signing the indorsement has no power to make the indorsement the issuer shall not require more evidence than the following to establish the necessary indorsement If the person whose indorsement is required (Subsection (1) Section 8—308) is at the time of signing

- (b) an infant or an adult under guardianship an indorsement signed by his guardian a guarantee of that signature and proof that the person signing was such guardian at the date of signing

It ceases to be a perfected security interest and becomes unperfected at the end of the twenty-one day period unless within that period the collateral has come into the possession of the secured party

(2) A secured party who has possession of instruments or documents may turn over such collateral to the debtor and nevertheless continue to have a perfected security interest under this section for twenty-one days from the time of turning over

The security interest in proceeds is a perfected security interest if the interest in the original collateral was perfected but it ceases to be a perfected security interest and becomes unperfected ten days after receipt of the proceeds by the debtor unless

(a) the financing statement covering the original collateral also includes the proceeds received on disposition of such collateral or

(b) it is perfected before the expiration of the ten day period

(2) In insolvency proceedings a secured party with a perfected security interest has a right to the cash and bank accounts of the debtor equal to the amount of cash proceeds received by the debtor within ten days before the institution of such proceedings less the amount of such proceeds received by the debtor and paid over to the secured party during the ten day period but no other right to or lien on cash proceeds not subjected to his control before insolvency proceedings are instituted. Nothing in this subsection shall affect any right of set-off which might otherwise exist

"Cash proceeds" include checks and money received on disposition of collateral or on collection or transfer of non-cash proceeds but not notes time chattel paper accounts and goods received in exchange

(4) If the proceeds resulting from a sale or other disposition of inventory consists of chattel paper nothing in this section prevents a transfer thereof for new value in the ordinary course of business and the security interest or any other right of any transferee shall have priority over the security interest based on a claim to proceeds under subsection (1)

(a) As between the debtor and a secured party to whom the indebtedness originally secured by the collateral has not been paid the original security interest continues

(c) The security interest of an unpaid transferee under (b) shall have priority over a security interest claimed under (a)

Section 9—307 Buyers of Goods (1) In the case of inventory and in the case of other goods as to which the secured party files a financing statement in which he claims a security interest in proceeds a buyer in ordinary course of business takes free of a security interest even though perfected and even though the buyers knows of the terms of the security agreement

(2) In the case of consumer goods and in the case of farm equipment having an original purchase price not in excess of $2500 (other than goods or equipment which are part of the realty see Section 9—313) a buyer takes free of a security interest even though perfected if he buys without knowledge of the security interest for value and for his own personal family or household purposes or his own farming operations unless prior to the purchase the secured party has filed a financing statement covering such goods

Section 9—308 Security in Chattel Paper Without Transfer of Possession Filing with regard to chattel paper not transferred to the possession of the secured party perfects a security interest in such paper against all creditors of the debtor and all transferees except a purchaser for new value in the ordinary course of his business who takes possession of the paper and who does not have actual knowledge that the specific chattel paper is subject to a security interest

Section 9—309 Purchasers of Instruments and Documents Nothing in this Article except Section 9—206 (1) limits the rights of a holder in due course of a negotiable instrument (Section 3—302) or a holder to whom a negotiable document of title has been duly negotiated (Section 7—502) or a bona fide purchaser of a security (Section 8—301) and such holders or purchasers take priority over an earlier interest even though perfected Filing under this Article does not constitute notice of the security interest to such holders or purchasers

Section 9—310 Priority of Certain Liens Arising by Operation of Law When a person in the ordinary course of his business furnishes services or materials with respect to goods subject to a security interest a lien given by statute or rule of law for such materials or services takes priority over a perfected security interest unless the lien is statutory and the statute expressly provides otherwise

(a) are alienable although the security agreement may make disposition without the secured party's consent a default and

(b) may be reached by attachment levy garnishment or other appropriate judicial process

Section 9—312 Conflicting Security Interests General Rules of Priority When conflicting perfected security interests attach to the same collateral such interests rank in the order of time of perfection with the following exceptions

(1) An interest which attaches after filing takes priority from the time of filing but in case of conflict this rule is subject to the rules stated in the following subsections

(2) A secured party who has a perfected security interest and who makes later advances to the debtor on the same collateral and under the same security agreement takes priority as to the later advances from the time when his security interest was originally perfected

(3) A secured party who has a perfected security interest and who acquires rights in after-acquired collateral under a term in the security agreement takes priority as to such rights from the time when his security interest was originally perfected whether or not he makes advances on the after-acquired collateral except as otherwise provided in subsection (4)

(4) A purchase money security interest has priority over a conflicting interest in the same collateral which is claimed under an after-acquired property clause if the purchase money security interest is perfected at the time the debtor receives the collateral or within ten days thereafter and where the collateral is inventory if before the debtor receives it the purchase money party also notifies any secured party who has made a prior filing covering inventory of the type concerned Such notification must describe the inventory concerned state that the interest is a purchase money security interest and specify its amount If however the interest claimed under an after-acquired property clause is itself a purchase money security interest the rules stated in subsection (5) applies

(5) When there are conflicting purchase money security interests the interest of a seller or of a secured party whose advance was used at his direction to pay a seller takes priority if he has perfected his interest at the time the debtor receives the collateral or within ten days thereafter In any other case of conflicting purchase money security interest they rank equally

(6) When the collateral is crops the interest of a later secured party who in order to enable the debtor to produce them makes a new advance incurs a new obligation releases a perfected security interest or gives other new value during the production season or not more than three months before the crops are planted or otherwise become growing crops takes priority over the interest of an earlier secured party to the extent that the earlier interest secured obligations (such as rent interest or mortgage principal amortization) due more than six months before the crops are planted or otherwise become growing crops

(7) Section 9—313 on goods which are part of the realty Section 9—314 on goods which are affixed to other goods and Section 9—315 on goods which are commingled or processed state rules of priority which supplement the rules stated in this section

Section 9—313 Priority When Goods Are Part of Realty (1) When under other rules of law goods are so affixed or related to the realty as to be a part thereof a security interest in such goods which attaches before they become part of the realty takes priority as to such goods over the claims of all persons who have an interest in the realty except

(a) a subsequent purchaser for value of any interest in the realty or

(b) a subsequent judgment creditor with a lien on the realty or

(c) a prior encumbrancer of the realty to the extent that he makes subsequent advances provided that the purchaser or lien creditor becomes such or the prior encumbrancer makes such advances without knowledge of the security interest and before its perfection A purchaser of the realty at a foreclosure sale is a subsequent purchaser within this Section unless he was the prior encumbrancer

(2) When under subsection (1) a secured party has priority over the claims of all persons who have an interest in the realty he may on default subject to the provisions of Part 5 remove his collateral from the realty but he must reimburse any encumbrancer or owner of the realty who is not the debtor and who has not otherwise agreed for the cost of repair of any physical injury but not for any diminution in value of the realty caused by the absence of the goods removed or by any necessity for replacing them A person entitled to reimbursement may refuse permission to remove until the secured party gives adequate security for the performance of this obligation

Section 9—314 Priority When Goods Are Affixed to Other Goods (1) A security interest in goods which attaches before they are installed in or affixed to other goods takes priority as to the goods installed or affixed (called in this section "accessions") over the claims of all persons to the whole except

- (a) a subsequent purchaser of the whole for value or
- (b) a subsequent judgment creditor with a lien on the whole or
- (c) a prior secured party with a security interest in the whole to the extent that he makes subsequent advances provided that the purchaser or lien creditor becomes such or the prior secured party makes such advances without knowledge of the security interest in the accessions and before its perfection

(2) Where under subsection (1) a secured party has an interest in accessions which has priority over the claims of all persons to the whole he may on default subject to the provisions of Part 5 remove his collateral from the whole but he must reimburse a person with an interest in the whole who is not the debtor and who has not otherwise agreed for the cost of repair of any physical injury but not for any diminution in value of the whole caused by the absence of the goods removed or by any necessity for replacing them. A person entitled to reimbursement may refuse permission to remove until the secured party gives adequate security for the performance of this obligation

Section 9—315 Priority When Goods Are Commingled or Processed (1) If raw materials component parts or other goods which contribute to a product are manufactured processed or commingled so that their identity is lost a security interest in any of them continues on the product or resulting mass if the security agreement so provides or if the secured party has not acquiesced in the loss of identity. The security interest continues as a perfected security interest if the financing statement indicates that the interest covers the product or mass or even though the statement does not so indicate if the secured party did not acquiesce in the loss of identity

(2) When under subsection (1) more than one security interest attaches to the product or mass they rank equally according to the ratio that the cost of the goods to which each interest originally attached bears to the cost of the total product or mass

Section 9—316 Priority Subject to Subordination Nothing in this Article prevents subordination by agreement by any person entitled to priority

Section 9—317 Secured Party Not Obligated on Contract of Debtor A contract made by a debtor concerning collateral does not impose a personal obligation on the secured party merely because of his security interest or his authority given to the debtor to dispose of or use the collateral

Section 9—318 Defenses Against Assignee Modification of Contract After Notification of Assignment Term Prohibiting Assignment Ineffective Identification and Proof of Assignment (1) Unless an account debtor has made an enforceable agreement not to assert defenses or claims arising out of a sale as provided in Section 9—206 the rights of an assignee are subject to

- (a) all the terms of the contract between the account debtor and assignor and any defense or claim arising therefrom and
- (b) any other defense or claim of the account debtor against the assignor which accrues before the account debtor receives notification of the assignment or of the arrangement for assignment

(2) So far as the right to payment under an assigned contract right has not already become an account and notwithstanding notification of the assignment any modification or substitution for the contract made in good faith and in accordance with reasonable commercial standards is effective against an assignee unless the account debtor has otherwise agreed but the assignee acquires corresponding rights under the modified or substituted contract. The assignment may provide that such modification or substitution is a breach by the assignor

(3) When an assignee permits the assignor to collect accounts or leaves or puts the assignor in possession of chattel paper which does not specify a place of payment

other than the assignor's place of business an account debtor is authorized to pay the assignor until he receives notification that payment is to be made to the assignee

(4) A term prohibiting assignment of an account or contract right is ineffective. Before making payment an account debtor may however require an assignee to furnish reasonable proof of the making of the assignment. Until an assignee furnishes reasonable identification of the account or contract right assigned the account debtor may make payment to the assignor

Part 5

Default

Section 9—501 Index of Rights on Default Procedure When Security Agreement Covers Both Real and Personal Property (1) When a debtor is in default under the security agreement a secured party may reduce his claim to judgment If the collateral is accounts chattel paper contract rights or instruments he may in addition proceed under Section 9—504 or under Section 9—502 for a time and thereafter under Section 9—504 If the collateral is documents he may in addition proceed under Section 9—504 either as to the documents or as to the goods covered thereby If the collateral is goods he may in addition do one or more of the following (except that he cannot accept the collateral in discharge of the obligation under Section 9—505 and also recover a deficiency under Section 9—504)

(a) foreclose the security interest by any available judicial procedure

(b) take possession of the collateral under Section 9—503

(c) prepare or process the collateral for disposition as provided in Section 9—504

(d) sell and recover a deficiency as provided in Section 9—504

(e) accept the collateral in discharge of the obligation as provided in Section 9—505

(2) After default a secured party in possession has the rights and duties provided in Section 9—207 and a debtor has

(a) a right of redemption as provided in Section 9—506 and

(b) a right as provided in Section 9—507 to require that the secured party realize on his collateral in accordance with this Article

(3) The enumeration of rights in subsections (1) and (2) does not purport to be exhaustive The rules stated in this Part which give rights to the debtor and impose duties on the secured party may be waived or varied only as provided in this Part

(4) If the security agreement covers both real and personal property the secured party may proceed under this Part as to the personal property or he may proceed under the law relating to foreclosure of real estate mortgages as to both the real and the personal property If the secured party proceeds under the real estate mortgage law the provisions of this Part do not apply

Section 9—502 Rights of Assignee When Assignor Defaults (1) When so agreed and in any event on default the secured party is entitled to notify an account debtor or the obligors on an instrument to make payment to him whether or not the assignor was theretofore making collections on the collateral and also to take control of any proceeds to which he is entitled under Section 9—306

(2) When the secured party is by agreement entitled to charge back uncollected instruments accounts chattel paper or contract rights or is otherwise entitled to full or limited recourse against the debtor a secured party who takes control of collections must proceed in a commercially reasonable manner to realize upon the collateral and may deduct his reasonable expenses of realization from the collections. If so agreed the debtor is entitled to any surplus in the net amount realized or is liable for any deficiency or both if the agreement is silent and if the transaction between the debtor and the secured party is in fact a sale the debtor is not entitled to any surplus and is not liable for any deficiency but if it is in fact a loan he is entitled to any surplus and is liable for any deficiency.

Section 9—503 Secured Party's Right to Take Possession After Default. Unless otherwise agreed a secured party has no default the right to take possession of the collateral. In taking possession a secured party may proceed without judicial process if this can be done without breach of the peace. If the security agreement so provides the secured party may require the debtor to assemble the collateral and make it available to the secured party at a place reasonably convenient to both parties. Without removal a secured party may render equipment unusable and may dispose of collateral on the debtor's premises under Section 9—504. A debtor may request the secured party to remove collateral from the debtor's premises after a reasonable time for its disposition has passed. If the secured party fails to remove the collateral within a reasonable time after the receipt of such a request the debtor may remove and store it.

Section 9—504 Secured Party's Right to Dispose of Collateral After Default. Effect of Disposition. (1) A secured party after default may sell lease or otherwise dispose of any or all of the collateral in its then condition or following any commercially reasonable preparation or processing. Any sale of goods is subject to the Article on Sales (Article 2). The proceeds of disposition shall be applied in the order following to:

- (a) the reasonable expenses of retaking holding preparing for sale selling and the like to the extent the recovery thereof is not prohibited by law or agreement
- (b) the satisfaction of indebtedness secured by the security interest under which the disposition is made
- (c) the satisfaction of indebtedness secured by any subordinate security interest in the collateral if written notification of demand therefor is received before distribution of the proceeds is completed

If the security agreement secures an indebtedness the secured party must account to the debtor for any surplus and unless otherwise agreed the debtor is liable for any deficiency. But if the underlying transaction was a sale of accounts contract rights or chattel paper the debtor is entitled to any surplus or is liable for any deficiency only if the security agreement so provides.

(2) Disposition of the collateral may be public or private proceedings and may be made by way of one or more contracts. Sale or other disposition may be as a unit or in parcels and at any time and place and on any terms but every aspect of the disposition including the method manner time place and terms must be commercially reasonable. Unless collateral is perishable or threatens to decline speedily in value or is of a type customarily sold on a recognized market the second party must give to the debtor and to any other secured party who has a security interest in the collateral to be disposed of and who has filed a financing statement or is known to the secured party making the disposition reasonable notification of the time and place of any other intended disposition. Notification may be sent to addresses given in a financing statement if the secured party has no knowledge of different addresses. The secured party may buy at any public sale and if the collateral is of a type which is the subject of widely distributed standard price quotations he may buy at private sale.

(3) When collateral is disposed of by a secured party after default the disposition transfers to a purchaser for value all rights of the debtor discharges the security interest under which it is made and any security interest or lien subordinate thereto and the purchaser takes free of all such rights and interests even though the secured party fails to comply with the requirements of this Part or of any judicial proceedings.

- (a) in the case of a judicial sale if the purchaser has no knowledge of any defects in the sale and if he does not buy in collusion with the secured party or other bidders or
- (b) in any other case if the purchaser acts in good faith.

Section 9—505 Compulsory Disposition of Collateral. Acceptance of the Collateral as Discharge of Obligation.

(1) In the case of a purchase money security interest in consumer goods if the debtor has paid sixty per cent of the cash price and has not signed after default a statement renouncing his rights a secured party who has taken possession of collateral must dispose of it under Section 9—504 and if he fails to do so within ninety days after he takes possession the debtor at his option may recover in conversion or under Section 9—507 (1) on secured party's liability.

(2) In any other case a secured party in possession may after default propose to retain the collateral in satisfaction of the obligation. Written notice of such proposal shall be given to the debtor and to any other secured party who has a security interest in the collateral and who has filed a financing statement or is known to the secured party in possession. If the debtor or other person entitled to receive notification objects within thirty days from receipt of the notification the secured party must dispose of the collateral under Section 9—504 but in the absence of such objection within said thirty days the secured party may hold the collateral or dispose of it free from the requirements of this Article.

Section 9—506 Debtor's Right to Reclaim Collateral. At any time before the secured party has disposed of collateral or entered into a contract for its disposition under Section 9—504 or before the obligation has been discharged under Section 9—505 (2) the debtor may reclaim the collateral by tendering payment of all sums due under the defaulted agreement as well as the expenses reasonably incurred by the secured party in retaking holding and preparing for disposition.

Section 9—507 Secured Party's Liability for Failure to Comply With This Part. (1) If it is established that the secured party is not proceeding in accordance with the provisions of this Part disposition may be ordered or restrained on appropriate terms and conditions. If the disposition has occurred the debtor or any person entitled to notification has a right to recover from the secured party and loss caused by a failure to comply with the provisions of this Part. If the collateral is consumer goods the debtor has a right to recover in any event an amount not less than the credit service charge or time price differential plus 10 per cent of the cash price or principal amount of the debt.

(2) The fact that a better price could have been obtained by a sale at a different time or in a different method from that selected by the secured party is not of itself sufficient to establish that the sale was not made in a commercially reasonable manner. If the secured party either sells the collateral in the usual manner in any recognized market therefor or if he sells at the price current in such market at the time of his sale or if he has otherwise sold in conformity with reasonable commercial practices among dealers in the type of property sold he has sold in a commercially reasonable manner. The principles stated in the two preceding sentences with respect to sales also apply as may be appropriate to other types of disposition. The term "commercially reasonable" includes among other things obtaining approval of the secured party's plan of disposition in a judicial proceeding or by a bona fide creditors' committee or representative of creditors.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WALKER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. DENT. Senator Walker, late this afternoon I received a telephone call and I have not had time to check the bill. The question that was asked of me, I would now like to ask of you.

The person calling me suggested that in this bill there is a provision that will allow the garnisheeing of a workman's pay for reasons and for purposes other than paying of taxes. Is there anything in this bill that will open up the right to allow the garnisheeing of a man's pay for the payment of furniture or any other item that he might have purchased on payments and has not made his payments?

Mr. WALKER. I would say not, Mr. President.

Mr. President, may I say, for the information of the gentlemen of the Senate, that the amendments that were offered the other day are strike-out amendments. I appreciate the fact that the Senate is trying to make a deadline, but there are some explanatory remarks regarding Senate Bill No. 12 which I desire to make at this time.

At the opening of the 1953 Session of the State Senate, I introduced the Uniform Commercial Code, which is known as Senate Bill 12. Because of the size of this particular piece of legislation, I thought perhaps a few comments on the bill might be of assistance to you in arriving at a conclusion as to whether or not it is good law and should be approved by the Senate.

This Commercial Code so vitally affects every state in the Union that it should be approved by them all. It is so important to Pennsylvania that it should be promptly enacted, it being neither necessary nor desirable to wait action by other states of the Union.

This Code is the most important piece of work of its character ever undertaken in the United States, and it has been as thoroughly considered as any legislative proposal ever placed before us. It has been twelve years in preparation, and at a cost of more than $400,000.

Mr. President, the Code was drafted under the joint sponsorship of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws and the American Law Institute. It has been the subject of comment, criticism and discussion by a large number of practicing lawyers, judges, and law teachers. Time and again it has been revised to take account of the views both of representatives of affected industries and of impartial students whose concern was the public interest. Finally, in 1951, it was unanimously endorsed by the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association. During 1953, it will be presented for enactment in many states. Here in Pennsylvania, it has been unanimously approved by the Pennsylvania Bar Association, the Pennsylvania Bankers Association, and many county bars and many affected businesses, professions and industries.

Serious work on the Code began in 1939, in response to the need for modernization after more than forty years of experience with uniform acts governing commercial transactions. The project was undertaken jointly by the Commissioners on Uniform Laws and the American Law Institute. As you know, the Conference on Uniform State Laws has been in operation since 1890, and they promulgated many of the individual Codes which will be replaced by the Code now before us. The American Law Institute is made up of leading judges, lawyers, and professors of law. Founded in 1920, it spent nearly twenty years preparing a series of restatements of the law in such fields as contracts, property, et cetera. This restatement of the law has been highly regarded and has been cited innumerable times by the appellate courts of many of the States of the Union. These two sponsoring organizations mentioned above appointed members to a joint Editorial Board, which supervised the drafting of the Code, by a reporting staff headed by Professor Karl Llewellyn of the University of Chicago Law School. For each article of the Code, there was a reporter assisted by a group of advisors. The advisors were practicing lawyers, judges and law professors from all over the country, chosen for their expertness and experience in the field of law involved. Drafts prepared by the reporting staff were discussed by the advisors and with counsel and other representatives of industries affected. Drafts were also widely circulated. They were analyzed in law school courses and were the subject of a large number of published articles and informal comments to the reporters and advisors.

In these ways, and through the meetings of the sponsoring organizations, innumerable criticisms and suggestions were made, many of which were adopted in revised and improved drafts. Finally, in 1952, both sponsoring organizations approved and promulgated the final version.

Mr. President, before it was submitted to the Legislature of Pennsylvania, it was very carefully studied by the Banking Association, the Bar Association, and many industries and professions involved. Finally, in 1951, it was submitted to the Joint State Government Commission as a study project. The subcommittee appointed by the Joint State Government Commission were as follows:

John M. Walker, Chairman
Nolan F. Ziegler, Vice Chairman

Senate Members

Eustace H. Bane
A. Evans Kephart
John R. Meade
Murray Peelor
Maxwell S. Rosenfeld
John M. Walker

House Members

Louis A. Bloom
G. Edgar Kline
John H. McKinney
Albert S. Readinger
Theodore H. Schmidt
Nolan F. Ziegler

The subcommittee held several meetings and discussed the Code with representatives of the various associations involved. Through contacts with these organizations and associations, and after discussing the matter with many judges, lawyers, bankers, the Attorney General, and others similarly interested, the committee felt that the adoption of the Code would place Pennsylvania in the front rank of the states of the Union in dealing with commercial law.

The Code consists of several hundred sections, most of them consisting of several subsections. Even the most faithful Legislator could not hope to consider each provision carefully, nor can unanimous agreement be expected on every point; but each question of policy has been concluded only after consultation with the leading experts in the particular field and after exploration of all possible alternative solutions.

Public comment has, on the whole, been extraordinarily favorable, and it is unlikely that further consideration would produce any general improvement. Any proposals for amendment of particular provisions should be examined very carefully to determine their possible effect on the logic and consistency of the Code as a whole and on the goal of uniformity among the states.

Mr. President, the Code revises, brings up to date, and brings into uniformity a number of presently codified acts now on our statute books. These are the Negotiable Instruments Law, the Uniform Warehouse Receipts Act, the Uniform Sales Act, the Uniform Bills of Lading Act, the Uniform Stock Transfer Act, and the Uniform Trust Receipts Act.

The purpose of the Code is set forth as follows:

1. To simplify and modernize and develop greater precision and certainty in the rules of law governing commercial transactions.

2. To preserve a flexibility in commercial transactions and to encourage continued expansion of commercial practices and mechanisms through custom, usage and agreement of the parties.

3. To make uniform the law among the various jurisdictions.

The Code is divided into ten articles as follows:

1. General Provisions
2. Sales
3. Commercial Paper
4. Bank Deposits and Collections
5. Documentary Letters of Credit
6. Bulk Transfer
7. Warehouse Receipts, Bills of Lading, and other Documents of Title
8. Investment Securities
9. Secured Transactions; Sales of Accounts, Contract Rights and Chattel Paper
10. Effective Date and Repealer

Here it may be pointed out that the bulk of the provisions merely restate rules of law laid down in the earlier Uniform Acts. Such restatement serves primarily the twin objectives of precision and uniformity among the states; incidentally, the rules are simplified and modernized. Where necessary, the rules are modified to resolve disputes which have arisen in their interpretation; where practices have changed so that the old rules no longer work smoothly, they are modified to accord with present conditions.

Mr. President, in addition, some rules not included in the earlier Acts are here codified for the first time in the Uniform Act. Some cover situations not foreseen when the earlier Acts were drafted. Some, like those of the Bank Collections Article, have been the subject of statutes enacted in many states. Others, like those of the Letter of Credit Article, deal with types of commercial operations which have come of age in recent years and are designed to facilitate their more general use. The Article on Secured Transactions stands alone as a major innovation, an effort to bring together and harmonize for the first time a great multitude of conflicting and confusing rules governing various types of transactions which have many common elements but which have developed independently.

Perhaps the most useful accomplishment of the Code is to treat the field of commercial transactions as a whole. A single transaction often cuts across many traditionally separate branches of law. A shipment of goods by rail, financed by a bank under a letter of credit and paid for by the buyer's check, involves the law of Sales under the Uniform Sales Act, documents of title under the Uniform Bills of Lading Act, letters of credit, negotiable instruments, bank collections, pledges of accounts receivable, conditional sales, chattel mortgages, trust receipts, factors' liens and/or assignments of accounts receivable. The statutes and the common law governing this one simple transaction were all developed at many different times by many different Legislatures. They do not fit together, and the resulting uncertainty and confusion is costly to all concerned. The Code, while it retains traditional conditions for convenience, uses the same terms with the same meaning throughout. The articles of the Code are dovetailed for uniformity in interpretation.

Mr. President, for brevity's sake, I have included in this discussion a breakdown of the ten articles of the Code as outlined above.

In very briefly discussing the various portions or articles of the new Code, Article I and Article 10 will be skipped, because of their generalities.

Article 2. Article 2 deals with sales and, in a great measure, is a revision of the Uniform Sales Act which is already in force in Pennsylvania. It makes provision for the formation of sales contracts based on statutes in force in other states than Pennsylvania and restates some aspects of the law of formation of sales contracts which have given trouble in the past. Terms long familiar to businessmen, such as F.O.B., F.A.S., and C. I. F., are defined in accordance with their commercial meaning; and other provisions are made as to the meaning of sales contracts, designed to reduce the necessity for long, fine-print contracts and to avoid expensive litigation. Particular attention is given to long-term arrangements, as to which the old Sales Act is inadequate.

Perhaps the principal change in the rules carried forward from the old Act is a shift in emphasis from property to contract. Under the old Act, the remedies available to a buyer or seller and the risk of loss when the goods are destroyed were made to turn on who had title to the goods. Finding out who has title is no simple affair. Much of the litigation under the old Act has involved just this point. The proposed new Code contains provisions as to title of the goods, and these provisions can be used in tax cases and other cases. However, the remedies of the parties and the division of the risk between them are spelled out in terms of the performance of the sales contract. The rules are restated in commercial terms by reference to shipment, delivery, acceptance of the goods, and so on. But analysis of the Code provisions as applied to specific situations indicates that the changes in result are not of major importance.

Article 3. Article 3 deals with Commercial Paper. In this article, the Negotiable Instrument Law, which was our first uniform Act, is revised. It is certainly regarded as the most successful of our commercial statutes. It is short, simple in language, and apparently clear and it has been enacted in every state. But uniformity has been impaired by conflicting interpretations of some 75 of its sections. The Code's principal service is to resolve those conflicts and make a fresh start toward uniformity among the states. Corporate bonds which were a subject matter in the Negotiable Instruments Law, are now covered by a separate article of this proposed Code.

Article 4. This article deals with Bank Deposits and Collections. As you know, the N.I.L. is silent on the handling of banks of checks and other instruments left with them for deposit and collection. The need for uniformity is obvious and has long been felt, but the Commissioners on Uniform State Laws never succeeded in drafting a Uniform Bank Collection Act. As a matter of fact, the last time this was attempted, it was abandoned after several years of conscientious effort.

Mr. President, some states have enacted a statute sponsored by the American Bankers Association, known as the Bank Collection Code. The United States Supreme Court has declared this statute unconstitutional as to national banks. It has also been declared invalid as to state banks in some of the states. Many states have passed other non-uniform legislation in the hope of making it possible for banks to speed up the check collection system.

Early drafts of Article 4 of the Uniform Commercial Code, were criticized as laying down rules which were too inflexible. Walter D. Malcolm, Esq., of the Boston Bar, who had been active in the drafting of the Deferred Posting Statutes, took the lead in revising Article 4 to insure that new techniques could be introduced as they became available. His revisions met with general acceptance and led to ultimate approval of the article in its final form, which is believed to have overcome the previous constitutional objections. Section 4-213, dealing with bank insolvency, cannot apply to national banks unless Congress amends the National Bank Act; until such amendment, it would apply only to state banks.

Article 5. Article 5 deals with Documentary Letters of Credit. Until now, this subject has in all states been left to the courts. Commercial letters of credit issued by American banks first began to play an important part in financing our foreign trade during and after World War I. This business was handled almost exclusively by the leading banks in the largest cities, and it has been governed by standard practices and contract terms codified by the International Chamber of Commerce. A body of case law has developed, primarily in the courts in New York, which is in the main satisfactory.

Mr. President, since World War II the use of such letters has increased greatly in foreign trade, and it has become clear that the commercial letter of credit offers a simple, cheap and convenient arrangement for financing the shipment of certain types of goods—for example, automobile—in domestic trade. A number of Pennsylvania banks have pioneered in the use of a letter of credit to finance the retail purchase of automobiles. But development of this type of financing is held back by uncertainty as to what the law is.

Article 5 of the Code for the most part follows and codifies the entirely satisfactory judicial decisions of Pennsylvania and our sister states, particularly New York. It will perform the important educational functions of calling attention to this device and acquainting bankers and businessmen with the rights and duties involved. It will thus promote use of the device, and at the same time insure that the law of letters of credit remains commercially sound, discouraging any tendency to apply rules designed for different needs.

Article 6. Article 6 deals with Bulk Transfers. Every state now has a bulk sales statute. Such statutes deal with two common types of commercial fraud associated with the sale by a merchant of his stock of goods out of the ordinary course of trade. In one type, the sale is a sham, and the merchant comes back into the business after settling with his creditors; in the other, he simply disappears with the proceeds without paying his creditors. All of the statutes provide for advance notice to creditors; some also require the buyer to see that the proceeds are paid to the seller's creditors.

Section 6-106 and certain related sections are bracketed in the Code to indicate division of opinion as to whether it is a wise provision. That section adopts a provision found in the so-called "Pennsylvania form" or "Pennsylvania theory" of the present statutes, requiring the buyer to see that the proceeds are applied to pay those debts of the seller of which the buyer has notice. This requirement makes the protection of creditors far more effective, but at the expense of inconvenience to the buyer. In practice, a careful buyer of a business would probably insist that the purchase price be withheld or held in escrow until the seller's debts were ascertained.

Article 7. Article 7 deals with Warehouse Receipts, Bills of Lading, and other Documents of Title. Here the provisions of the Uniform Warehouse Receipt Act and the Uniform Bills of Lading Act are restated in substance. The principle service is to resolve conflicts of interpretation which have arisen under the earlier Acts. Bills of lading covering interstate shipments and foreign exports are subject to the Federal Bills of Lading Act, and full uniformity can be achieved only if state enactment of the Code is supplemented by an Act of Congress.

Article 8. Article 8 deals with Investment Securities. This is a revision of the Uniform Stock Transfer Act. That act applies only to certificates representing shares of stock. Bonds and other types of long-term indebtedness are not covered and have been left to the N. I. L. The result has been a flood of cases on the negotiability of bonds and great difficulty in telling, in advance of litigation, whether a particular bond issue, municipal or corporate, is negotiable or not. The Code gets rid of this unfortunate and expensive confusion by bringing the transfer of all long-term securities—bonds as well as stock—within Article 8. In general the approach of the Stock Transfer Act is followed.

Article 9. Article 9 deals with Secured Transactions; Sales of Accounts, Contract Rights and Chattel Paper. This is clearly the most novel and probably the most important part of the Code. It covers the entire range of transactions in which debts are secured by personal property: chattel mortgages, pledges, conditional sales, trust receipts, assignments of accounts receivable, factors' liens, field warehousing, and the like. The scheme of the article is to state rules of law applicable to such transactions generally, without regard to the type of security device used by the parties. The Code distinguishes instead between different types of property put up as security—for example, inventory, industrial and commercial equipment, crops and farm products, intangible property such as accounts receivable—and states special rules where necessary to regulate the problems which arise in each different situation.

Mr. President, the approach of the Code has many advantages. Perhaps the most important is that it makes possible a radical simplification in our recording system. As to most security transactions involving a business enterprise, interested parties will be able to determine a borrower's financial position by consulting a single set of public records. Today they would have to search in both state and local offices, and some of the most important types of security would not be disclosed at all.

Today the different security devices depend for their validity on formalities which vary from one device to another for no apparent reason except the historical one that each device developed independently. Under the Code, the formal requirements are the same for all.

Article 10. Article 10 is the effective date and repealer.

Mr. President, some years ago the General Assembly passed a series of bills which revised, streamlined and modernized the Orphans' Court Statutes of Pennsylvania. This was a splendid piece of work which has rebounded to the credit of the General Assembly and has been of immeasurable assistance to the Orphans' Courts of Pennsylvania.

It is impossible to specifically thank all of the individuals who have contributed in any manner to the final drafting of this proposed Uniform Commercial Code. The importance of the enactment of this statute by Pennsylvania cannot be overemphasized.

Mr. President, in conclusion, I want to assure the gentlemen of the Senate that the objections that were raised last week have been presented to the Editorial Board, and strike-out amendments covering the discussion held at that time have already been inserted in the bill. It is my humble opinion that the bill is now ready for passage.

Mr. McMENAMIN. Mr. President, I do not want to make a long and involved speech, but I do think we should have a few additional words on this subject and a few words of congratulations to the sponsor.

Mr. President, I think this is sensible legislation. It is one of the best bills I have seen come through here in my time in the Senate. I think we all know that Senate Bill No. 12 is the result of a study, covering several years, by a committee appointed by the Pennsylvania Bar Association. It represents an investment, which we have made to the Joint State Government Commission, of some several thousands of dollars to help prepare this. It is an effort to stabilize commercial law in the Northeastern States of the United States by making laws uniform on all commercial transactions, which is something that law school professors, and writers and legal thinkers have been trying to affect for some time. I think it is something to which we should all lend our support.

Mr. President, I do want to say that I think we should all be gratified that Senator Walker, the sponsor, took the time and the trouble last week to furnish each of us with a brief memorandum of the purposes of the bill and an outline.

Mr. President, it is a bill which, undoubtedly, like everything in this world, is not perfect and there may be some wrinkles found in it later. However, this bill, frankly, would cover all the subjects of a full year in law school. It is a comprehensive study in commercial law, and it is a step forward. I think we would all be doing the people of Pennsylvania a service in voting for it.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I want to thank the gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator McMEnamin, for his kind words. I certainly would be remiss if I did not in turn thank the members of the committee for their patience in working on this bill, and to express the appreciation of the committee for the very fine cooperation they received.

Mr. President, in answer to the interrogations which I received off the floor, I would like at this time to publicly thank Ross Blair, and the Pittsburgh Legal Journal, for printing this report "for free" on this very fine paper, which aroused the suspicions of people whose suspicions are easily aroused.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, in seconding the motion made by the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Watson, I just want to tell the Senate that I did have a little difficulty on my side in getting unanimous endorsement of Judge Wright. Of course, it was a personal animosity that was held for only a slight moment by one of the Senators on this side.

Mr. President, it appears that when Judge Wright was up in Lackawanna County in his official capacity, he met the wife of one of our eminent Senators from this side, Senator Hugh McMenamin. He said to the young lady, when he was introduced, that he caught the name as "Miss McMenamin." He said to her, "I suppose you are the Senator's daughter." Now, of course, Mr. President, the Senator has a right to resent the trouble that has made in his family ever since.

Mr. President, I have seconded this motion because this eminent gentleman, possesses those human qualities to distinguish a very fine looking young lady and can make a mistake, because I, too, thought she was his daughter.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

Mr. WOOD. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. LEADER, from the Committee on Local Government, reported as committed Senate Bill No. 113, entitled:

An Act to further amend Sections 4 and 8 of the act approved the sixteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-three (P. #### PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. LANE asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, they say expression, like confession, is good for the soul. I have had this on my chest for quite awhile and I feel that the Members of the Senate should know something of the details I am about to discuss.

Last July 23, 1952, the Liquor Control Board of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania awarded a restaurant liquor license to an individual who, in my opinion, had not in any manner qualified with the provisions of the Liquor Control Act. To add fuel to the fire, the Bureau of Licensing failed to notify those who had lost their right to apply. As to their refusal, the twenty days had expired and it meant that these individuals had to go into the Quarter Sessions Court of my particular county in order to get a hearing. Incidentally, I might add, in prefacing my remarks, that several of the applicants were notified by influential Republicans that had they been registered Republicans, it might have been a different story.

Mr. President, I have before me here today a decision which was handed down by the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of Washington County, which vindicated my position.

About three weeks ago, Mr. President, I had the privilege of talking with one of the Members of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board, who was up for confirmation. At that particular time, I pointedly stated to him the shortcomings of the Bureau of Licensing, because, in my humble opinion and in the opinion of the Court of Quarter Sessions of my county, this Bureau of Licensing acted in an arbitrary and a very capricious manner.

Mr. President, I want to spread upon the record this decision by our Court of Quarter Sessions to prove to the Members of the Senate of Pennsylvania that it is about time that we commence to overhaul the Bureau of Licensing, and some of the Liquor Control agents. I say to you that the members of the Liquor Control Board who investigate violations, or applications for licenses, should make a truthful report and nothing fictitious. They should not go out and make untrue statements about applicants in order to fix up the record whereby some person who is not qualified would receive a favorable decision from the Board.

Mr. President, I want it distinctly understood here this afternoon that I do not question the integrity of the Members of the Board. There is a former Member of the Senate on that Board, whom I admire and respect. There is a former Member of the House on that Board, whom I also admire and respect. The other gentleman has my best wishes.

Mr. President, I say to you here that this is not politics, not in any sense of the word. Something should be done, because the Liquor Control Board and its operations are generally spoken of in disrepute throughout this Commonwealth. I know that some of the agents are under the jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission, but it seems to me that since they carry the sovereignty of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania on their shoulders, they should at least perform their duties with fidelity and with honesty.

Mr. President, I would like to spread upon the record a copy of the court's decision in this particular case.

"OPINION

"Per Curiam:

"Seven applicants, including Henry Zermani, John Joseph Leputa, and joint applicants, Walter Cox and William Rishert (hereafter Cox and Rishert), made application to the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board for the issuance of a Restaurant Liquor License. The census in 1950 authorized the issuance of one additional liquor license in Carroll Township, Washington County. The license was granted to Cox and Rishert, and the others were refused. Appeals from such refusals were made to this court by Henry Zermani and John Joseph Leputa. An appeal to the grant of the liquor license to Cox and Rishert was taken by Henry Zermani, and rule was issued at the instance of Cox and Rishert upon Henry Zermani, to show cause why that portion of the appeal should not be stricken off wherein it refers to the revocation of the license of Cox and Rishert.

"The three parties appeared with their counsel, and entered into a written stipulation of facts. Upon consideration of the records, briefs, and oral arguments, it appears that the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board held separate hearings on the seven applications before the same Examiner on January 22, 1952. Under date of July 23, 1952, the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board granted a retail liquor license to Cox and Rishert, but did not give any notice of such action to the disappointed applicants. On August 13, 1952, twenty days after the granting of such license, the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board refused the applications of Henry Zermani, John Joseph Leputa, and the other applicants, and on the same day sent notices of such refusals to each of them, but such notices were sent twenty days after the granting of the license to Cox and Rishert.

"The opinion filed by the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board in the matter of the application of Henry Zermani (a similar opinion was filed in the Leputa case) reads, in part, as follows:

"Since there were seven applications filed for the single vacancy under the quota licenses for the said township, the Board required that a hearing be held in each case.

"At the hearings which were held January 22, 1952, the evidence established the following facts:

"1. As provided by law, Carroll Township, Washington County, has a quota of 5 licenses for the retail sale of liquor and malt beverages and there were 4 such licenses in effect of the type counted against the quota on the date on which the said hearings were held, leaving only one vacancy under the quota for the township.

"2. Seven applications have been filed with the Board for new restaurant liquor licenses for premises located within the township, including the application by Henry Zermani.

"After reviewing all of the facts of record pertaining to the seven applications for new restaurant liquor licenses in this township, the Board directed that a restaurant liquor license be granted to one of the other applicants, thereby filling the quota of licenses.

"The Board is, therefore, of the opinion that this application by Henry Zermani for a new restaurant liquor license must be refused for the reason that the quota of licenses for the township has been filled, there being no authority for the issuance of additional retail liquor licenses in excess of the quota, except for establishments in operation as bona fide hotels complying with the specific requirements prescribed by law."

"The appellants complain that the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board abused its discretion in granting the license to Cox and Rishert and refusing license to the other appellants.

"Manifestly, the Board could not grant the only available license to each of the seven applicants. It was under the legal necessity of refusing six out of the seven applicants.

"We are satisfied that this Court is powerless to grant relief to an unsuccessful applicant, but we are also satisfied that the Board has been guilty of abuse of its discretion.

"The successful applicants filed one of the later applications for this vacancy, but the reason their application was granted and the others refused does not appear. The inference to be drawn from the reason assigned for refusal of the other applications was that they had been filed too late, as there was then no vacancy. Such inference is in conflict with the facts.

"The court is required under the law to examine, de novo, the evidence to ascertain whether there has been an abuse of discretion, and, if so, this Court has authority to correct such abuse. Counsel for the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board and for Cox and Rishert contend that the action of the Board should be sustained, and argue that the twenty day period had elapsed before an appeal was taken, and that the appellants are not interested parties. It so happens that counsel for the successful applicant was formerly an examiner for the Liquor Control Board and in answer to a question by a member of the Court, stated that, in his experience, he had not heretofore known of the Board granting a license but withholding notice of such action from other applicants until after the time for appeal had passed. The argument that the appellants have no sufficient interest in the matter was effectually answered in the opinion of Mook, P. J., Toppo License, 67 D. & C., 101 (Page 102); 'The testimony and argument of appellant's counsel would be material if appellant had appealed from the action of the board in granting a license to Zimmerman, which he had a right to do, as he had a direct, substantial, immediate and pecuniary interest in that matter: Seitz Liquor Case, 157 Pa. Superior Ct., 553, Appeal of Michael Markvan, County Court of Allegheny County, No. C 1663 of 1946.'

"If the Liquor Control Board had a reason for selecting Cox and Rishert and for rejecting the applications of the appellants, the Board, as a judicial body, should have given such reason. The reason assigned, i.e., that the quota had already been filled, is a self-made and fictitious reason, and we are not impressed by the argument of counsel for the Board that the twenty-day period for taking appeal had expired, under the circumstances of this case.

"The Legislature, by specifying stringent conditions and conferring discretion upon the Board in the granting of restaurant liquor licenses, has indicated that the conduct of business by such licensees can be detrimental to the peace and morals of the community, and that, while the Board acts in an administrative or quasi-judicial capacity, both the Board and the Court must give primary consideration to the public interest: Azarewicz Liquor License Case, 163 Pa. Superior Ct., 459; Seitz Liquor Case, 157 Pa. Superior Ct., 553; Kensington Club Liquor License, 164 Pa. Superior Ct., 401; Commonwealth v. Hildebrand, 139 Pa. Superior Ct., 304; Spankard's Liquor License Case, 138 Pa. Superior Ct., 251; Shaheen's Liquor License Case, 145 Pa. Superior Ct., 5.

"Justice required that these appeals be remanded to the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board, with the direction that they take such further proceedings as may be necessary and proper to adjudicate in an orderly judicious manner the applications of the respective parties. The applications of those who have kept their rights alive may be consolidated for the purpose of hearing and adjudication.

"It is not sufficient to persuade the appellate court that it may have reached a different conclusion in the first place if it had heard all of the testimony and considered the evidence, which we have not. We are satisfied that such discretion is and should be vested exclusively in the administrative tribunal, and that, where there are a number of applicants as here, this Court should not hold hearings

'de novo,' but rather that all of the applications should be remanded, so that the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board may administer its discretionary power in a judicious rather than a tyrannical manner. Artifice should have no place in the administration of justice, particularly where discretionary powers are vested.

"The appeals are, therefore, sustained, and each of the proceedings is remanded to the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board so that these applications may be considered and adjudicated in the manner provided by the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Law.

"ORDER

"AND NOW, this 9th day of February, 1953, the appeal of Henry Zermani at No. 235 August Term, 1952, Q.S., and the appeal of John Joseph Leputa at No. 234 August Term, 1952, Q. S., are sustained; and the appeal of Henry Zermani from the grant of restaurant liquor license No. R 18524 to Cox and Rishert at No. 249 August Term, 1952, Q.S., is sustained.

"The orders of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board in each of such respective applications are reversed and set aside.

"The respective proceedings are directed to be returned by the Clerk of Courts to the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board, which Board is authorized and directed to proceed to hear and decide such applications in accordance with the law relating thereto, and with the directions herein given.

"BY THE COURT
"PER CURIAM

"ATTEST:

"JOHN M. GOOD, Clerk of Courts"

The PRESIDENT. The court decision, as requested by Senator Lane, will be spread upon the Journal.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. MAHANY. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Crawford, Mr. Mahany, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. MAHANY. Mr. President, some time during the proceedings of the day, we neglected to call up Petitions and Remonstrances. I remember a little while ago, my friend, Senator Yosko, called the attention of the Chair to that, and the Chair advised that, perhaps, when we came back we would return to that Order of Business.

Mr. President, I would like to inquire whether or not we may consider that Order of Business now.

The PRESIDENT. The Majority Floor Leader is in order; he may proceed.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr MAHANY. Mr. President, I think this is about the first time that I have ever spoken under this particular Order of Business. It usually just gives a fellow a chance to gripe a little bit, I guess, at this particular time.

Mr. President, I guess I made a mistake a couple of weeks ago or so when I saw my friend, Mr. Lindgren, down in the Penn-Harris Hotel and said, "Well, this is one Sunday issue of the Pittsburgh Press that I have read in which I did not see very much against the Members of the Legislature."

Since that time, Mr. President, for the past couple of weeks, they have really been giving us the business. Now, especially was that true in last Sunday's issue.

Mr. President, I am certainly not going to pick any fight with my friend, Mr. Lindgren, or with the Members of the press, generally. I sympathize with them at times because, after all, they have to fill up a lot of space and sometimes we do not give them enough action down here to allow them to write very much about us. Perhaps we should get into some fisticuffs or something else here on the floor, so that our friends, the reporters, might have a chance to write something interesting about us in the newspapers.

I notice some of our Legislatures, in sister States, have taken up such bills as the prohibition of moonlight dancing and things like that. At least we have not, in this Session, taken up any such legislation and, therefore, the members of the press have not had very much of interest to write about. I did notice that we were called a "Do-Nothing Session of the Legislature" in last Sunday's press, and it was called to the attention of the readers that our calendars were so thin that you could see the light through them.

Mr. President, it is impossible to build up large calendars and do the other things that must be done in connection with a successful Session of the Legislature. I do not look for this Session of the Legislature to break any records as to the number of bills we are going to pass. Outside of the bills that perhaps might be necessitated to implement this Chesterman Committee Report, I look for us to get by this time with, I hope, a one volume Session of the Legislature instead of the two volumes that we have been confronted with during the past Sessions.

You cannot tell Mr. President, by the amount of space that a bill takes up on the calendar as to the amount of work that went into it. For instance, Senate Bill No. 12, sponsored by Senator Walker, does not take up much space on the first page of our calendar, but over $400,000 went into the preparation of that bill. A great amount of research and a great amount of work was done on it. There are other bills that have appeared before us about which the same thing may be said, that is, that you cannot tell how much work goes into a bill by the amount of space it takes up on the calendar.

I do not think there is any great demand, Mr. President, at least from the people in my district, for any great number of new changes to be made in the laws and, perhaps, this Session can be noted by the amount of work that will be done by the Members in order to affect economies in State Government. I, for one, want to do everything possible to see that the Members of the Legislature now take up the challenge laid down by the Governor in his Message today, and try to have as many hearings as possible on the various recommendations of the Chesterman Committee, and implement those recommendations laid down by the Chesterman Committee with the necessary bills. Then, let us see about getting those bills out on the floor of the Senate for a vote.

Mr. President, there is one other thing I want to say while I am standing here, and that is about something which appeared on the first page of the Pittsburgh Press last Sunday, in which a very lovely picture of my friend, Mrs. Isabella Jones, appears. Now, I certainly do not want to pick a fight with Mrs. Jones either, but I note that she has opposed the adoption bills that are now in the Judiciary General Committee, sponsored by Senator Dent, the Minority Floor Leader, Senator Fleming and myself, as the Majority Floor Leader. I think it certainly should not be that a part of the Administration should oppose any bills that are before this Senate or before the House. After all, it is up to the Members of the Legislature, who are elected by the people, to decide whether or not legislation is good or bad. We are answerable to the people who elected us and it is up to us, acting independently of the Administrative Branch, to decide whether legislation is needed for the benefit of the people whom we represent. I hope that not only the Department of Welfare but other departments on the Hill will cease and desist from coming in and either sponsoring legislation or opposing legislation which is before the Legislature.

Mr. President, I know this much, that these bills which were prepared and sponsored by my colleagues, with the great help of former Senator Cox, who is now a Judge of the Orphans' Court of Allegheny County, were prepared after a great deal of study. Judge Cox is an expert, I think, by reason of his experience on adoption and what is needed to get adoptable children into homes of people who would like to adopt them.

Mr. President, tonight, as the sun goes down and night falls, there are a great many thousands of youngsters who are in the various orphanages of this Commonwealth who, perhaps, are going to go to sleep with tears in their eyes because they are failing to get the love and affection that might be theirs if they were in homes of adopted parents. It is up to us to do everything possible to see that this condition is remedied. I know of a great many cases where children's lives could very well have been wrecked had they not been taken into homes where they received the love and affection which was there for them.

Mr. President, it is up to us to see to it that this State takes appropriate action, from the experience of sister States in connection with this, and appoints some kind of a commission or some type of a bureau which will try to go into these various institutions and ascertain the parental circumstances surrounding these children; perhaps their parents have died and they only have an aunt or an uncle, or some relative, who does not care about them. However, because nobody does care and nobody takes the burden of doing something about them, those children are still there. We should see to it that some system is set up so that these children may be placed in the right kind of homes.

Mr. President, I trust that the Department of Welfare, or any other department for that matter, will try to aid us in our efforts to see that that is done.

Now, so much for the Pittsburgh Press. I really got my money's worth out of reading it last Sunday, and I do not mean to pick any fights with the newspapers. However, I think as we read these newspapers from time to time, that we should get up here and if they are a little bit wrong about their attitude toward us, we should take the time to call their attention to it. I feel that they will try to correct it. I think they are trying to report the news as accurately as they can.

Mr. President, one other thing which I think some of us Senators were misquoted on by our friend, Joe Miller, was that I think he said Senator Berger, and I, and others were against any open hearings on these matters that have been recommended by the Chesterman Committee. I want to assure my friend, Joe Miller, that not only on this but on all other legislation and all other matters I am for having the people come in here and let us know their wants, and have as many open hearings as possible. That is what we intend to do in connection with the bills before this Session of the Legislature.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President and Members of the Senate, continuing in the friendly fashion started by the Majority Floor Leader, and not wishing to pick a fight with anybody, which is unusual, I want to say, in commenting on the Governor's address this evening, that the Democratic Minority, of course, will cooperate to the fullest in every phase of the action to be taken on the Chesterman Report that deals with economy in government.

Mr. President, the merger consolidation of the various bureaus and departments of government has long been the theme of the Democratic policy on this Hill. If the Senators will allow me the privilege, in the very near future I expect to review the past ten or twelve years of Legislative Sessions and the various speeches that I have made upon the floor, dealing with the very subjects covered by the Chesterman Report. I hope to be able to point out that over the years the Democratic Minority has called for many of the recommendations now being made by the Chesterman Committee. We hope to accomplish that by holding the hearings that have been promised, and by close attention to the details of the task force reports. I am hoping, too, that the Majority Leader will make available to the Members of the Senate, if they so desire, the task force reports, because in my experience it has always been found that oft times the work sheets are more illuminating than the finished product which is brought out on the assembly line.

Therefore, Mr. President, I want the people of Pennsylvania to know that we will do everything in our power, as a minority, to put through during this Session all the economies possible in order that the tax burden may be lifted from the shoulders of the heavily burdened taxpayers of Pennsylvania.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I listened attentively to the report from the Governor, and the records show that since he has been Governor I am one man who has very seldom been found ready to agree with him. However, tonight, I must confess, I agree with his statements, because throughout the years my colleague from Westmoreland County, Senator Dent, and others, have pointed out to this Senate the extravagance in government, lack of economy, overlapping of departments and duplications.

Mr. President, again, as the Governor pointed out this evening on three or four occasions, he referred to previous administrations which he inherited, all of which convinces me now, thoroughly, that there must be an awful mess on Capitol Hill.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I listened very attentively to the distinguished Majority Leader's remarks and, in defense of the members of the press, I want to say that I, too, read the newspapers and from what I have read they have reported correctly what has happened in this Chamber. They report what they see and they report what they hear.

Mr. President, there is no question about the fact that we have been delinquent in our duties, and for that reason we have done little or nothing during this Session. It is all because of a lack of a legislative program. I do not know to this day where we are going. What is the procedure that we are going to follow to clean up this mess? We found out this afternoon, as we have been reading over a period of months, that a mess does exist here on Capital Hill.

Mr. President, I will tell you now, as I say whenever I get a chance to talk and as I say each Sunday on the radio, if we continue to come up here two days a week, and if we are to clean up this hodgepodge that exists here, not in this Chamber but in the State Government, we will be here not only for a period equivalent to last Session but we will be here this time next year. We have got to get a program together of some kind; we have got to establish some kind of a procedure. I have some things in mind, and I expect to present a resolution that I think will be helpful to the situation.

I said before Mr. President, and I say again, we are here to legislate, but we cannot legislate without facts. The only place we can get facts is by public hearings, but not public hearings that are set for a half hour, or an hour or two hours. They must be public hearings for as long as it will take to complete that public hearing, so that we can get all of the facts and all of the figures and all of the data that is needed to clean up one department at a time. We have got to go into it in proper order, with a properly established procedure. If we do that, we will expedite our work here; if we do not, we just will not expedite our work.

Mr. President, I was glad to hear the distinguished Majority Floor Leader say that he is for public hearings on any matter that is of interest to the general public. As of now, he has been the chronic objector. I trust and I hope that when a resolution is presented calling upon the Senate, or the Senate and the House, to conduct an investigation that is of interest to the people in order that we can get facts, facts about which we are called upon to legislate, that he will not say, "I object."

Mr. President, told the distinguished Majority Leader earlier in the Session that if he would adopt the policy of objecting to every resolution that was presented, regardless of merit, I would stack up my desk with audit reports and I would start to read them. Then, if he wanted to construe my actions as a filibuster, that was entirely up to him. There is only one way that you can call to the attention of the public those things which are wrong, and those things which are needed, and that is by some drastic action. The filibuster, I suppose, is the best way that it can be done.

Mr. President, I say again, I am happy that the Majority Leader now has said for the record that he is for public hearings, and we will find out the sincerity of his statement within a very short time.

Mr. MAHANY. Mr. President, to correct Senator Yosko's statement, I did not object to his resolutions but I objected to the immediate consideration of them. This is a deliberative body and I would like to have all my colleagues know, if they think that I am going to stand idly by here while they take up resolutions involving controversies which need a great deal of study and, perhaps, are in connection with the controversies in Washington, as were presented by some resolutions here last week, requiring a great deal of study and many hearings on the part of our Congressmen, and expect us, without any notice, just to rear back here and everybody vote "aye" on them without any particular study, then they are mistaken as far as my attitude is concerned.

Mr. President, if someone wants to get up here and present a resolution congratulating a local football team on their splendid record, and desires immediate consideration of such a resolution, I will go along with that and will not object. If they want to congratulate somebody on their birthday, I will not object. However, if they are, if anyone, for that matter, is going to present resolutions which are going to require study, then there is only one thing for me to do, and that is to object to the immediate consideration so that they may be referred to the proper committee. After all, that is what we have these committees for in the Senate. After that committee has studied the resolution, and feels that it has merit and reports it to the floor, then we may act upon it. I may vote "aye" for many of those resolutions which Senator Yosko has presented if the committees report them.

INTERROGATION

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Majority Floor Leader, Senator Mahany.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Crawford, Mr. Mahany, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MAHANY. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. YOSKO. Senator Mahany, will you agree to a conference to discuss a change in the Rules of the Senate that would compel action on the resolutions that are referred to committees and to which you object so far as immediate consideration is concerned, so that within a given specified time those resolutions can be reported from committee for debate?

My experience, Mr. Majority Leader, has been that when a resolution is objected to and it goes to committee, it never again sees the light of day. Forty-three of them went to the Rules Committee last year, and about twenty some to other committees, and they just never saw the light of day. I wonder whether the same procedure is going to be followed this time.

Mr. MAHANY. Mr. President, in answer to that question, I will be glad to have a conference with Senator Yosko or any other Senator at any time, but I cannot very well upset the Rules here.

Mr. President, when a committee is in charge of any legislation or a resolution, it is in the hands of that committee. If they decide not to report it to the floor, then there is only one way that we have of making them do so and that is by a motion to discharge the committee. Since I have been in the Legislature, I do not believe that such a motion has ever prevailed. I believe that when the Democrats were in control of the various branches of the Legislature, no motion like that ever got through. So, I will be glad to have a conference with the Senator.

Mr. LEADER. Mr. President, I would like to take a few minutes to bring to the attention of the gentlemen of the Senate a phase of the economy of our Nation which has not received a great deal of attention here in the General Assembly since I have been a Member of it, and that is our agricultural economy.

Mr. President, in the year 1900, there were nearly 225,000 farms in Pennsylvania, with 13,209,000 acres under cultivation. By 1950, there were less than 150,000 farms in Pennsylvania, with 8,000,000 acres under cultivation. In spite of this decline in acreage, production on farms was at an all-time high. This speaks well for the Pennsylvania farmer who has been brought up on the noblest traditions of free enterprise, moral responsibility, frugal management and old-fashioned toil. In spite of all of these splendid qualities of the Pennsylvania farmer, his combining of education, knowledge and experience with science, power and machinery to attain a new peak in the production of crops, livestock, poultry, eggs and dairy products, he is facing a most serious crisis comparable to that which beset him prior to the farm depression of the early twenties. Indicative of the tightening pinch is the net increase of more than $2,000,000,000 in farm debt mostly short-term, in the past year. Rising costs may boost this another $3,000,000,000 this year, Washington economists predict.

Farm prices now at a postwar low, Mr. President, are expected to drop another five per cent in the next few months with another five per cent rise in cost. At the same time, the marketing cost has increased. In other words, the farmer was receiving fifty-four per cent of the retail price a year ago; now he is getting only forty-five per cent of the retail price. Farm exports have fallen off thirty per cent, while a large part of the world's population lives on starvation diets.

Yes, Mr. President, we on the farms of Pennsylvania are willing to "earn our bread by the sweat of our brow" if that is enough to provide for us a modern standard of living for ourselves and our children. We are willing to utilize the wonders of science and education as well as the fruits of research if that is enough to give us parity of income with other segments of our society. Yes, we are willing to do all that if we can be sure that when we have trusted our future to the tender mercies of the law of supply and demand that we have the necessary safeguards to protect us from the ruthless fate of the many farmers who have felt disaster when exposed to the law of supply and demand in the twenties and early thirties.

As a farmer, Mr. President, I am not prone to criticize hastily the new administration in Washington. I cannot, however, overlook the personal affront I feel as a farmer when the press reports that the new Secretary of Agriculture seeks to cure the many ills of agriculture by the timeworn prescription of "hard work and moral integrity."

The farmer, Mr. President, has certain fixed costs that he must meet to survive such as interest, taxes, support of his family. That requires twice as much $1.00 per bushel corn as $2.00 per bushel corn, so as the price declines, production must by necessity increase and, by the same token, surpluses increase. He needs more than an exposition on the system of free enterprise to cope with his problems. President Eisenhower recognized this at Kasson, Minnesota, in the major agricultural speech of the campaign, when he promised the farmers one hundred per cent parity support prices.

Mr. President, I personally do not know if subsidy is the answer. I do not know if increased exports will be the answer, but I do know that farmers, though a hearty and independent people, expect sound, constructive, aggressive action on the part of government. I also know that sooner or later our entire economy will stand or fall on the basis of the strength of our agricultural economy. If, as the Secretary of Agriculture believes, price supports are a form of "disaster insurance", then it might be well to determine soon when does a disaster exist, before, during or after the process of separating the farmer from his farm? Is it a disaster to destroy the family type farmer, or only to destroy the corporate type farm?

Agriculture has always been subsidized, Mr. President. Transportation in all its forms has been subsidized. Many of the professions today, including medicine, the law and teaching, are subsidized. Industry through tax write-offs is being subsidized. The farmer, though prouder than some of these, and though his organizations have oftentimes spoken out against subsidy, history would indicate that he was, in a broad sense, subsidized from the very beginnings here in America.

Mr. President, much of the frontier was settled by squatters and homesteaders. He sold low cost food from the bounty of his Creator until the substance of the soil would no longer produce, and then he moved on from one divine subsidy to another on new land on a new frontier. Finally, with no more land to conquer, agriculture's collapse gave inspiration to writers to paint word pictures like "The Grapes of Wrath" and "Rich Land Poor Land," to arouse public consciousness on the part of people of both country and city of the imperative need for government subsidies in conservation payments and price supports at near parity levels.

Mr. President, I have no complaint against the men who have been selected to head the Department of Agriculture in Washington, though they do not come from the farms of America, but it is the statement of policy by an administrator that I fear. Law and policy are the prerogatives of the representations of the people, and price supports and conservation are the products of law. These laws are sound and workable as proved by trial and error and experimentation, and should not be changed by the whims of an administrator but by the collective thinking of law-makers.

To destroy these creations, Mr. President, without creating something to fill the void would result in several catastrophes. One, it would be a return to the destruction of our soil. Two, it would mean further and much greater exploitation of child labor at the expense of building a better and finer generation. Three, it will mean that we shall endanger the food supply and the living standard of our country. Fourth, it will set up the conditions for a major depression for the entire Country.

Mr. President, we have made progress on the farms of America in the past twenty years. With more automobiles, tractors, bathrooms and electric freezers, farmers have now learned to live like other people and they will not be satisfied to go back to the old days, and I will not say the "Good Old Days." You may travel in any direction, Mr. President, from Harrisburg, and visit any farmer you meet, and I assure you that you will not discover any absence of sweat on the brow of any of us. However, I resent, and I am sure my comrades in toil resent, any responsible statement from an agricultural administrator to further punish the farmer by driving him from his hard earned "Garden of Eden" with the injunction, "By the sweat of thy face shall thou eat bread."

Mr. HARNEY. Mr. President, in reply to Senator Leader's remarks, as far as the Secretary of Agriculture is concerned on a National level, he is working entirely under laws that were passed by a Democratic administration, and there have been no laws changed as far as the Republican administration is concerned.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. BROWN, ASHTON, HOCKER and ROYER. RESOLUTION No. 19.

In the House of Representatives, February 17, 1953.

Under the laws of the United States, cigarettes, tobacco, and playing cards, for the use of veterans in Veterans' Administration hospitals are free from federal taxes.

In State hospitals in this Commonwealth under the Department of Welfare, there are presently over sixteen hundred veterans under care, to whom the benefits of the exemption from federal law do not apply only because they are in State rather than federal installations for care; now therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, that we hereby memorialize the Congress of the United States to amend the laws imposing federal taxes on cigarettes, tobacco and playing cards, to extend the present exemption, applying to veterans in federal hospitals, to apply to veterans in both federal and State institutions; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House shall transmit copies of this resolution to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tem of the Senate of the Congress of the United States and to each of the United States Senators and members of Congress from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Messrs. TAYLOR, KOLANKIEWICZ, WHITE, McGEE, Mrs. CROYLE, Mr. HERSCH, Mrs. MONROE, Messrs. PETTIGREW, GRANVILLE E. JONES, FLOYD, GLICK, BAZIN, LEVEN, HOGGARD, HARRIS, ALEXANDER, McCORMACK, DOUGHERTY and Mrs. VARALLO. RESOLUTION No. 20.

In the House of Representatives, February 17, 1953.

Whereas, Philadelphia is Pennsylvania's most populous city and of world importance; and

Whereas, The health, safety and convenience of Philadelphia's residents is a matter of grave concern; and

Whereas, Dump fires at night in Philadelphia have caused great danger to the very lives of Philadelphians, and have interrupted the normal processes of living by creating fear of loss of life from these fires; and

Whereas, The odors and smoke which emanate from dump fires, have in conjunction with the fires, caused a mass sense of frustration and a general feeling of ill-will to arise towards the municipal authorities for failure to take any corrective measures against this long prevalent evil; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Mayor of Philadelphia is hereby directed to provide for the taking over regulation and maintenance of dumps within the city limits by the constituted governmental authorities of Philadelphia; and to keep caretakers and watchmen at such dumps to prevent the burning of fires at night.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Messrs. SARRAF and LEVEN. RESOLUTION No. 21.

In the House of Representatives, February 17, 1953.

The Departments of Health and Welfare of this Commonwealth have shown themselves unwilling to pay personnel in State hospitals salaries adjusted to present living costs.

As a result, Pennsylvania is in effect exporting trained men and women from its institutions to other jurisdictions and its own hospitals for the mentally and physically ill are understaffed.

A continuation of such policy and failure to increase technical staffs employed in State hospitals means not only the denial of care to the physically and mentally ill but also destruction of the usefulness of the $175,000,000 General State Authority construction program; now therefore be it

Resolved, by the House of Representatives, That we hereby adjure the Department of Health and the Department of Welfare to revise upward the salaries payable to personnel in State hospitals to retain and attract adequate skilled personnel and to increase the technical staffs of State hospitals caring for the physically and mentally ill in order that these departments may furnish adequate care to the patients in such State hospitals.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

BILLS ON FIRST READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the first reading and consideration of House Bill No. 105, entitled:

An Act to amend Section 1222 of the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety; regulating the use of highways, and the operation of vehicles, tractors, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians, and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth; providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances, and legal claims; registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof, upon payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of vehicles, and garage keepers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation and providing for refunds," by increasing secretary's fee for supplying certain information.

And said bill having been read at length the first time
Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the first reading and consideration of House Bill No. 112, entitled:

And said bill having been read at length the first time,
Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 47, entitled:

An Act authorizing fiduciaries to receive compensation from trust principal before the end of their service and before the end of their trusts and providing for allowances of compensation to fiduciaries out of trust income or trust principal or both either during the continuance or at the end of their trusts.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 111, entitled:

An Act to continue the imposition of the tax on gross premiums, premium deposits and assessments received from business transacted within this Commonwealth by foreign insurance companies, associations and exchanges.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, this bill has had considerable study and publicity among the volunteer firemen, paid firemen and the policemen in the state of Pennsylvania because it is very important to them.

It has also had considerable consideration from the insurance company representatives and people in the insurance business. I think some of the provisions in the bill are not quite clear to Members of the House, and perhaps to firemen and policemen and insurance agents and others interested.

Therefore, to bring out some of the features which might or might not be included in House Bill 111 Printer's No. 10, I would like to interrogate a Member of the House, who is one of our insurance experts, and who has in the past devoted considerable time and study, not only to insurance bills and insurance matters but to matters pertaining to the volunteer firemen. At the last session this gentleman was quite active in firemen's legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Stimmel.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Stimmel, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. STIMMEL. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, I would like the gentleman to explain to the House a brief history of this bill and why it is being offered at this session.

Mr. STIMMEL. I will try, Mr. Speaker.

This bill is intended to clarify and to perpetuate the amount of money that goes to the Firemen's Relief Fund and the Police Pension Fund from most insurance companies who are not Pennsylvania companies—by that I mean those companies that are not domiciled in Pennsylvania, who are chartered either outside of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, or are of foreign companies, and companies other than those operating in the United States. There is some question under the present law as a result of the last session, bills that affected these funds as to the validity of these payments.

Now to make absolutely certain that the payments are made to the volunteer firemen, the paid firemen and the police pension fund, this bill has been brought before this House. And this bill will do just that, it will make certain those for whom the money is intended and has been in the past, will get the money.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, I imagine the gentleman refers to House Bill 1742 at the last session—the tax bill?

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, that was the bill that I believe affected this particular distribution of money.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, in other words, that was the bill that among other things put a two per cent tax on domestic insurance companies, including mutuals, life insurance companies?

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, I believe that is the bill.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, it is your understanding when 1742 passed that it was a temporary bill?

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, I believe the bill indicated that and I believe it was enacted for a period of two years.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, and it expired December 31, 1952?

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, no, I believe it expires in June or July 1, 1953.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, very well. Before the fiscal biennium or something like that?

Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman, under 1742 was not the tax on foreign life insurance and other insurance companies invalidated, and would that tax also expire at this time under the 1742 bill?

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, that is a lawyer's question, and I do not think I am in a position to answer it. I do not believe it was ever the intent to have the foreign insurance company come into this picture at all. 1742, as I recall it, was a tax on domestic, mutual and domestic companies, those domiciled in Pennsylvania.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, the title of this bill is to continue the imposition of the tax on gross premiums, and so forth, by foreign insurance companies, associations and exchanges. That would mean all companies, is that right?

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, that is correct.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, under Section 1, the bill states that every insurance company or exchange authorized to do business shall pay the two per cent tax. Is that right?

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, that is correct.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, and only under Section 2 does the bill say that the entire amount from the two per cent tax on fire insurance shall be distributed and used for firemen's relief, pension and retirement purposes; and the tax on casualty—foreign casualty insurance shall be distributed and used for police pension and retirement.

That is the important feature of this bill to the firemen and the policemen, Section 2, is that right?

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, that is correct.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, however, the bill as written, as I understand it, not only distributes the fire and casualty tax as a benefit to the volunteer and paid firemen and policemen, but it also is a revenue raising tax under Section 1 whereby the tax on foreign life insurance premiums and other insurance premiums would go into the General Fund. Is that right?

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, may I explain?

Yes, that is correct. It must be remembered, however, that in all prior years, in fact, I believe since 1889, the two per cent tax collected from foreign fire insurance companies, casualty companies and life companies was distributed thus: two per cent was given to the firemen, of which one per cent went to the paid firemen; the other one per cent to the volunteer firemen; two per cent of the casualty companies went to the policemen; the life companies' two per cent went to the general fund of the state.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman yield?

The Senate is now entering the Hall of the House for a special order of business set for this time, a Joint Session. We will return to this question on House Bill 111, Printer's No. 10, after the Joint Session.

The SERGEANT-AT-ARMS. Mr. President, a Committee on the part of the Senate.

Mr. LETZLER. Mr. President, I have the honor to present to you His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Honorable John S. Fine.

The PRESIDENT. Members of the General Assembly, the Chair has the honor and privilege of presenting His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Honorable John S. Fine, who will address you.

ADDRESS OF GOVERNOR JOHN S. FINE

To the Honorable, the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Members of the General Assembly:

This great Commonwealth is favored by every natural advantage which a benign Providence can bestow. We are foremost among states in all that healthy contented labor and great humming industry can provide. Yet we find ourselves hitched to and stymied by an antiquated outmoded Constitution, for which at times many seem to have more reverence than for the Bible and its lessons of the Brotherhood of Man. Would that we could hear in legislative corridors more in elevation of the equality and dignity of the man and less in defense of the cobwebbed pattern of our basic law.

Moreover, the structure of your State Government has for some time outgrown efficiency and has promoted extravagance. Shortly after assuming office it was obvious to me, as it must have been to you, that much could be done to eradicate evils in your Government, and that the field was expansive for improvement of the State services.

How and when to proceed with improvements were the only questions before us; the necessity of proceeding with a survey of government was never clouded in any doubt. How such survey as the one before us could have been overlooked and been delayed until this Administration is quite confounding.

Preoccupation with legislative matters during the first year of my Administration unfortunately delayed until March of the second year the consummation of the plan to appoint a Governor's Committee, now familiarly known as the Chesterman State Government Survey Committee. This Governor's Committee, consisting of able and learned men of both parties, who are devoted both to their Commonwealth and their fellow citizens, have unsparingly and unselfishly given of their time, as have numerous members of Task Forces, to remodel the mechanism of government for a twofold purpose: (1) substantial economy of operation; (2) greater efficiency in operation.

They have submitted to me out of their long labors the patterns and the charts which I have in turn presented to you. It is as sparing in its condemnations as it is in its commendations. By and large it is fair in most of its recommendations, and restrained in most of its criticisms of the fabric of State Government which this Administration inherited from the unharried and untormented past.

I ask you to receive this report of the Governor's Committee with open-mindedness, analyze it with logic and reason, and conclude with those wholesome changes which only minds and hearts devoted to a better Commonwealth could wrought. In this process there should be no room for the partisan spirit or the ordinary rules of politics.

Pennsylvania will not be submerged in the backwaters of political inaction nor succumb to the deadweight of unworthy leadership. I am certain all of you will arouse yourself to the call. It must be remembered Pennsylvania and its citizenry is always capable of arousing itself when it senses a crisis and sees an unheeded cure.

Let me make it crystal clear at the outset that the Chesterman Committee does not anticipate nor expect—I am sure—acceptance of its program in toto. It is reasonable to assume that in the exercise of your best judgment you may properly override some of their recommendations, as the Chesterman Committee itself overrode the recommendations of some of its own Task Forces. The people will respond to a rejected recommendation as favorably as to an accepted recommendation only if the rejection is rooted in logic, reason, or sanctioning experience, and is openly arrived at. Wherever feasible public hearings should be immediately proceeded with, and the proposals should be fully and rewardingly explored through debate on the floors of both legislative chambers.

It seems to me we ought to approach in an orderly manner the proposed substitution of economy and efficiency for any extravagance, waste, or inefficiency accumulated over the years prior to the advent of this Administration, and for which the Governor is in no way responsible by any stretch of imagination. To accomplish this purpose we should first confine ourselves to savings which can be effected in the General Fund during the next biennium, 1953-55, as only these savings—and these savings only—bear upon the tax problem which must be solved at this session of the Legislature.

If you will refer to page 9 of the Report—Tabulation of Estimated Potential Savings—the General Fund Savings for the Biennium 1953-55 are listed as $15,841,700. Referring to the lower section of the tabulation you will find savings listed to "All Funds," also Fish, Game, and Motor Funds. The "All Funds" items have (including liquor) a total of $6,200,000 which can be saved by administrative action.

We do not believe more than $3,600,000 of that sum can be reflected in the General Fund, which already has been done in the preparation of our Budget. The balance of $2,600,000 will be reflected in other budgets (motor, etc.) when they are presented later. Of the $12,175,000 in "All Funds," Fish, Game, and Motor Funds (Savings solely by Legislative action, lower section of tabulation) $1,675,000 are credited to Fish, Game, and Motor only, leaving $10,500,000 in savings to "All Funds" (including General) which can be effected only by legislation. If we assume one-half of the latter figure can be credited to General Fund (hereinafter discussed) the total savings from those sources would be (in so far as they affect the next Budget and tax picture) $5,250,000. The total savings which could, therefore, be effected in the General Fund by Administrative and Legislative actions during the 1953-55 biennium, if all recommendations of the Governor's Committee were rigidly followed, could not be more than $24,691,700. $6,982,000 of that sum is already reflected in our Budget estimates of appropriations. Also, the sum of $1,600,000 listed under Health, Welfare and Public Assistance, is credited in our Budget to increased income. Hence a total sum of $8,582,000 is already reflected in our Budget either in decreased appropriations ($6,982,000) or increased income ($1,600,000). Deducting this total from $24,691,700 leaves a balance of $16,109,700 as the total savings yet to be effected in the General Fund for the next biennium 1953-55, all of which must be done by you through Legislative action.

Only the sum of $16,109,700 can be adopted in reducing the next Budget if you approve the Committee's report in toto (affecting the next two years) and you enact the necessary legislation. For the next General Fund purposes (and our tax problem will revolve around this Fund) the figure you must bear in mind continuously is $16,109,700.

Of course that is a sizable sum, and it must have a sobering influence on estimates of appropriations and income. Moreover, its companions for the next two years, the sums spent in Fish, Game, and Motor Funds, must be harnessed to economy and efficiency to effect as much of the additional recommended savings of $9,725,000 as it is humanly possible to save. In case of doubt, let the doubt be resolved in favor of economies.

Whether the Survey Committee has been too liberal in its estimates of savings, or whether services recommended by them for abolition or merger should be abolished or merged, will be in main determined by you, the Legislature. However, it is of paramount importance that we recognize at the outset that the labors of this Committee represent a tremendous stride for the good of this Commonwealth. Unhesitatingly and publicly I salute and gratefully thank them and those associated with them in the preparation of this helpful report.

I now proceed to highlight the more important recommendations affecting the various departments of State Government.

AGRICULTURE

It is proposed to abolish the Milk Control Commission "as such," and transfer "its price fixing and other functions" to the Department of Agriculture. It does not clearly appear that the attack on the Commission is restricted to its independence as an agency. If it is contemplated that all its present functions were to be delegated to a Bureau Chief in the Department of Agriculture, I would pause in the grant of approval. Such functions, if continued, should be delegated to a Board under the Secretary of Agriculture, because one of the purposes of the present Commission is to insure a stable market for 55,000 dairy farmers and 1,700 dealers.

In 1951 the dairy products produced by these farmers aggregated 31.78 per cent of their total farm income. The dairy industry in Pennsylvania represents an investment of $1,920,000,000 and provides an income to a population of 407,000 people.

The recommended savings should be effected if at all possible. All other recommendations under this title are likewise worthy and merit serious and favorable consideration.

BANKING

All recommendations capable of adoption by administrative action will be accorded approval. Some require legislative sanction, and to secure it bills will be prepared for early presentation.

COMMERCE

The Committee's Report does not square with the report of the Task Force. A merger of the functions of this office with other offices (discussed later) might well be in aid of more concentrated, less conflicting government. I am not prepared to impeach any of Commerce's functions, particularly advertisement of the greatness of Pennsylvania in all its respects.

For the last biennium Pennsylvania will have spent some $333,000 for promotion of both tourist and vacation business and inducing industry and business to come into Pennsylvania. This figure includes the expenditure for Pennsylvania Week.

Contrast this with the nearly one million dollars annually spent by Florida and California. Miami alone spends approximately $600,000 in promotion for vacation and tourist business annually.

In 1950 Pennsylvania was tenth in expenditures for tourists and vacation advertising, and fourth in vacation business.

However, allocations for this kind of advertising have been lessening with a consequent drop in vacation and tourist business. We dropped from fourth place in 1950 to sixth place in 1951, yet Pennsylvania has everything to offer the tourist and the vacationist.

In a recent report of the Commissioner of the Department of Commerce in New York to Governor Dewey the gain in Pennsylvania of new industries for a certain period was five times that in New York. It must be borne in mind that new industries do not just come into a State. Securing them is the most competitive business confronting communities and states.

Personally I am a firm believer in the efficacy of Pennsylvania Week. The amount the Commonwealth spends in the promotion of the Week is only a portion of overall expenditures by business, industry, labor, and others. Moreover, there is recruited in this tremendous project 6000 volunteers, active dynamic men and women, all Pennsylvanians, who are year round saleswomen and salesmen of Pennsylvania.

One of the principal functions of the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce all through its operation has been to encourage local communities to do something themselves to attract industries. Through Pennsylvania Week we set up actual working committees in every county. County committees in most cases set up actual working committees in towns, boroughs, and cities.

The remaining recommendations, particularly the proposal to transfer the Harrisburg Airport to municipal or combined municipal-county ownership should be given early and favorable consideration.

FORESTS AND WATERS; FISH AND GAME

I am in accord with the proposition that Brandywine Battlefield Park Commission, now an independent administrative commission, should be under the Department of Forests and Waters. A bill has already been presented to this Legislature to effect such transfer.

The merger of the Department of Forests and Waters and Game and Fish Commissions into a Conservation Department may not, as is so generally supposed by sportsmen, react unfavorably to the hunter and fisherman. Any approach to this merger, however, should be measured with every possible safeguard to the propagation of fish and small game and their protection, so that Pennsylvania will indeed be the hunter's and fisherman's paradise.

Secretary Lewis of the Department of Forests and Waters has done a splendid job in reorganizing that Department. He already has effected annual savings of $342,550 (or $685,100 biennially) and anticipates further annual savings of $35,200, or savings during the next biennium of $755,500.

HEALTH, WELFARE AND PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

The recommendation to merge Health, Welfare and Public Assistance seems meritorious. Whether certain institutions such as the Scotland School for Veterans' Children, for instance, should be transferred from Public Instruction to the merged department is very questionable. If this service and kindred services for our veterans are to be continued then present departmental attachments will not contribute either to waste or inefficiency.

It has been the State policy to award certain preferential considerations to our veterans themselves and/or their families. This policy was only recently and favorably re-announced when the Pennsylvania electorate overwhelmingly approved a 500 million bond issue to pay a merited bonus to our war veterans. Such policy is likewise applicable to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home at Erie and to veterans' aid through the Department of Military Affairs.

Much can be said in behalf of the proposal for placement of rehabilitation in the merged department. However, the Department of Labor and Industry is not without potent argument for its retention. I must tell you the Department of Labor and Industry under Secretary Walker has worked most effectively in this field.

Recommendations 2, 3, 5, 7, 8, and 9 (1, 6, and 10 have already been discussed) may be profitably discussed and debated, as each possesses much merit. It is expected that number 9, which pertains in part to penal matters, will be augmented in much detail in the Report of the General Devers' Committee which is now surveying our penal system.

It is recommended that the ten state medical and surgical hospitals should be transferred to local financial responsibility and management. The recommendation poses a sound objective. Ordinarily no section of the State should be given preferential treatment over another section.

The practice was initiated when the economy of mine regions it was designed to serve was excellent. The purpose, however, was laudable, as it was in aid of mine workers whose labors were perilous. It has resulted, however, in a diminution of local incentive to do that which other communities are required to do for themselves.

However desirable the transfers, it would fringe on hard-heartedness, to say the least, to expect those communities already suffering from distressed economy and with the future horizons perhaps bleaker, to assume additional burdens of such tremendous proportions.

The Legislature might consider a long range program which could gradually ease the burden of full transfers of these hospitals to local management and responsibility at a future date. In this way eventual savings to the Commonwealth of approximately five million a biennium might then be made.

Legislation effecting the merger of these Departments will be very involved and will require much research, consuming considerable time.

DEPARTMENTS OF HIGHWAYS

Although all funds spent by this Department are from the Motor Fund and are not reflected in the tax problem confronting us, nevertheless they are tax monies (gasoline, etc.) and the recommended savings of $500,000 should be made if at all possible. The mere fact that $500,000 is a very small percentage of the prospective Motor Fund Budget in excess of 400 million does not detract from the necessity to save dollars. All recommendations should be thoroughly studied and adopted where feasible.

INTERNAL AFFAIRS

As you well know, the Secretary of this Department is elective. I am personally unfamiliar with most of its functions and express no opinion on the merits of the recommendations of savings other than to note that there is some overlapping of Executive Departments with his Department or vice versa. It may be pertinent to observe that nothing substantial can result from the recommendation during the next biennium, as it will require a Constitutional Amendment to abolish that office. In passing, I further note that in such event the heavens will not fall.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE—STATE POLICE—PAROLE BOARD

It is recommended that the Pennsylvania State Police and the Pennsylvania Parole Board become functions of the Department of Justice. It is contemplated that the Board of Parole continue to have administrative independence in making decisions on parole matters. I approve these recommendations.

This recommendation is in keeping with the committee's aim to reduce the number of departments and boards reporting directly to the Governor.

It is suggested that by consolidation 10 per cent of the budgets of each of these agencies can be saved. This represents a total of $2,364,700 of which $939,700 would be from the General Fund and the balance from the Motor Fund. There is little if any duplication of services in these three agencies and just how placing them under one head would result in the economy is not set forth in the report, but if any saving can be made by combining them, it should be made.

It is also suggested that a study should be made to determine whether too many trained State Policemen are tied down with paper work that could be performed just as well with clerical help at a lower cost. This study will be made.

LABOR AND INDUSTRY

The estimated savings of $500,000 a biennium have already been reflected in the Budget. Many of the recommendations to effect economies and/or efficiencies have already been adopted. Some are still under study, with probability that most all will be adopted. The remaining recommendations either pose serious legal problems or enter a field which needs clarification by extended discussions and debate. These contingencies will not impair the efficiency of the services nor contribute any waste.

LIQUOR CONTROL BOARD

The recommended savings of $500,000 during the next biennium approach the realm of accomplishment. Four warehousing contracts, Pittsburgh, Scranton, Philadelphia, and Harrisburg will expire within the next five months. Surveys will be made for more favorable terms and the advisability of the State erecting its own warehouses will be explored. All proposals of the Committee are presently receiving the attention of the Liquor Control Board.

DEPARTMENT OF MINES

The mineworkers and the mining industry are fearful the merger of the Mine Department with the Department of Labor and Industry will have an adverse effect on the mining industry generally and deteriorate the State inspection of hazardous mining conditions. Both feel the mining industry is sufficiently large to warrant its own Department. If the merger had the effect of relegating mining to lesser strength in our economy or had a tendency to lessen safety regulations for mineworkers I would unhesitatingly oppose such proposal. The Legislature should fully explore the objections of the mineworkers and mine management to determine whether they are rooted in logic or in pride. All other recommendations appear to be meritorious. The Task Force seeks clarification on their report, claiming they did not recommend a merger of this Department with Labor and Industry.

PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

I am of the firm opinion the recommended savings can be effected and in fact exceeded. Further, our independent survey of nonsupport conditions in Pennsylvania indicate substantial savings can be made from a tightening of support laws and their strict enforcement. For these reasons we further reduced the requests of Public Assistance by ten million dollars.

PUBLIC EDUCATION

It is my opinion that more encouragement should be given liberal arts colleges to participate in teacher training. However, it must be remembered that the State Teachers' Colleges are an integral part of the public school system. They have the responsibility of providing our public schools with adequately prepared teachers.

Today we are faced with a most critical situation in the matter of the supply of qualified teachers for our public school system. The number of graduates of our teacher training institutions, both public and private, is insufficient to meet the potential demand. The latest survey indicates that the total number of graduates of private and public teacher training institutions in Pennsylvania provided only 90 per cent of the number needed for normal replacements.

While this fact in itself indicates strongly the need for an increased number of teachers, we must also take into account the additional fact that the birth rate is very much on the increase.

Vital statistics show that births last year were the highest in history. They were at a rate of about 25 per 1,000 of population.

This is strongly indicative that in the decade ahead our schools will be crowded even worse than at present. This increased population demands not only expansions of the number of schools in our present system but incontrovertibly shows the imperative necessity of training more teachers.

Last year throughout the Nation there were close to 26 million children in the schools. Statisticians say we may look for a three to four million increased enrollment within the next few years.

It would seem that with the critical shortage of teachers and an enrollment of 12,000 students in the Teachers' Colleges with a potential capacity of 14,000, we would better use our energies to recruit our best high school graduates to use our institutions to full capacity.

How much could be immediately saved by the elimination of one-half of the Teachers' Colleges is highly questionable. Manifestly the institutions would be put to some use for State purposes. For instance one might be devoted to rehabilitation of alcoholics and others would be utilized for other useful purposes.

Eventually, of course, there could be very substantial savings because such eliminations would provide plant facilities which would have to be otherwise secured through new construction. Because of this prospect it seems the formulation of a long-range program on Teachers' Colleges is highly advisable.

The laws and administration of State subsidies and reimbursements should be improved and strictly enforced to effect if possible the savings set forth in the report.

Recommendations 1 to 9 inclusive should be vigorously pursued with effective results to the State. Recommendation 10, except in so far as heretofore discussed, possesses much merit. State appropriations for medical education have already been suggested in the Budget on a flat amount per student. The legislation passed in the last session of the Legislature has greatly improved the conditions of distressed districts and their probable future avoidance. The last Legislature created a Bureau of Higher Education which is coordinating education on the higher levels, such as is being done by the Board of Regents in New York State.

Phases of reorganization within the Department of Public Instruction are now being surveyed and explored by the Department. A reorganization of the Department was approved by the Executive Board.

It should be borne in mind, too, that some of the suggested proposals can be made effective only after the long process of Constitutional amendment.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Recommendations of the Survey 1 to 6 inclusive might well be considered in aid of better government. Recommendation number 7 seeking transfer of functions from the Department of Internal Affairs may require Constitutional amendment. Recommendation number 8 pertaining to Retirements is worthy of earnest consideration, and if feasible should be adopted.

I am firmly convinced the Department of Military Affairs ought not to be placed in the Department of State. There is no good reason in support of this step other than the promotion of merger. The Department of Military Affairs has reached tremendous proportions, and can be more effectively operated as a separate entity supervised by one versed in military affairs. Unless there is a prevailing reason to the contrary, Civil Defense might well be incorporated in the Department of Military Affairs.

Nor would I incorporate the Department of Insurance and Banking in the Department of State. I would consider the merger of the Department of Commerce with the proposed Financial Institutions, consisting, as suggested, of the Departments of Banking and Insurance, with other functions. My suggestion is not a rigid one requiring all functions of Commerce to be transferred to the proposed new Department.

COMMONWEALTH ACCOUNTING

I urge the Legislature to study thoroughly the recommendations to effect the most modern governmental book-keeping and accounting methods and reports as might be available. In furtherance of such meritorious objective the Administration will thoroughly cooperate.

Much has been heretofore said about placing the State on an accrual basis. The Attorney General advises me that he can conceive of no way that expenditures can be made against revenues accrued but not collected at the end of the biennium without having deficit financing, which could not be done beyond $1,000,000 without violating the Constitution.

AUTOMOTIVE EQUIPMENT

The Administration is in full accord with most criticisms and suggestions concerning automotive equipment, and is proceeding to make effective the recommendations as fully as feasible.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

The recommendations are constructive and meritorious and will be put into effect as rapidly as time and reorganization will permit.

INSTITUTIONAL FARM MANAGEMENT

All recommendations are sound and will be adopted with dispatch.

INSTITUTIONAL FEEDING

The Administration views this report as outstanding, probably because we were about to initiate this study with others prior to the appointment of the Survey Committee. We decided to leave all these matters to that Committee, and a splendid job has been performed, Although somewhat involved, this program will be initiated at the earliest possible date.

LICENSING

It seems to me the recommendations on licensing might be adopted in their entirety with much improvement of the State service. I urge it most strenuously.

PERSONNEL ADMINISTRATION

At the outset it is necessary to call your attention to an apparent error in the amount of savings which is set up under Personnel Administration for the 1953-55 biennium. On pages 9 of this title the Committee estimates savings of $20,000,000 a biennium can be realized by the adoption of certain recommendations which might mistakenly be construed to indicate such savings can be effected during the next biennium.

This assertion is repeated on the succeeding page 10. Yet reference to the Tabulation Chart on page 9 (page preceding the index) will show a claim for $10,000,000 in savings during the next biennium and a total of $20,000,000 over the next three biennia. It is unfortunate this error has crept into the Report, as I have repeatedly sought clarification not only of the misunderstanding but enlightenment on specific matters which prompted the computation.

I urge the Legislature to thoroughly and ruthlessly explore these proposed savings, to the end that they be accomplished at least to the extent of $10 million for the next biennium, if that is at all possible. It is our sincere desire to accomplish fully and effectively as many of the suggestions and objectives of the Committee as is humanly possible. The Executive Board has broad powers over personnel administration pertaining to leave, hours of work, compensation, and reclassification, and will give full cooperation to the Legislature in its examination of this subject. All other recommendations under this title may be profitably explored.

STATE PROCUREMENT

The recommendations of the Chesterman Committee concerning State procurements are sound and possess merit. The Legislature might properly adopt such recommendations as need legislative enactment the Administration will make effective such as require Executive directive only. I hope 20 million a biennium will be ultimately saved in a future biennium, but whatever the amount we must start the process to save. I am satisfied it will be substantial. I want to remind you, however, that only 5 million of savings is set up for all funds in the next biennium.

RECORDS ADMINISTRATION

The Budget Secretary and I had contemplated a good Records Administration, and had numerous conferences with a Washington firm concerning this matter prior to the present survey of our State records. When the Governor's Committee approached the matter we decided not to further pursue our conferences pending this report. Needless to say the field has been well covered, and the resulting suggestions will be adopted.

As a matter of fact the Budget Secretary is already proceeding with Thomas Amelia, who was Assistant Director of the Task Force, in charge of this particular work. There can be no question about the impelling necessity of a Records Administration. I am certain substantial savings will be effected.

STATE RETIREMENT SYSTEM

The recommendations concerning the Retirement System should be vigorously explored by the Legislature and where feasible, adopted. More liberal investment practices will undoubtedly create savings in a substantial amount. The Budget Secretary informs me that alteration of present practices cannot affect the next Budget, because interest deficiencies for appropriations we request have already occurred.

We have specifically commented on these recommendations in our discussions of the various Departments. It is my belief that the number of agencies reporting directly to the Governor should be substantially reduced.

We are in accord with the views expressed on the Liquor Control Board and the Public Utility Commission.

Wherein we modified recommendations of the Basic Plan of Organization for the State Government we did so because in our considered opinion, after consultation with others well versed in State Government, such modifications would improve the Basic Plan. It is to be understood that none of these modifications would in any way lessen or diminish the potential savings recommended by the Governor's Committee. The savings will be effected with what we believe to be increased efficiency. In any event the Committee has stated:

"The Committee's objective in this report however, is not to recommend a plan of organization in rigid detail, but rather to propose a basic framework of administrative organization as the fundamental measure required to achieve an effective arrangement, which is subject to modification in its specific particulars."

The Survey Committee has further said:

"The recommendations of our Committee are directed at the accumulation of years of inadequate administrative attention ***** Permanent arrangements are required to keep the State Government's operation on a reasonably economic level."

Thereupon they wisely suggested an "Executive for Administration," with many duties and responsibilities. The Administration is in thorough agreement with this suggestion.

The Committee has threaded through this report two observations:

- (1) That salaries should be increased; and
- (2) An increased number of present employees should have better job security.

The Administration has heretofore acknowledged the equity of increased wages and salaries, and accordingly has requested the Legislature for an appropriation to effect a ten percent increase. The Administration likewise acknowledges the justice of the recommendation of better job security. It is estimated by the Committee that about one-fourth of our employees should be given job security through a merit system, civil service, or other analogous system after a Personnel Administration has been established. Such a step is long overdue.

We have endeavored to discuss the Chesterman Committee Report in a full and frank manner. We have differed in a few respects, but such differences are honest ones. Many may conscientiously question the amount of the proposed savings; none can conscientiously quarrel with objectives of the Committee or the sincerity of their conclusions. Any savings will be a gain. Some recommendations may be said to trespass on policy, but wherein that controversial field is invaded little harm will be done; indeed, much good may result.

I have this day issued a directive, accompanied by the State Government Survey Committee's Report, to every department, board and commission under my jurisdiction to immediately examine and thoroughly study all parts of the report affecting them; to carry out immediately, where practical to do so, the suggestions which can be implemented by administrative order; to report directly to me reasons, if good and sound ones exist, why the suggestions not requiring legislation cannot be immediately carried out; further to instigate such studies and surveys as are recommended; and to be prepared to present to the General Assembly all information bearing upon any suggested legislation affecting them.

I suggest that the General Assembly carefully study each recommendation which requires legislative action. In this study the Executive branch will give you every possible cooperation. Bills are now being prepared by the Attorney General's office to carry out the recommendations which are sufficiently specific and not too interwoven with collateral or alternate recommendations.

Because of the large number of bills required in some instances to carry out a single recommendation it would not be practical to prepare bills covering all the recommendations. The Department of Justice along with the Legislative Reference Bureau is at your service in the preparation of all bills dealing with the recommendations.

We have dwelt at great length on the report, its observations, recommendations, and criticisms. Although the Committee has commented on what they have termed

"The accumulation of years of inadequate administration," they also found "ample evidence from task force reports and other sources that the present functioning of the State Government possesses many desirable features, and that in general it compares very favorably with governmental operations in other states."

Quoting the Committee further, they said:

"However, it was not the assignment of the Survey Committee to comment in detail upon the good features of government, but rather to point out those areas in which there is room for improvement."

I am sure all of you will agree that much accomplishment will come from the labors of the Chesterman Committee. All of us must cooperate to make it so.

The LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR. Governor Fine, on behalf of the General Assembly, I thank you for your message to the joint session. It will, I assure you, receive our careful consideration.

The Committee on the part of the House and Senate will escort the Governor to his Chambers.

The business for which the Joint Session of the General Assembly was convened, having been completed, the Chair now declares this session adjourned and requests the Senators to please reassemble in the Senate Chamber.

The SPEAKER (Charles C. Smith) IN THE CHAIR

JOINT SESSION PROCEEDINGS TO BE PRINTED IN LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

Mr. WESCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I move that the proceedings of the Joint Session of the Senate and House be printed in full in this day's Legislative Journal.

The motion was agreed to.

SENATE MESSAGES

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented extracts from the Journal of the Senate:

Senate Bills for concurrence Nos. 8, 12, 18, 27 and 112.

BILL ON SECOND READING

The SPEAKER. We will now resume consideration of House Bill No. 111, Printer's No. 10.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, I don't want to take up very much time. I think the general provisions of the bill have been sufficiently established and I know the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Stimmel, is really interested in the reestablishment of the Firemen and Policemen's Funds and he is interested in getting this bill through. However, for the information of the Members of this House, this bill is a general tax bill.

Under Section 1 in the Governor's budget on page 39, the insurance premium tax on foreign life insurance alone is estimated to raise $20 million dollars. The insurance premium tax on foreign casualty insurance is estimated to raise $2 million dollars. The insurance premium on foreign excess fire premiums is estimated to raise $130,000.

Now, we have in the Democratic platform this year a plank to reestablish the Firemen and Policemen's pension funds. We do not have in our platform any plank to reestablish $20 million of general taxes.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I am placed in the position in order to help the firemen and policemen, to obtain for them two million one hundred and thirty thousand dollars in benefits, of having to vote for and impose a tax of $20 million dollars in other directions.

I am not debating the merits or demerits of Section 1, or the two per cent tax on foreign fire insurance and other insurance. I am making clear that in voting for this bill I do so because I am forced to do so in order to help the firemen and policemen.

I would have rather seen, and I did urge that the bill before us, 111, be amended to include only foreign casualty insurance foreign companies.

However, I am very sure in my own mind that such amendments would not pass. Therefore I must vote to oppose these taxes, meritorious or not, in a single bill. I do not like to do that. There should be two bills. There should be a bill to raise this $20 million to go into the general fund, and then the House should vote on that bill on its merits, and on the firemen and police tax bill on its merits.

I am going to vote for this bill as I said, but I would like permission to include a letter from Frank Moses, Secretary of the Pennsylvania Association of Insurance Agents, in the Legislative Journal.

May I have that permission?

The SPEAKER. Without objection the letter will be included in the gentleman's remarks.

February 18, 1953.

Mr. W. Howard Stewart
129 East Market Street
P. O. Box 591
Clearfield, Pennsylvania

Dear Howard:

RE: House Bill No. 111

Enclosed you will find a copy of the captioned bill which was introduced in the House of Representatives on February 9 and referred to the committee on Ways and Means. It was reported as committed on February 10, passed first reading on February 16 and appeared on the calendar for second reading February 17. However, it was not reached for second reading on the 17th and will be on the second reading calendar again on Monday, February 23.

It is my understanding that the purpose of this bill is to continue the 2% premium tax on fire and casualty insurance companies domiciled outside of Pennsylvania so that the firemen's and police relief, disability, pension and retirement funds may continue to receive this money as has been the case in the past.

Prior to the 1951 Session of the Legislature, the Pennsylvania life insurance companies and the mutual fire insurance companies were not paying any tax. Toward the end of the Session, a bill was passed in. Therefore, those companies along with all other Pennsylvania companies and all companies not domiciled in Pennsylvania were required to pay a 2% tax on their premiums for 1951 and 1952.

Inasmuch as the taxing of Pennsylvania life insurance companies and the mutual fire insurance companies was an emergency measure to help raise enough money to meet the requirements of the Commonwealth, it was decided to levy the tax against the Pennsylvania life insurance companies and the mutual fire insurance companies only for the years of 1951 and 1952. Therefore, when the end of 1952 was reached the tax stopped and new legislation is necessary beginning with January 1953. However, the Administration is now trying to decide upon its new tax program so it is not known yet whether the tax on the Pennsylvania life insurance companies and the mutual fire insurance companies is to be continued. It will take new legislation to accomplish that.

Meanwhile, the law taxing all insurance companies expired on December 31, 1952 and our firemen's and police funds have not been getting their customary money from the 2% tax levied against all fire and casualty companies domiciled outside of Pennsylvania. The purpose of House Bill No. 111, as I understand it, is to continue that taxation so that payments to the firemen's and police funds may be resumed without waiting for a decision as to whether the Pennsylvania life insurance companies and the mutual fire insurance companies are going to be taxed again.

None of the tax money received from any Pennsylvania companies has ever gone to the firemen's and police funds.

If the foregoing information and the enclosed bill together do not satisfactorily explain the present situation, just let me know and I will endeavor to provide further information.

Yours very truly,

FRANK D. MOSES,
Secretary.

Mr. BRETH. I want to repeat, Mr. Speaker, that I am voting for this bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman understands the bill is on second reading today.

Mr. ANDREWS. I would like to ask just one question of the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Stimmel.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Stimmel, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. STIMMEL. Certainly, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. Does the bill now under consideration impose a tax levy as a rider upon a bill distributing tax money to the firemen and the policemen?

Mr. STIMMEL. I would like to make this bill clear. I will make two points: it does not deal with domestic companies, that is, companies that are chartered and incorporated in Pennsylvania. It does this: it imposes a two percent tax on foreign companies and those on foreign shores that are outside the United States, which, through another law, the money is allocated to us with two percent to the paid firemen, two percent to the volunteer firemen—and that comes from the casualty fund or the casualty companies and the fire companies. And the moneys of the life insurance companies go into the general fund.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker that is not the question I asked. Does this bill tap tax sources that are not now being tapped?

Mr. STIMMEL. It does not.

Mr. ANDREWS. Are life insurance, foreign life insurance companies, at the present time taxed?

Mr. STIMMEL. They are indeed.

On the question recurring.

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second and third sections and title were separately read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1, as follows:

An Act providing for a new constitution for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by means of a constitutional convention and a vote of electors and providing for the selection nomination and election of delegates

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer amendments to Section 1 at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the Clerk for information.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Section 1, page 1, line 1 by striking out the entire line and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

Section 1 (a) At the municipal election in the year one thousand nine hundred fifty-three there shall be submitted in the manner provided by the election laws of the Commonwealth a question to determine the will of the electorate of the Commonwealth in regard to a constitutional convention. Such question shall be in the following form:

Do you favor the preparation of a new constitution by a convention?	Yes	<input type="checkbox"/>
	No	<input type="checkbox"/>

The question shall be printed on the official and specimen ballots or on separate official ballots in bound form by the county board of elections in each county and a sufficient number of ballots shall be furnished to the election officers in each election district of every county so that one ballot may be supplied to each voter at such election. In districts where voting machines are used such question shall appear on the face of the machine where the machine is properly equipped for such purposes.

The results of such election shall be tabulated by the proper election officers of each county and the results thereof certified to the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, first I am wondering whether any body in the House can supply me with a copy of His Excellency, the Governor's recent address. Mine was in my box and it was taken up to my office and the office is locked and I would have to go up and get a copy.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has been informed that the Page boys are now bringing copies of the Governor's address to all of the Members of the House.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, the amendment proposed by the Majority Leader provides that House Bill 1 shall carry with it a referendum clause. I appreciate the sincerity of those Members of the House who adhere to the referendum formula. I am sorry that they find themselves in bad company. They find themselves in the company of those interests, and those groups which over the years have combatted the idea of a constitutional convention and which in times past by devious methods have defeated proposals, or at least a proposal, that a constitutional convention be held.

I am on the floor at the present time, Mr. Speaker, to assist the Republican party and his Excellency, the Governor, in redeeming not vague promises, but specific promises embodied in a platform and proclaimed from one end of this Commonwealth to the other by one candidate, who became Governor, a Governor who has pledged that he will do everything he can, consistent with his position, to see to it that a constitutional convention is provided for by this Legislature.

I desire to read to you the last official statement that your party made, a statement in which my party concurred, regarding a constitutional convention. In your most recent platform you said:

"We pledge to devote ourselves to the modernization of the framework of our state government. We advocate a state convention to consider changes to bring the Constitution of our Commonwealth more in line with the needs of the day."

Then you add, parenthetically,

We will reapportion the state Legislative and Congressional Districts.

A pledge that has been in part redeemed.

Mr. Speaker, you are asking the people of this Commonwealth to think in a vacuum—to think in a vacuum that can be peopled with all kinds of imaginary hobgoblins. Do not let them monkey with the Constitution—they will put in this; do not let them monkey with the Constitution—they will put in that; do not let them monkey with the Constitution—they will put in something else; an appeal to the prejudices of business groups, an appeal to the prejudices of religious groups.

There is a vast difference between letting irresponsible people write upon a page what they believe or fear a constitution should provide; a vast difference between that and submitting to the people a constitution and saying, "Here it is. Do you like it? Read it. It is not something being talked about. Here it is."

The pending proposal gives the enemy of a constitutional convention two opportunities to defeat it—one opportunity to defeat it upon the basis of what it might contain, and another opportunity to defeat it upon the basis of what it does contain. And that is the basis upon which a constitution should stand or fall.

It is unfortunate, Mr. Speaker, that we should approach one of the most basic decisions that this General Assembly can make at this late hour, after having listened to the very excellent review that the Governor has submitted to us concerning the structure of a state government.

I am sorry that I do not have a copy of the Governor's address, to the end that I might refresh your memory with what he says concerning the very issue that confronts us.

"Yet we find ourselves hitched to and stymied by an antiquated outmoded Constitution, for which at times many seem to have more reverence than for the Bible and its lessons of Brotherhood to Man. Would that we could hear in legislative corridors more in elevation of the equality and dignity of man and less in defense of the cobwebbed pattern of our basic law.

Now, I am not speaking at random, when I say to the gentlemen on the other side of the House who have convictions concerning this referendum business; I am not speaking at random when I say to you that you are con-sorting and upholding the cause, the factors and the groups in this Commonwealth that have consistently opposed every effort through the years to modernize our Constitution. I am not speaking at random when I say that within the last forty-eight hours representatives of those groups have conferred with political leaders advocating the adoption of this referendum movement because they said they believe if they could get a referendum, they could stir up enough fuss to defeat the idea.

If we were writing a constitution that was not submitted to the people, that would be one thing; but when we write a constitution that we submit to the people, that is the full and complete answer.

How do I know whether I want a constitution—a new one? Let me see it. Let me read it. Maybe I do; maybe I do not until I see what you have done, what you have put in it, what you have left out.

I said in the beginning the proponents of this amendment unfortunately are asking the Commonwealth to think in the midst of a vacuum—which I repeat, can be peopled with all sorts of hobgoblins.

My party has promised the people that it will take steps to provide for a constitutional convention. Your party has promised the people that it would submit for their consideration a new constitution. Your Governor has taken a pronounced stand in favor of the idea of submitting a new constitution. And I claim the privilege, Mr. Speaker, of joining you in an effort to redeem your own party program.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, It is true that when this bill known as House Bill 1 was first introduced in the House, it did not provide for a referendum by the people. That is to say, a vote first by the people as to whether a constitutional convention should be called; nor does the bill in its present form, before amendments, but after the amendments which were offered two weeks ago, did not provide for a vote of the people.

However, there are a number of Members, quite a number on the Republican side of the House, who since putting the bill in the legislative hopper have gone back home, and said they have talked to their constituents. They feel they have a mandate from the folks back home that they should first be given an opportunity to vote on whether they want to call a constitutional convention to amend the Constitution. Therefore, we have agreed to insert that amendment into House Bill 1.

Now, let us not be too disturbed about this amendment. Remember that the constitution of 1874, was I understand, drafted by reason of a ground swell of enthusiasm in Pennsylvania to have a new constitution. That was first submitted to a vote of the people, and the majority of the people having voted in the affirmative that a constitutional convention should be called, the convention was called. As a result we have the Constitution that we have today which has many provisions in it which were put in back in those days to do away with certain harmful things that the people of Pennsylvania were told existed at that time that had to do mainly with the Legislature and railroads and canal boats and so forth.

Also let us not feel too disturbed if this referendum bill is submitted to the vote of the people. If it carries by a majority vote a convention will be called and a new constitution will be drafted and given to the people for a vote. By the same token, if the people vote down a constitutional convention, there will of course be a great financial saving to the Commonwealth.

Also, let us not be too disturbed about this amendment, because I feel that between now and the November election the proponents of a new constitution will have ample opportunity to go into the hustings, bring a message to the people and point out to them the type of instrument that we are doing business under in Pennsylvania. I believe when it is properly shown to the people of this great state the antiquated, patched document that we are working under, the majority vote will prevail at the polls.

So I am asking the Members of the House to support this amendment.

Mr. LOVETT, Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the Majority Leader.

The SPEAKER. Will the Majority Leader permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JOHNSON. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman what the period of delay on the calling of the constitutional convention would there be, providing the people did have an opportunity to vote and voted for the calling of the constitutional convention. What delay would there be in that procedure?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I realize that the amendments that were offered, although they were read amending a certain section, they probably should be explained on the floor.

This bill, if the amendments carry, will be patterned after the Act, I believe, of 1921 wherein the people voted to call the convention and also at the same time nominated the delegates. A certain timetable was considered, that is, having the referendum this Fall, election of delegates next year, and the convention in 1955. That was found not to be feasible because of the fact that the General Assembly will also be in session in 1955.

The bill now provides that members of the General Assembly can be part of the convention, and it is hoped that quite a number of the Members of this House will be elected to serve in the constitutional convention. Therefore, the timetable is so arranged that the delegates will be chosen this Fall, and the vote of the people will also be had this Fall. So that the people in determining whether they want a constitutional convention, can also put their stamp of approval on the type of person they will have at the convention if it is called.

Mr. LOVETT. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. ANDREWS and READINGER.

The roll was called.

Messrs. ANDREWS, READINGER and STANK requested a verification of the roll.

The affirmative roll was read.

The SPEAKER. Are there any corrections to the affirmative roll? If not, the affirmative roll stands verified.

The negative roll was read.

Mr. ANDREWS. Is the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Bolton, in the Hall of the House?

The SPEAKER. Can anyone vouch for the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Bolton, being in the Hall of the House during the roll call?

Mr. METZ. He was in the House, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. At the time the roll was called, Mr. Speaker?

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman know whether he was in the Hall of the House during the calling of the roll?

Mr. METZ. I don't know, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman that the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Bolton, is not recorded on the negative roll, and the affirmative roll has been verified.

Mr. ANDREWS. I thought he was read on the negative roll, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk informs the Chair that the gentleman is not recorded on the negative roll.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, how is the gentleman from Clearfield, Mr. DuBois recorded? Is he recorded on the negative roll?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is recorded on the affirmative roll.

Mr. ANDREWS. How is the gentleman from Tioga, Mr. McInroy recorded?

The SPEAKER. Mr. McInroy is recorded on the affirmative roll.

Mr. ANDREWS. On the affirmative roll? Is he with us?

The SPEAKER. The Clerk so informs the Chair.

Mr. ANDREWS. Is he in the Hall of the House?

The SPEAKER. Is the gentleman from Tioga, Mr. McInroy, in the Hall of the House at this time? Can any Member vouch whether the gentleman was in the Hall of the House at the time of the calling of the roll?

The Chair informs the gentleman from Cambria that the gentleman is on the affirmative roll.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. YOUNG. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. YOUNG. Mr. Speaker, after the affirmative roll has been verified can the roll be questioned as to the presence or absence of one of the Members?

The SPEAKER. The affirmative roll has been verified and there can be no change made in the affirmative roll.

Mr. ANDREWS. I certainly did not hear the Speaker say that the affirmative roll stood verified, and I endeavored to get the floor before there was any verification from the Speaker's desk. I was standing here waiting for recognition to question the roll before there was a verification. I am quite sure that the gentleman who raises the point of order would not want to have any measure in this House passed under a cloud.

However, well his point may have been taken perhaps I did not get the Speaker's eye. The Speaker can look where he pleases. I endeavored before there was a verification of the roll to get the floor and I was standing here with the questions I wanted to ask.

The SPEAKER. The Chair clearly asked whether there were any questions on the affirmative roll and then hesitated. The Chair informs the gentleman that he did not see him standing at the time the affirmative roll was verified.

For the information of the gentleman we are now on the negative roll.

Are there any corrections to the negative roll? If not the negative roll stands verified. And the roll stands verified.

Mr. SARRAF. I would like to ask the Speaker, after the affirmative roll is verified, then the negative roll is verified, you then verify the entire roll, is that correct?

The SPEAKER. Apparently the gentleman was misinformed. The affirmative roll was verified immediately after the calling of the roll, then the negative roll was verified.

Mr. SARRAF. Any questions relative to anybody on the roll would then be out of order?

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman that questions relative to how Members voted after verification of the roll would be out of order.

The Chair will read Rule 80 for the information of the gentleman.

Upon the completion of a roll call and before the result of the vote has been announced by the Speaker three Members of the House may demand a verification of the roll.

After the affirmative or negative roll has been declared verified it is too late to change or record a vote thereon. Any Members may challenge in writing the vote or votes of Members who are recorded as voting. If the vote so challenged would change the result the announcement of the vote shall be postponed by the Speaker until the allegations made shall have been investigated, when, if necessary the roll call shall be corrected and a true result announced by the Speaker.

The Chair intentionally went very slowly because of the new Members in the House on both the affirmative and negative rolls.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cambria Mr. Andrews.

Will the gentleman from Allegheny yield to the gentleman from Cambria?

Mr. SARROF. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. Are we in the next order of business? Have we disposed of the roll call, Mr. Speaker?

The SPEAKER. We have disposed of the roll call. We have just verified the negative roll and the roll.

CALL OF THE HOUSE

Mr. ANDREWS. I raise the question, Mr. Speaker, of no quorum, and demand a call of the House.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman raises the question of no quorum.

Mr. ANDREWS. That's right, Mr. Speaker. I ask that the doors be closed and that no Members be permitted to leave.

The SPEAKER. The Sergeant-at-Arms will close the doors of the House. No Member will be permitted to leave during the proceedings on the call of the House. Members will be permitted to enter the House.

The roll was called and was as follows:

So the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendments were agreed to.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer amendments to the second, third and seventh section and title at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the Clerk for information.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Section 2, page 2, line 10, by inserting after the word "and" and before the word "delegates" the following: "twenty."

Amend Section 2, page 2, line 10, by inserting after the word "delegates" and before the word "from" the following: "elected."

Amend Section 3, page 3, line 3, by striking out at the end of the line after the word "VACANCIES" the following: "THE GOV."

Amend Section 3, page 3, by striking out lines 4 to 13 inclusive, and inserting in lieu thereof the following new paragraphs:

"Any political body may circulate nomination papers to nominate ten delegates at large. The number of signatures required on said nomination papers shall be the same as are now required by the Pennsylvania Election Code and its amendments for candidates of political bodies for State-wide officers. The nomination papers must be filed not later than the tenth day of August one thousand nine hundred fifty-three.

"Any person whose name has been presented as a candidate may cause his or her name to be withdrawn from nomination by request in writing signed by him or her and acknowledged before an officer qualified to take acknowledgment of deeds and filed in the Office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth on or before the seventeenth day of August one thousand nine hundred fifty-three. No name so withdrawn shall be printed upon the ballots.

"Any vacancy occurring in the nomination for delegate at large may be filled by the respective State committees as the rules of such State committee may prescribe for other State-wide vacancies.

"Delegates at large shall be at least twenty-one years of age and shall have been citizens and inhabitants of the Commonwealth for a period of four years.

"Each elector shall vote for not more than nine candidates at the municipal election held in the year one thousand nine hundred fifty-three. The twenty candidates receiving the highest votes shall be delegates at large."

Amend Section 7, page 8, line 5, by inserting at the end of the line after the syllables "monwealth" the following:

"Provided That nothing herein contained shall authorize the said convention to change the language or to alter in any manner the several provisions of the first article of the present Constitution commonly known as the Declaration of Rights but the same shall be excepted from the powers given to said convention and shall be and remain inviolate forever."

Amend page 1, line 5 of the title by adding at the end thereof, after the word "delegates" the following: "upon the determination by the electorate that such a convention should be held."

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I ask permission to interrogate the Majority Leader.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman wish to interrogate the Majority Leader on the further amendments he has sent to the desk?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I am asking permission to interrogate the gentleman concerning the figures on this recent roll call.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JOHNSON. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, according to my figures—and they may be in error—there were fifteen Members of the majority party not answering to their names. Is that true?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I believe that is correct.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, that would give you 95 votes if you had them all. You got two on this side, that made 97. Is that correct?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, that is right. The vote was 97-87, was it not, according to the announced roll call?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I think that was right. I was just trying to establish in my own mind how many Members of the majority party voted with the minority. Was it three?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I know of just one. I was not listening to the roll call. I was preparing the next set of amendments. I am sorry I did not hear how they were voting.

Mr. ANDREWS. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, the gentlemen here say there was one.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I would request the Majority Leader to explain the purport and extent of the amendments that have been proposed. I do not know whether I have a copy or not.

Would the gentleman take the bill and show us the exact sections of the bill that are amended by the amendments now pending.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I do not think I have a copy of the bill. I can give the gentleman the substance of the remaining amendments.

For the benefit of Members of the House, the bill without these amendments, which is House Bill 1, Printer's No. 8, provided for the appointment by the Governor of certain delegates, provided for the appointment by the Speaker and by the President pro tempore of certain delegates. What these amendments do is rip out—shall I say—the provision for the Governor to appoint and also rip out the provision for the Speaker to appoint or the President pro tempore of the Senate to appoint and substituting in lieu thereof a nomination by the political parties of the eleven at large which would mean eleven on the Republican side and eleven on the Democratic side.

It also provides that political bodies that might preempt a party in the state will have the right to choose ten at large. Then the vote by the people on those at large will be nine. You will vote for nine. In the Congressional districts there will be two from the majority party and one from the minority, as the case might be. There will be four nominated and you will vote for two.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the Majority Leader on the delegates-at-large. Do all of the electors vote for only nine? Does not the bill with the amendments provide that the two major parties nominate eleven and the electors vote for ten?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, no, as I understand it each party will nominate eleven, and you will vote for nine. As I understand from my conference with the Attorney General, that would work out to a vote of eleven to nine. The twenty highest are elected out of the twenty-two nominated. If there were only twenty-two nominated, that is eleven from each party—eleven from the Democratic party and eleven from the Republican party—if you vote for nine, it would make a probable split of eleven to nine out of the twenty.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I still desire to interrogate the gentleman from McKean, the Majority Leader, . . .

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. JOHNSON. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, the amendments as originally drawn read, "The respective state committees of all political parties required by law to nominate their candidates for public office at the primary election shall nominate eleven."

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, that is right.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, and the others that are not required to nominate, they can only vote for nine?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, they will nominate ten, but they will have the right to vote for nine and conceivably they can vote for any of the delegates who are nominated at large, be they of their own political body or of the Democratic party or of the Republican party. We could not possibly have delegates-at-large, not eleven of one party and nine of another. It may be a different split based on the number who are nominated.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I understand that. There is one part of the bill that says the electors may vote for ten. But the final paragraph on your amendment says that, "Each elector shall vote for not more than nine candidates."

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, that is right. You amend Section 3, Page 3, by striking out lines 4 to 13 inclusive, and you will add to the section by saying that, "Each elector shall vote for not more than nine candidates," which is the last paragraph of that group of amendments which I understand applies to the entire bill, not just to the political body..

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, you have changed your amendments which originally stipulated that each party would nominate eleven and vote for ten? That is according to the copy which I had here, which I received from the Majority Leader.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, no, I believe I gave the gentleman that duplicate copy of the amendments before I left town last week and I know of no change in it since I left last week.

Mr. ANDREWS. "Amend Section 3, Page 2, line 14, by striking out at the end of the line after the word "shall" the following: "Select fifteen" and insert in lieu thereof the words "nominate eleven."

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, that is right.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, and vote for ten? And in the concluding paragraph of the amendment it says, the electors shall vote for nine.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading* as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered ( that the bill as amended lie over for printing.

FORMER MEMBER WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair welcomes to the House a former Member, the gentleman from Adams, Honorable Earl H. Pitzer.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. MORAN. Will the Speaker tell me why we do not have the Committee meetings marked on the bulletin board at the rear of the House like we used to in past sessions?

The Speaker. The Chair thanks the gentleman for the information. It certainly has not been intentional. We will see to it that the Committee meetings will be posted on the bulletin board in the future.

Eternal God, who are the hope of all the ends of the earth, look upon us who are here gathered in this Legislative Hall. May the light of Thy presence give wisdom and guidance. May we have ears to hear those voices which tell us the true meaning and worth of life, for Thou only art light for life's meanings, wisdom for life's questions and strength for life's duties.

Teach us to set a watch upon our lips, that the words we speak may be words of healing and strength, understanding and encouragements. Make us swift to appreciate and slow to blame.

Bless these men and women, charged with the responsibilities of this hour, the homes from which they come and the peoples they represent. May we be a God-fearing people as we do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with our God.

Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. MORAN. (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 22.

In the House of Representatives, February 23, 1953.

The movement to encourage special attention to the sick and shut-ins is being sponsored by Shut-In Clubs and various other organizations throughout the Commonwealth and the Nation.

Few people deserve or appreciate kindness and attention more than those confined in homes, hospitals, and institutions because of illness or infirmities.

Neighbors and relatives most frequently provide the solace therapy of friendliness to these shut-ins; but there are many who are denied these comforts.

Earl Rutter, the founder of Shut-In Day, for the past thirteen years has energetically and humanely visited these shut-ins, bringing them the joy of attention and the pleasure of thoughtfulness.

In this activity, which is done as a hobby just to bring a little laughter and sunshine into the lives of the shut-ins, Earl Rutter has traveled more than 134,000 miles, and visited and entertained 150,000 persons in private homes, hospitals, institutions, orphanages and old folk's homes; therefore be it

Resolved, (if the Senate concur), That the Governor of this Commonwealth is hereby requested and authorized to proclaim September 19, this year, and annually thereafter, as "Earl Rutter Day," in appreciation by the people of this Commonwealth for his efforts as Pennsylvania's No. 1 Shut-In Entertainer; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives be directed to send a copy of this resolution to Earl Rutter, Turtle Creek, Pennsylvania.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. JOHN J. MURRAY. RESOLUTION No. 23.

In the House of Representatives, February 16, 1953.

Whereas, A News Service Press Release, date-lined Paris, 3rd day of February, 1953, captioned "Stassen Orders 'Uncle Sugar' Investigation" tells of United States mutual aid boss Harold Stassen's determination to send special teams of Dollar-a-Year men to each friendly country to study the foreign aid setup and recommend drastic changes; and

Whereas, Overstaffing and overspending will be the major problems these men will look into; and

Whereas, According to Mr. Harold Stassen, mutual aid boss, superfluous personnel has become near scandal all over Europe and streamlining and elimination of waste are mandatory because of indignation back home; and

Whereas, Mr. Harold Stassen served as President of the University of Pennsylvania, which is subsidized by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; therefore be it

Resolved, That this House of Representatives hereby order the Committee on Appropriations to conduct a hearing; and after said hearing, report to the House of Representatives, establishing actual tenure of Harold Stassen as President of the University of Pennsylvania; a record of the time the said Harold Stassen actually spent in execution of this Honorable Office; expenses, if any, for travel allowed Mr. Stassen; and determination of reason for travel; and absolute specification of salary paid Mr. Stassen during the year of 1952, a year of profound manifestation of Mr. Stassen's multiple capabilities to act as President of the University of Pennsylvania, and at the same time serve as a proficient political campaigner throughout the length and breadth of the United States.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

RESOLUTION CONGRATULATIONS

Messrs. HELM and GUTHRIE offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1953.

The Rev. Walter Kennedy, pastor of the Templeton and Goheenville Presbyterian Churches, in Armstrong County, served as chaplain of the House of Representatives on February 23 and 24, 1953.

Rev. Kennedy has been a minister of the gospel in Armstrong County for 41 years and has served in his present pastorate during the last 35 years.

Rev. Kennedy devotes his entire energy to the cause he serves, giving himself completely to the work of God. He is dedicated to the principle that religious freedom is religious tolerance; that the right of personal worship includes not only the freedom from interference by the State but also the freedom from interference by other individuals. In charting the course of his own conduct he has set an even higher standard and gives of his ministerial office to all who seek or need it, whether or not they accept the tenets of his faith. He has performed innumerable marriages, baptisms and funeral services in his county and state, all without consideration to race, color or religious belief.

For the people of his own churches he conducts three complete services every Sunday. The remainder of the time he is available for their every need, and for any service asked, there is only one condition considered—is it within his power. If it is, he acts; therefore be it

Resolved, That the members of the House of Representatives commend the work of Rev. Kennedy and express our thanks to him for his services in this house, and for the inspiration his prayers have given us; and be it further

Resolved, That we express our thanks for the years of noble service he has devoted to the people of his community, and acknowledge that the Commonwealth is enriched with the results of his work, and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk be instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to the Rev. Walter Kennedy.

RESOLUTION (Concurrent)

CONDOLENCE

Messrs. REIDENBACH, NEEDHAM, WARGO, PHILLIPS, SPENCER and Mrs. MUNLEY offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1953.

Whereas, Harold A. Scragg, Chairman of the Public Utility Commission of Pennsylvania died on December 7, 1952; and

Whereas, He graduated from Yale University in 1913 and from Harvard Law School in 1916. He was appointed Assistant District Attorney of Lackawanna County in 1917 and appointed to that post in 1920 and elected thereto in 1921; and

Whereas, In August of 1943 he was appointed as Chief Counsel of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, then on April 2, 1945 he was appointed as member of the commission and finally he on March 5, 1952 was appointed Chairman of the commission, which post he held at the time of his death; and

Whereas, An examination of the many tributes paid to his memory discloses that every commendable word that could be said about a good man was said about Harold A. Scragg. His own county bar in expressing their esteem of him said—"Harold Scragg was superb in almost every human characteristic; he was as beautiful a specimen of manhood as ever appeared in the court rooms of this Commonwealth; his physical presence was commanding and impressive. He had the power of clear and concise statement and this combined with a voice pleasing to the ear made him attractive to juries and judges alike. In the trial of cases he was alert and resourceful. He appeared to be rapid in action and so never seemed disturbed or confused, even when the unexpected suddenly took place. He worked very hard as District Attorney, as Chief Counsel for the Commission and as Commissioner and Chairman of the Public Utility Commission," and

Whereas, He spent years of life in public service, bringing great honor to Lackawanna County and to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; therefore be it

Resolved, (if the Senate concur) That the General Assembly hereby joins in paying high tribute to the memory of one of Pennsylvania's great sons; and be it further

Resolved, That we, the members of the General Assembly, hereby express our deep sympathy to the widow of Harold Scragg and to his brother Robert and his niece Mrs. Franklin Collins; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk be instructed to transmit copies of this resolution to the members of the family of the deceased as named above.

RESOLUTION

CONGRATULATIONS

Mr. AMARANDO. Mr. Speaker, one of the boys in the House, some of us call him Ice Cream, some of us call him Drizzle Puss, some of us call him Big Top, and his wife calls him Jim. Some sixty years ago this little Irishman was born down on Front and Tree Streets. Today he celebrates his anniversary, and we ask that this privileged resolution be accepted and adopted immediately.

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this House transmit a copy of this resolution to Mr. James J. Dougherty, at his residence at 117 Tree Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the birth-day child, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Dougherty.

Mr. DOUGHERTY. Mr. Chairman, Members of the House. You caught me off guard. I never expected it, although I should have known better. On our way up to Harrisburg yesterday, I was joking in the car about three great men born in the month of February, Abe, George, and Jim, and they were celebrating George on Monday, Jim on Tuesday.

I also, followed that with the statement that they're celebrating, or honoring a very dear friend of mine in Philadelphia tonight, with a banquet, Manny Weinberg, and they wanted a very, very pleasant evening, so what did they do but select my birthday to add color to the affair.

But in a serious vein, Mr. Speaker, I feel proud to have a resolution unanimously adopted by this great body. I feel very humble. I want to thank you Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, for the way you received this resolution, and want to thank you in person, Mr. Speaker, for the beautiful card I received in the mail from you on Saturday. God bless you all.

The SPEAKER. The Chair thanks the Gentleman.

SENATE MESSAGE

MEMORIALIZING CONGRESS TO ENACT CERTAIN LEGISLATION RELATIVE TO GASOLINE TAXES

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, February 10, 1953.

Whereas, An excise tax on gasoline, which form of taxation is the rightful prerogative of the several states, is presently being levied by both the United States of America and the several states, and

Whereas, From time to time the United States has changed its rate of taxation on this commodity which action makes it increasingly difficult for the respective states to develop a comprehensive tax program to provide revenues for the improvement and maintenance of their highways, therefore, be it

Resolved, If the House of Representatives concurs, that the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania memorialize the Congress of United States to enact such legislation as will:

(1) Return to each state without restriction all Federal taxes on gasoline collected therein until such time as the individual state is able to enact legislation as may be necessary to permit it to collect such tax;

(2) Eliminate the tax on gasoline now collected by the United States as soon as the individual states have enacted legislation as may be necessary to permit the state to collect the tax;

(3) Eliminate Federal Aid for Highways except in those states where the revenues produced by a tax of two cents per gallon of gasoline is less than present Federal Air Allocations to such states;

(4) Change the present functions of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads so that it would become a consultative and advisory engineering agency which would collect, correlate and disseminate information relative to the design, construction, maintenance and operation of highways and bridges and the materials used therefor, and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be directed to forward copies of this resolution upon its passage to the President of the United States, the Secretary of the United States Senate, the Chief Clerk of United States House of Representatives, to all members of the Pennsylvania Congressional Delegation, to the Governors of all other states, and to the presiding officers of the legislative bodies of all other states.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

On the question,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, as a rule I oppose resolutions memorializing Congress. I am quite content that if Congress will keep out of our business, we will keep out of Congress business. However, this particular resolution is of direct interest to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and I am therefore asking all of the Members of the House to support it.

Mr. LOVETT. May I interrogate the Majority Leader?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JOHNSON. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. I would like to ask the gentleman about this particular resolution. If I understood it right as it was read, it would prohibit the Federal government from collecting any gasoline tax in the different states throughout the nation?

Mr. JOHNSON. I believe the import of the resolution is to request Congress to get out of the gasoline tax field and leave that field for the states.

Mr. LOVETT. I would further like to ask the gentleman, if he thinks it is a very good-neighbor policy when you find that in the division of some of this tax money it is given to states that are unable to help themselves to aid in their road programs. All we are doing is asking the states that are able to help themselves to help those states that are unable to help themselves. Is that true?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I believe Congress despite getting out of the gasoline tax field will still have ample revenues to help the states that can not build their own roads. They will still have their tax on automobiles, their tax on lubricating oils and other things that go into our system of transportation.

The thought is that as far as Pennsylvania is concerned we are such a large state, have such great centers of population and so many road bottle-necks that this money is really needed right here in this state to take care of the ever-increasing burden, that is being put upon our roads which are getting older, as you know from reports that have been presented to this House, and need rebuilding and widening practically all over this Commonwealth. As I understand it there will still be ample funds available to the Federal government from other sources of taxation to take care of the states that can not build roads from their current finances.

Mr. LOVETT. I would like to further interrogate the gentleman. Does the gentleman have any knowledge of how much money is now received by the state of Pennsylvania for road building from the Federal government?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, that figure has slipped my mind. I think the two percent tax would amount to about $90 million, I believe, a biennium, and it runs in my mind we get back $25 million.

To put it in a down-to-earth fashion, we get back about twenty-five cents out of every dollar that is collected.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to further interrogate the gentleman. Does the gentleman have any idea how much money the Federal government now collects throughout the United States in the different states; the entire amount of money that is collected by taxation?

Mr. JOHNSON. Does the gentleman mean from the two cent tax on gasoline? I do not have that figure immediately available.

Mr. LOVETT. Does the gentleman have any idea what the division of that money is to the different states by the Federal government?

Mr. JOHNSON. No I am sorry I do not have that figure.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I still feel that under the good-neighbor policy this is not helpful legislation to the entire United States and I feel that the Federal government does a very good job in the distribution of the money they collect to the states that are unable to help themselves. I therefore cannot agree that I should vote for this resolution.

On the question recurring,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

It was concurred in.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

TURNPIKE SAFETY COMMITTEE APPOINTED IN HOUSE

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to a Concurrent Resolution, Senate Serial No. 110, providing for a joint committee of the Senate and House of Representatives to investigate Pennsylvania Turnpike safeguards and regulations, adopted by the Senate, February 9th, 1953 and concurred in by the House, February 16th, 1953, the Speaker appoints as a committee on the part of the House, the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Royer, the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Hocker, the gentleman from Susquehanna, Mr. Wescott, the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Waterhouse and the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Filo.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. HEWITT asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, ladies and gentlemen of the General Assembly, the month of February has produced some great characters in history of which we are all aware: Lincoln, Washington and my son Earl, Junior.

There is one other great character that all of the sportsmen of this House and this nation know of. Today is the birthday of Honus Wagner, 79 years old, the greatest shortstop that ever played baseball and perhaps the greatest baseball player of all time. It is disputed by some that Cobb was a greater player, but Wagner was an infielder and never had an equal.

Honus Wagner, in addition to being a marvelous baseball player, always was a great credit to the game, a wonderful gentleman and one of my very close friends. I believe it is perfectly proper to mention his name here in the House today and congratulate him on having reached his 79th birthday.

FORMER MEMBER WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. We have with us today another former Member of the House whom we are pleased to welcome, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Honorable Edward J. Conway.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. BUCHANAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn until Monday, March 2, 1953 at 4:30 p. m.

The motion was agreed to, and (at 12:09 p. m.) the House adjourned.

HOUSE MESSAGES

SENATE CONCURS IN HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, presented an extract from the Journal of the House of Representatives, which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

CONDOLENCE

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1953.

Whereas, Harold A. Scragg, Chairman of the Public Utility Commission of Pennsylvania died on December 7, 1952; and

Whereas, He graduated from Yale University in 1913 and from Harvard Law School in 1916. He was appointed Assistant District Attorney of Lackawanna County in 1917 and appointed to that post in 1920 and elected thereto in 1921; and

Whereas, In August of 1943 he was appointed as Chief Counsel of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, then on April 2, 1945 he was appointed as member of the commission and finally he on March 5, 1952 was appointed Chairman of the commission, which post he held at the time of his death; and

Whereas, An examination of the many tributes paid to his memory discloses that every commendable word that could be said about a good man was said about Harold A. Scragg. His own county bar in expressing their esteem of him said—"Harold Scragg was superb in almost every human characteristic; he was as beautiful a specimen of manhood as ever appeared in the court rooms of this Commonwealth; his physical presence was commanding and impressive. He had the power of clear and concise statement and this combined with a voice pleasing to the ear made him attractive to juries and judges alike. In the trial of cases he was alert and resourceful. He appeared to be rapid in action and so never seemed disturbed or confused, even when the unexpected suddenly took place. He worked very hard as District Attorney, as Chief Counsel for the Commission and as Commissioner and Chairman of the Public Utility Commission;" and

Whereas, He spent years of life in public service, bringing great honor to Lackawanna County and to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; therefore be it

Resolved, (if the Senate concur) That the General Assembly hereby joins in paying high tribute to the memory of one of Pennsylvania's great sons; and be it further

Resolved, That we, the members of the General Assembly, hereby express our deep sympathy to the widow of Harold Scragg and to his brother Robert and his niece Mrs. Franklin Collins; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk be instructed to transmit copies of this resolution to the members of the family of the deceased as named above.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

HOUSE CONCURS IN SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

He also informed the Senate that the House has concurred in resolution from the Senate as follows:

MEMORIALIZING CONGRESS TO ENACT CERTAIN LEGISLATION RELATIVE TO GASOLINE TAXES

In the Senate, February 10, 1953.

Whereas, An excise tax on gasoline, which form of taxation is the rightful prerogative of the several states, is presently being levied by both the United States of America and the several states, and

Whereas, From time to time the United States has changed its rate of taxation on this commodity which action makes it increasingly difficult for the respective states to develop a comprehensive tax program to provide revenues for the improvement and maintenance of their highways, therefore, be it

Resolved, If the House of Representatives concurs, that the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania memorialize the Congress of United States to enact such legislation as will:

(1) Return to each state without restriction all Federal taxes on gasoline collected therein until such time as the individual state is able to enact legislation as may be necessary to permit it to collect such tax;

(2) Eliminate the tax on gasoline now collected by the United States as soon as the individual states have enacted legislation as may be necessary to permit the state to collect the tax;

(3) Eliminate Federal Aid for Highways except in those states where the revenues produced by a tax of two cents per gallon of gasoline is less than present Federal Aid Allocations to such states;

(4) Change the present functions of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads so that it would become a consultive and advisory engineering agency which would collect, correlate and disseminate information relative to the design, construction, maintenance and operation of highways and bridges and the materials used therefor, and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be directed to forward copies of this resolution upon its passage to the President of the United States, the Secretary of the United States Senate, the Chief Clerk of United States House of Representatives, to all members of the Pennsylvania Congressional Delegation, to the Governors of all other states, and to the presiding officers of the legislative bodies of all other states.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. FLEMING asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. President, in the 1951 Session, the six Members of the Senate from Allegheny County introduced a bill creating the Metropolitan Study Commission for Counties of the Second Class which is, of course, as we all know, Allegheny County.

There was considerable misapprehension, Mr. President, on the part of the elected officials of the boroughs and townships in Allegheny County as to the purpose of this bill. At this time, I want to assure the Members of the Senate, and anyone else who happens to be listening, that while I am introducing this bill and am in favor of making a study of the problems of the various municipalities comprising Allegheny County, by no stretch of the imagination am I, at this time, for metropolitan Pittsburgh. I want it to be completely understood, Mr. President, that this bill does not in any way propose to create metropolitan Pittsburgh. It is merely for the purpose of making a study of the problems that are arising in Allegheny County pertaining to the one hundred and twenty-five separate municipalities of that county.

Therefore, Mr. President, on behalf of my five colleagues from Allegheny County, in the Senate, and myself, I am presenting this bill.

Which was committed to the Committee on Agriculture.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. LANE asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, in presenting one of the bills in the group that I have here today, I would like to inform the Senate that this bill amends the Public Utility Law by requiring railroads to maintain safety gates and watchmen, or automatic crossing signals, at certain grade crossings. The reason I am sponsoring this legislation is because in my county of Washington, in the little village of Dunlevy, we have a grade crossing on the Monongahela Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad that, since 1948, has brought about five fatalities. This is due, in part or probably in whole, to the negligence of the Pennsylvania Railroad in maintaining watchmen at this very important crossing.

Mr. President, in presenting this bill, I would like to also speak to the lobbyists for the railroads, and say to them that all we ask is justice under the law for the population of Pennsylvania. This bill should be passed; it is not political.

Mr. President, I will also say to the lobbyists for the Pennsylvania Railroad that if the Public Utility Commission decides that the County of Washington should assume a portion of this cost, I, as a member of that board, will tell you here and now that we will approve a portion of that cost. What we want to do is to protect the safety of our citizenry.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would like to make a brief remark or two about a bill that was introduced by my colleague, Senator Fleming, and my other colleagues from Allegheny County. As a co-sponsor of the bill, I would like to further point out to the Members of the Senate that since the introduction of the original study group, which was in the 1951 Session, some of the political subdivisions of Allegheny County have been tremendously concerned for fear the General Assembly was, by a back-door method, introducing a metropolitan plan for the various political subdivisions of Allegheny County.

Mr. President, I want to add my assurance to what Senator Fleming said when he introduced the bill, on behalf of the Members of the Senate from Allegheny County, that under no circumstances does this bill create a metropolitan plan. It is merely a continuation of the study, and the recommendations will be made between now and the 1955 Session. Under no circumstances could a metropolitan plan be invoked under this present setup.

Mr. President, I might add that the study is being made by the same group which has been so instrumental in the development of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County as a forward marching community. It is being financed entirely by private funds and not by any appropriation from the General Assembly. Whether or not any recommendations, which come out of this study, are approved by Legislatures in the future, is not part of the study which is being made now or not part of the responsibility of the bill which was just introduced today by Senators from Allegheny County.

Now, Mr. President, a number of the boroughs and townships in Allegheny County have been tremendously concerned. They have petitioned various Members of the House and Senate not to continue the life of this commission. I would like, through the only medium that is open to us in conveying information to the public, to assure all the boroughs and townships of Allegheny County that this does not necessarily result in a metropolitan plan. It is merely a continuation of a study which we hope will make some contribution to the marvelous progress which the county of Allegheny, and the municipality of the city of Pittsburgh, is making with regard to community development.

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. Mr. President, I concur in the remarks which Senator Walker and Senator Fleming made concerning the metropolitan plan of Allegheny County. I am in favor of the study being continued, but I definitely want to be on record, that I am opposed to any metropolitan plan of Allegheny County.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President and Members of the Senate, last week when I attended the Joint Session of the House and Senate and listened to the Governor's speech, I was particularly impressed by his sincerity when he said that he felt most of the recommendations of the Chesterman Committee should receive serious consideration, and should fully be debated upon the floors of the House and the Senate. However, after receiving his copy, I was more impressed with a couple of paragraphs on the first page, which I think I should read to the Members of the Senate. It starts at the second paragraph where he says:

"Moreover, the structure of your State Government has for some time outgrown efficiency and has promoted extravagance. Shortly after assuming office it was obvious to me, as it must have been to you, that much could be done to eradicate evils in your Government, and that the field was expansive for improvement of the State services.

"How and when to proceed with improvements were the only questions before us; the necessity of proceeding with a survey of government was never clouded in any doubt. How such survey as the one before us could have been overlooked and been delayed until this Administration is quite confounding."

Now it seems to me, Mr. President, that these two paragraphs have convinced me, and convinced the Democratic Minority, that His Excellency, the Governor, is convinced that prior Administrations were inept, careless and extravagant. It is gratifying for us to know that when the Chief Executive of this great Commonwealth, and of the Majority Party, makes that statement, then we are quite convinced that there are other spenders beside the New Dealers.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I certainly take exception to the inference drawn by the gentleman from Washington, Senator Lane, from the Governor's speech. I do not think at any time, when the Governor was presenting the Chesterman problem to the Joint Session of the General Assembly, did he imply or suggest that in his opinion prior Administrations of the General Assembly had been extravagant, or that they had wasted the State's sustenance or that they were in any way derelict in their responsibilities of State Government.

Mr. President, I had the opportunity, since last Monday's Session when the General Assembly was presented with this report, to read it over. I would not want to use the word "study," Mr. President, for fear I would be misunderstood. However, there is a great deal of material in there which calls for the Senate's very sincere and very serious study and consideration.

Now, Mr. President, there is one thing that the people of Pennsylvania must keep in mind when they view a State Government that is as large and as complex as the State of Pennsylvania. You know, we have here a representative form of government. I do not use the word "democracy," Mr. President, not because of any political problem involved, but simply because when the founders of this type of government drafted the Federal Constitution, the word "democracy" was not known. A representative form of government was the type of government that was created. A representative form of government, under the nomenclature used at that time, was called a "Republic." Therefore, when they founded the Republic, they realized that in a representative form of government you are dependent entirely upon the whim and caprice of the people in order to produce the individuals who would assume the responsibility of public office.

Mr. President, that same form of government is followed in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. We have on the statute books a bill known as the Administrative Code. This Code was drafted long before you and I were qualified to sit in this august body. In 1925, through the growth of government, which is the natural result of a representative type of government such as we have here, the officials of Pennsylvania came to almost the identical spot we find ourselves in today. Because of the very nature of a representative type of government, you find overlapping; you find duplication; you find a tendency to stray from the beaten path in which a particular department, board or bureau was placed into the field of speculative government.

Mr. President, in 1925, the people of Pennsylvania, through the officials that they had in public office, prepared and submitted to the General Assembly a recodification of the Administrative Code. In that recodification, they very carefully streamlined and attempted to once more put a representative form of government back on the beaten path. Now, Mr. President, that was over twenty-five years ago when that reorganization move took place, and this situation under which we find ourselves is a natural result of the type of government that the people of the United States, and the people of Pennsylvania, have chosen as their particular governmental vehicle.

Mr. President, the question of extravagance is not part and parcel of the result of any administration in the State Government, as suggested by the gentleman from Washington. It is a natural outgrowth of the sort of thing that you are confronted with everytime you have a government of this type. That has been true not only in the United States, Mr. President, but that has been true in every country where a representative form of government is the type of government they use.

I think that the gentleman from Washington should bear in mind that the whole purpose of reviewing the Administrative Code, which precipitated the Chesterman Report, was to approach it strictly from a nonpolitical nonpartisan basis, and not try to point the finger of suspicion or attach an accolade of triumph on either of the political parties.

Mr. President, I think the people of Pennsylvania will benefit mostly from whatever results the Legislature might acquire through the Chesterman Report if the Members of the Senate continue to approach it on that same basis and in that same spirit.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I am sorry that this matter has come up so suddenly today because I listened very attentively during the six months preceding the last National campaign, and, up until this moment when Senator Walker clarified the situation a little in my mind, I thought that the sins of any administration belonged to the administration, and that the expense and extravagance of government could be placed, of course, necessarily in the hands of the administrators of government.

We have come to the stage now, Mr. President, where the extravagance in the Washington government, the so called bureaucracy and aristocracy of the Democratic Party, can rightfully be blamed on the Democratic Party. However, when we attempt to repeat the very words uttered by their own party in condemnation of preceding Republican administrations, then it becomes an outgrowth of the manner of government we enjoy. We all know it is a representative form of government, and we tried to explain to the peoples of the United States last year from every hamlet town and village in the Country that the evils which had grown up in government were not necessarily the sins of the Democratic Party, but they were the so-called accumulations of waste and extravagance that come necessarily from representative government. Nevertheless, the Republican speakers would not adhere to that line. At that time they insisted that the waste and extravagance of Federal government was because of a man by the name of Harry Truman, whom they pictured as a very inept President.

Now, Mr. President, the change has come in Washington, and we fought it very bitterly, and I imagine that the fight which we put up will be duplicated in Pennsylvania, because when conditions arrive to the extent that representative government seems to bog down it is because of the administration of that government. It is not because of the manner in which the government is elected or selected, but because of the manner in which the government is administered. The change that was necessary, as they said in Washington, as we now view it, if it was necessary in Washington, if the change was beneficial to the people, then how can any man in his sane mind object to a change in Harrisburg, a change in Pennsylvania?

The very things, Mr. President, that have accumulated in Washington have accumulated in Harrisburg; the extravagance, the waste, the misplacement of judgment. All of these things come, as they said, from too long in the saddle, too many years of the same political party, too much administration by the same political group of thinkers. Therefore, a new change was needed to revitalize this great representative government of ours, and I see by the papers that it has been revitalized a little in Washington, although I have not seen much of a change in the legislative enactment of any of the changes that were recommended.

Mr. President, I do believe that if that were true in November, it can easily be true in March. Therefore, I do not think that the gentleman needs to protest too much against Governor Fine making that statement. If Governor Fine said that the preceding administrations are to blame for the fix in which we find ourselves presently in Pennsylvania, then evidently he knew what he was talking about. I know that he had studied the results of the Chesterman report more fully than I have, and if he said publicly to all of the people of Pennsylvania, in a sense, that the sins which are now visited upon the administration were committed during previous administrations, that there was waste in previous administrations, that there was passage of legislation without providing the necessary funds to meet the appropriations, then I, again, assume he knew what he was talking about.

Mr. President, I know he insinuated that we had spent $500,000,000 for the bonus without providing any money to pay it. I know what he meant. I think every other person in the Legislative Hall knew what he meant. I knew he meant that we had agreed to give the school-teachers and the educational system a boost in the arm, and to increase the expenditure over the years on a prorated share, so much every two year period, for the school system of Pennsylvania. He forgot, of course, that the preceding administrations neglected to provide the money to do so.

I can understand Governor Fine's plight, Mr. President. He finds himself with contracts made and nothing with which to back up the contracts. However, do not blame that on representative government; do not blame it on the system of government that we have. I have always maintained that government is an abstract thing; it cannot be wrong and it cannot be right. Only the people who are in it make government concrete, and they are the ones who make it right or make it wrong, the elected officials. If there is skulduggery and hypocrisy in government, it is in there because the people bring it in. Government itself has nothing to do with it. Government is only a means by which those governed enable those who govern to govern. That is all it is in the simplest term and the simplest sense.

Therefore, Mr. President, if there is any condemnation on the part of the Governor against the preceding administrations, let us wait until the hearings and find out whether or not the Governor knew what he was talking about.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would like to suggest, first, that if I am quoting correctly from the paragraph referred to by the gentleman from Washington, which is found on page one of the Address of the Governor to the Joint Session last Monday—I am assuming that is the paragraph which the gentleman referred to—the Governor says and I quote from the speech:

"Moreover, the structure of your State Government has for some time outgrown efficiency and has promoted extravagance."

Now, Mr. President, I probably will say this very badly, but, I do not want to be misunderstood on either side of the aisle. I am not attempting to justify the Governor's words or defend the front office. I am merely calling attention to the fact that the Governor was speaking of the structure of our State Government, and under no stretch of the imagination was he pointing at any of the administrations which had preceded him.

Mr. President, as far as the gentleman from Westmoreland is concerned, on suggesting that there is a hiatus between this discussion and what we discussed in September and October, prior to the November election of 1952, may I respectfully point out to the gentleman that what we were discussing before the election of 1952, regarding the situation in Washington, or regarding the problem confronting the Federal Administration at that time, certainly does not have a parallel when you are discussing the State Administration here. There were accusations made there were editorials written, there were newspaper stories published that did not deal simply with the subject which we are now discussing.

Some years before 1952, Mr. President, at the suggestion of a Democratic President of the United States, the Hoover Commission was established. This Commission made a study and a report, and that had nothing to do with the discussion which we had during the fall of 1952 when we were recommending a change in the Federal setup or in the administration in Washington. When the gentlemen on the other side of the aisle arrive at the place where they think there is a comparable situation, they no doubt will place before the people through the medium of the press, the accusations which will point the way to a suggested change as they so fondly hope for, and, of course, the wish is the father to the thought.

May I say Mr. President, that the situation is not parallel. What we accused them of in Washington does not exist in Harrisburg. What we accused them of in the Federal Government does not exist in the State Government.

The Republican Party has had the privilege, Mr. President, for the past fifteen or sixteen years, of being in power here in the city of Harrisburg and in the State Government. Many of the things that have been written into the statute books are governmental steps which were participated in by both sides of the aisle. Many of them were suggested by Republican Administrations, and not for a minute do I want to be so naive as to claim all of the credit for the things that have been done which can be pointed out as good things in State Government. However, there have been many very fine things that have been accomplished for the people of Pennsylvania under the last four administrations to which we can point with pride, and the mere fact that they happened to be done under a Republican Administration perhaps creates a little higher degree of pride on this side of the aisle than it would on the Democratic side of the aisle.

Now, Mr. President, for example, I would like to cite a few examples so that they will have something to kick around if this thing ever breaks out into a public debate. During the administration of Governor Duff, the Mental Health Program of Pennsylvania was written into the statute books by the General Assembly. Both sides of the aisle participated in that and it is something that the Commonwealth can well be proud of. In the 1951 Session, there was a lot of clamor and a lot of complaint about a lot of the things we did and a lot of the things we did not do. However, I want to suggest to both sides of the aisle that, for example, the Public Health Program which we wrote into the statute books was one of the finest examples of service by government to the public that you find anywhere in the forty-eight States of the Union.

So, Mr. President, when we speak of making a change in the State Government comparable to the changes we have made, or that the people have made, in 1952 in the Federal Government, let us remember that you have to convince the people of Pennsylvania that the Republican Party has been derelict in its responsibility of public office, and, as a great American once said, "Let's look at the record."

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is reminded of a visit he made one time, looking for a job for a constituent. During the conversation with the gentleman who was handing out the job, it developed that I really needed two instead of one.

He said to me, "I see your problem is that you wish two to grow where one grew before." Now, I have four where there was one before. Whom am I going to recognize?

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, perhaps you should recognize the one who talks the least.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. DiSilvestro.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, I notice that my side is very soft toward Governor Fine, but I intend to be very sincere about it, I was not going to touch on this subject, but the needle that the Senator from Allegheny County just handed out was too strong.

Mr. President, you know, a gravy train is something that both parties like. You will always find abnormal people with abnormal appetites in both parties. I saw it in our party about fifteen years ago and I was against it.

I read in the newspapers, Mr. President, that since the Board of Revision of Taxes has been notified, by a ruling of the Supreme Court, that political workers cannot be politically active and still hold their jobs, there is some filling station in Philadelphia where a lot of these boys are being relegated at big salaries. Now, in a real friendly tone and in real sincerity, I would like to sort of warn the Governor and notify him that something is going on in Philadelphia which I don't think will be beneficial to the Republican Party. After all, it is a great old party and I love to see the two party system in Pennsylvania. We all have gravy train riders. I do not say that it is on the opposite side alone. We have had them; I have seen these abnormal leaders.

Mr. President, I really rose because my conscience told me to say this and it is the truth. Governor Fine should put on spectacles or look around, because in Philadelphia there is a payroll being padded; such fellows as Samuel Dunbar, leader of the Forty-Sixth Ward, my good friend, we are still good friends even though we are on the opposite side, Richard Samuels, of the Thirty-Ninth Ward. It looks like big figures here, fifty-five hundred, six thousand, and by the time they are through I believe there will be fifty-three ward leaders in Philadelphia. I think Governor Fine had better wake up and look around.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I have been endeavoring to get the floor. Senator Walker, I believe, has had the opportunity to speak twice, and Senator Dent is endeavoring to speak twice. I just want to briefly answer the gentleman, and state that I was only quoting what I thought the Governor meant when I read the English language of the first two paragraphs of page one of his speech.

Mr. President, in addition thereto, if it is going to take all this time to debate page one, we had better not start on the rest of it, because as you go down through the rest of it, you will find that the Governor also said in his speech that he was giving explicit orders to his department heads to effect the economies which are recommended by the Committee immediately, those that did not necessitate the passing of legislation.

Now, if that were true, Mr. President, which I assume it is, the Governor of the Commonwealth admits to all of us that he has a weak team. We recognize him as a strong Governor, but if his team, his department heads, do not recognize inefficiency when they see it, there is something wrong. I say the Governor has done a splendid job in creating the Chesterman Committee. However, I do say this, too, Mr. President, that any man who holds public office, especially those in the high State offices, most assuredly should recognize inefficiency when they see it, and they should not have to wait until an outside Committee makes these recommendations.

Mr. President, in conclusion, I would like to say this. As a great American once said, "Those who yell the loudest and the longest have the least confidence in what they say."

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I am glad you recognized me. My name is John H. Dent, I come from the city of Jeannette and my telephone number is 944.

Mr. President, I was just going to advise the gentleman from Allegheny that he should take the same advice which was given to the gentleman who was the executor of an estate. He was reading the will, and when he came to that part of the will which left him a great deal of the estate, he quit reading. One of the members of the family said, "Read on, Brother John, read on." He thought perhaps he might get something out of it. So, John, I say to you, "Read on, Brother John, read on." Just one paragraph below where you quit, the Governor had this to say. I think it is only proper that if I am going to read it I should put my glasses on, which shows that I have been here too long myself.

I quote from the Governor's speech:

"How and when to proceed with improvements were the only questions before us; the necessity of proceeding with a survey of government was never clouded in any doubt. How such survey as the one before us could have been overlooked and been delayed until this Administration is quite confounding."

Mr. President, the Governor did not call the preceding Administrations by any designated name as being derelict in their duty, but I do not think it takes a college graduate or university student to know that the thing which is being done now should have been done before.

Relative to the question, Mr. President, of whether that in Washington parallels that in Harrisburg, I have just a little of the material that was left on my doorstep, during the campaign, by the Republican workers who thought that I might be persuaded to vote with them, and this is just one day's pickup. If you will read through this material, you will see where they claimed that the Democrats had failed to clean out so-called "payrollers." Now, there is something parallel in what the Governor had to say about that.

I just want to read one of them to you, Mr. President. I think the people should know what went on last year, because the people of America have a short memory. It is something about Eisenhower, "Ike," and a fellow by the name of Nixon, "Dick." "Let's Clean House, it says. Now, Mr. President, how are we going to clean house?"

"A Vote for Ike and Dick is a Vote for Prosperity Without War." They tell me that farm price are dropping. I understand, I do not know, but by the latest informaion, unless it has happened lately, they are still fighting in Korea.

"A Vote for Ike and Dick is a Vote Against High Taxes and Inflation." I do not know much about the inflation, but I have not had a reduction in taxes as yet.

"A Vote for Ike and Dick is a Vote Against Corruption." Well, that question of corruption is one that can be debated in many ways. We have here in the Senate some resolutions that have been submitted. The resolutions that were put in in Washington were submitted by Democrats. The committees that dug out the corruption in Washington were headed by Democrats. The committees that worked in Washington to correct the so-called abuses and misuses of governmental positions were headed and manned by Democrats. Here in Harrisburg, we have tried to put through resolutions calling upon this Senate to give us the power, the legislation, to look into so-called charges that have been made in the open public press about many things that I will quote if you so desire. We have a list of them. Our resolutions are objected to and sent to committee.

Mr. President, you do not see any committees headed by the Republican Party digging into the so-called Boxing Commission scandals in the State of Pennsylvania. You do not see anything in here about the number of Cadillac cars there are now in the so-called car pool, and the rest of the automobiles that have been picked out. I even noticed that the Chesterman Committee took a buggy ride on that one. It seems to me that if you want to have the things that you claim you want, and every decent citizen wants, then you have got to look into the charges in Pennsylvania the same as you looked into them in Washington, D. C. We headed the committees down there, and if we were defeated by what we found, then we should have been defeated if it was wrong. There is no man here attempting to make alibis for anything wrong in Washington, but neither can any Republican alibi anything that is supposed to be wrong in Harrisburg.

Here is another one I like, "A Vote for Ike and Dick is a Vote for Morality." Since when has the Republican Party a monopoly on morality? What does morality cover? Is it a manner in which you administer the office you are given to handle, or it is some other insidious thing that happens in government?

Mr. President, morality and the abuse of morality is not confined to Washington, D. C. It can be found in every Capital and every seat of government. It has grown up over the years, and if we have come to a new status of government we all welcome it. If there is to be a new type of political being in this country, we will all welcome that, too. Maybe the day of the doorbell ringer is gone from politics, and maybe you have to be a college professor with high-sounding phrases to be successful in politics, or maybe you have to be the kind of fellow who sits in, in confidence, in a mere discussion and takes it out and puts it out as facts.

Mr. President, whatever the conditions are, do not blame them all on us. You do not clean out morality in Washington by changing a few men at the top of government. I think there will be just as much of it, if there was any, at the end of four years as there was at the end of twenty because, Mr. President, I cannot conceive of the millions of public payroll people in the United States, who work for the Federal government, all belonging to an immoral class. I said before, Mr. President, and I say again, government is abstract, only the people who get into it are concrete.

Here is another one I like, "A Vote for Ike and Dick is a Vote Against Communism." I have seventeen colleagues of mine on the Democratic side of this Senate. I defy anybody to find a communist among us. We are no more communists than the Republicans are. We had a few vivid thinking professors, and I think you will find a couple in the Republican Party. Another thing, communists do not belong to any party. They will go into any party, or any group or any particular place that they can find their way into, to work their nefarious trade. They do not belong to us, and you cannot hang them onto us, although you successfully did last year.

Here is the one I like better than all, "A Vote for Ike and Dick is a Vote for Your Own Peace of Mind." Well, I would like to have a piece of my mind back.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I am not up here to defend the Governor of the Commonwealth, because you cannot defend him after he makes a speech like he did last week and then hires these political ward leaders in office when he is not dismissing people. However, I get exactly what my colleague got out of this sentence, "outgrown efficiency and promoted extravagance."

In the 1949 Session, Mr. President, we tried to amend the Soldiers' Bonus Act, to tag onto it a tax by which it would be paid. We asked them what tax they were going to put on when they increased the General State Authority. We asked the same thing when the school-teachers' bill passed. Certainly, before another year is gone or before this year is past, the people of this Commonwealth will find out that it cost them $1,000,000 to elect Jim Duff to the United States Senate, and he left the cupboard bare and that is why the man in the front office is finding his trouble.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, Governor Fine would not have had to make the statement he did about previous administrations because the answer is very obvious, and it was confirmed by the Chesterman reports which indicated that a hodgepodge exists in the State Government to the tune of $100,000,000.

Mr. President, if the distinguished gentleman from Allegheny County, who said he was proud of the accomplishments and proud of the State Government, means what he says, I am sure the 10,000,000 people in Pennsylvania do not join him. He tried to defend conditions that exist in the State Government because of the Administrative Code and the Fiscal Code. That is a very poor defense of the hodgepodge which exists here. If the Administrative Code and the Fiscal Code are responsible for the hodgepodge, then it was up to the Republican controlled administration to do something about it.

Mr. President, for the years that I have been around Harrisburg, and for the two Sessions that I have been a Member of the Senate, in particular in 1949, the cry was, "Let's have a short, businesslike Session." I would like somebody to define to me just what "a short businesslike Session" is. Is it a short, businesslike Session to come to Harrisburg, approve the budget without any question, as we did in 1949, then pass the tax program, pass a few harmless turkeys in the form of bills, as they call them around here, and a few other bills that benefit the special interests and then go home?

They bragged in 1949, Mr. President, that the Session was the shortest in the history of the Commonwealth, and I guess that was true. However, if you take a look at the record, it accomplished nothing.

At the last Session of the Legislature, Mr. President, we were here for a whole year and during that whole year we could have cleaned up some of this hodgepodge. If you take a look at the record of last year, we put in resolutions to make investigations, to make surveys, to hold public hearings, to try to straighten out this mess which exists here, but everything, as Senator Dent said, was referred to a committee and there is remained. In spite of the fact that we were here a whole year, we did nothing to get rid of this hodgepodge that exists here.

Right after this Session opened, Mr. President, there was talk of a short, businesslike Session, and I was going to ask somebody whether that, too, meant to come here, approve the budget, load the people with taxes, say nothing about the waste, extravagance and over-lapping, the loose spending of public funds, pass a few harmless turkeys and a few that would benefit the special interests, and then go home and keep right on spending this $100,000,000 which the Chesterman Committee said we were spending unnecessarily.

Mr. President, the gentleman from Allegheny said that he was proud of the Mental Health Program which exists in Pennsylvania. I am a little bit surprised that he would say that. He should look into it a little bit. I do not believe we have any Mental Health Program in Pennsylvania. Our mental hospitals are understaffed; those who work in them are incompetent; there is a shortage of doctors and nurses; the attendants are given no training; they do not know how to handle the poor, sick people. This is reflected in the fact, Mr. President, that out of forty-four thousand five hundred and some inmates who are patients in our State institutions, only one thousand eighty-eight were discharged in one year and the number that died, I think, was double that many. The institutions are overcrowded by about 10,000. Is that something of which to be proud?

Every once in a while, Mr. President, we hear of a death in the State institutions, our mental institutions, where patients are beaten to death. One was stabbed out here in Blair County, stabbed to death and nothing happened. Another was beaten to death down in the Allentown State Hospital. Just a short time ago, another was beaten to death down at Pennhurst. I have pictures of the body here, and I expect to talk about it at length at the proper time. Every one of these deaths was white-washed; whitewashed, Mr. President, and nobody punished. The causes of death that were given at the institutions differed from the causes of death indicated on the death certificates because I have those, too. Still nothing has been done about it.

Mr. President, the gentleman from Allegheny says he is proud of the Mental Health Program in Pennsylvania. Very shortly, as soon as I have completed an investigation which I am making, I will talk about the Mental Health Program in Pennsylvania. I am sure that when I get through with it, he will retract the words he said upon the floor of this Senate today.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. WHITE and TOLL.

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1953.

Basketball is one of the finest of American indoor winter sports, being a clean, fast game which is a joy to watch and to play.

It's a game which is played in every community in the United States and especially throughout Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia seems to be a growing center of basketball activity and among the many college teams playing in and around Philadelphia, LaSalle College's basketball team has for the fourth successive year won a place in the National Invitation Tournament.

In fact LaSalle College became the first Philadelphia team in fourteen years to win a national basketball title when it captured the National Invitation Tournament in New York's Madison Garden on March 15, 1952.

The coach and the whole team is to be congratulated both upon their winning record and also on their fine record of not only having catholic players on a catholic college team but on having a champion winning team made up as follows:

Tom Gola, a catholic
Norm Gerkin, a jew
Fred Iehle, a protestant
Jackie Moore, colored
Frank O'Hara, a catholic
Therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives herewith warmly extends its congratulations to Ken Loeffler, the coach of LaSalle College Basketball Team and to each of the players of the team; and be it further

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. HELM from the Committee on Rules reported as committed Senate Concurrent Resolution Serial No. 120 and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The Senate Message and Resolution were read by the Clerk as follows:

SENATE MESSAGE

JOINT COMMITTEE TO HOLD PUBLIC HEARINGS ON STATE GOVERNMENT SURVEY COMMITTEE REPORT

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, February 24, 1953.

Whereas, His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, John S. Fine, has submitted to the General Assembly the report of the State Government Survey Committee, and

Whereas, the Governor of the Commonwealth has requested the General Assembly to give due consideration to its recommendations and where deemed feasible to implement the said recommendations by appropriate legislation, and now

Therefore be it resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That the President Pro Tempore of the Senate appoint a committee of 15 members of the Senate and the Speaker of the House appoint a similar committee of the House to conduct public hearings on the various phases, findings, and recommendations of the State Government Survey Committee, and report their findings to this Session of the General Assembly.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

On the question,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Majority Leader if he would please explain definitely to this House what this resolution actually does.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentlemen desire to interrogate the Majority Leader?

Mr. LOVETT. I only ask that the Majority Leader explain to the Membership of this House exactly the details, and what will happen to this legislation under this particular resolution.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, the Report of the Government Survey Committee is now on the desks of the Members. It is before the House and the Senate.

It is generally agreed that something very tangible, very special, should be done with the findings in this report. It is already a matter of public record. It has been in the newspapers, and this resolution also tells the story that the Senate last Tuesday adopted this resolution wherein they picked a Committee of fifteen, I believe, ten from the majority side and five from the minority side to act as a special hearing committee. They are asking the House to appoint a similar hearing committee to sit with the Senate Committee as one committee to conduct hearings on this report.

As the resolution stands, the committee shall meet here on matters contained in the report and present their findings to this session of the Legislature.

I grant you that there is not any time limit in the resolution to say when the report shall be made to the House, but I understand that the committee intends to go about their tasks with dispatch and bring their report to the House as soon as possible. I also understand that bills will be prepared and introduced implementing the findings of the Government Survey Report.

The knowledge that is gained from these hearings will be available to the various committees that consider this legislation; and in due course of time when the hearings have been finished, and the bills have been presented, the committees will act on the legislation and the Members of the House, we trust will have a chance to express themselves one way or the other on the economies which that report has suggested.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I would now like to interrogate the Majority Leader.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from McKean permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JOHNSON. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Under this resolution, it is contemplated that legislation will be prepared by the time of the public hearings, and that the committee will have that legislation before it at that time?

Mr. JOHNSON. No, as I understand, Mr. Speaker, this committee will conduct hearings on the report itself, and as soon as possible legislation will be introduced. It is quite possible that on the day the committee is sitting to hear a particular recommendation the particular bill will be before them, but the committee will not act on the bill itself; they will only act on the recommendations of the report.

Mr. LOVETT. May I further ask that the gentleman state whether the legislation will then be assigned to the different committees?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, as I understand it, the legislation will be referred to the appropriate committee in the House of Representatives. Any bills that are introduced in the House will be referred to the appropriate committee in the House.

Mr. LOVETT. Is it the gentleman's understanding then that the particular committee which will handle that particular legislation will be at this public hearing?

Mr. JOHNSON. We are going to recommend to members of the particular committee on the day that particular legislation is discussed that they, if possible, be present at the hearings so that they will be able to acquaint themselves with the pros and cons of the proposed legislation and the recommendations of the Report. But the members of the committee itself, the hearing committee, are those who will be present at the hearing and are those who will conduct the hearings.

Mr. LOVETT. Do you propose to pay the expenses of the particular committee to come to this public hearing?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, at the present time, I must say that no consideration has been given as to remuneration of House Members who must stay here during the week to attend these hearings. Perhaps a bill will be introduced. While we are all on a salary, our salary is of course supposed to pay for this work. If in the opinion of the House and the Senate appropriations committees, an appropriation would be proper and fair and reasonable for the amount of expense involved, I think we should not have any trouble with an appropriation measure to defray expenses of this very important work.

Mr. LOVETT. Does the gentleman feel, then, that members who perhaps would, after the House had adjourned, have gone home and this particular bill came before the special committee, and they requested the members of that committee to come to Harrisburg, that at least their expenses would be paid to that hearing? Is that my understanding?

Mr. JOHNSON. It probably might be the fair thing to do, but it is not contemplated to pay those expenses at the present time. That will be a matter for further discussion.

Mr. LOVETT. A further interrogation. Do I understand by this resolution that the particular legislation that will be drafted and heard at a public hearing before this special committee, with the other committees being present at the particular time that the legislation will go to their particular Committee, that that legislation will be reported from that Committee with either a favorable recommendation or a negative recommendation.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, as I stated, there will not be any legislation before the hearing committee as such. They will be conducting their hearings on the Chesterman Report. It is suggested, and will be suggested to other committee members, that if possible they be present to hear the various arguments in favor of or against the report.

So as far as the committees considering the legislation, I believe that the particular committee chairman will be requested, as well as members of the Committee, to report the bills out with some type of recommendation. I believe that is true.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw the last question due to the fact that I dare say there is something confidential there that I was not aware of at the time.

I do feel and I suggest to the Membership of the House that as important measures as this committee is going to hold public hearings on, at least the committee that is going to handle that legislation should be present at the public hearings. I would suggest also that all Members of the Legislature should try to be present at those hearings. I thank the gentleman.

On the question recurring,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

It was concurred in.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, we are about to pass a very important measure, an administration measure, a measure supported by the majority party leadership, and gosh, how some of you hate it! I understand that certain rural members in good standing in their party will need assistance in order to swallow this bill, even though it has been marred by amendments specifically intended to tend toward its ultimate overthrow.

The history of this bill, Mr. Speaker, is interesting. It is a measure to which the Minority Party is committed. I doubt whether without minority assistance this bill could ever have appeared upon the floor of this House although it is an administration measure, and although your party platform—and I am speaking to the Majority, at least your latest party platform—declared in favor of this bill. The Majority Party in and of itself would not be able to pass this measure today.

Mr. Speaker, if the Members of the Minority, when the roll is called were each to rise in his place and vote present, as they could, it would be necessary for Minority party Members to change their votes and vote "Aye" in order to pass this bill today.

Now, Mr. Speaker, if we were playing politics the way some Members of the Minority play it, we would lay this measure in your lap, and say it is your baby. You did not want bi-partisan sponsorship for it; your Governor has declared in favor of it; your floor leaders have struggled to bring it before you, now you go ahead and pass it. But you couldn't do it. And yet, you want to pass this bill with our assistance and claim all the credit for redeeming a party pledge.

Now we are not going to lay this bill in your lap. We are not going to permit rural Members who are opposed to this bill to defeat it. We are going to help redeem the pledge your party has made. We are going to help you sustain a program to which your Governor is committed. We are going to see to it that the hands of your Majority Leader, however much you may rough him up in your party caucus, are upheld when he comes before this House with a measure that we believe should pass.

Every now and then we are accused of playing petty politics. We do not propose to play that kind of politics now or hereafter. There is hardly a single measure of majority party interest to which your administration is committed that at this session of the House you can pass unless the minority upholds your hands.

When I disagree and the members of our caucus disagree with the Majority Leader we are going to come out on the floor of the House and disagree; but when the Majority Leader is committed to policies for which both parties stand, I do not care what happens to him in his caucus, if he can produce twelve votes, we will sustain him.

So we are going to support this bill, I hope unanimously, on this side of the House. I hope the opposition on the majority side, for the honor and welfare of their party, has disappeared and will not now appear, irrespective of the spectacular battle waged in your caucus.

You know the time may come when the Democratic party caucus will rough me up as much as you rough up your Majority Leader. And I wonder whether he will come to my support if he thinks I am right.

You know, I am going to talk to the Majority Leader about forming a union. There ought to be some union for the protection of party leaders. We ought to have tenure—something like that. We ought to organize and team up on these rambunctious orators from various parts of the state, who want to be insurrectionists and yet be regular.

So it is up to you Members on the majority to swallow this bitter pill and join with us in redeeming your party pledges.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, those are very kind words by the Minority Leader. It puts me rather on a spot, shall I say. But I will say one thing about the Members of our caucus, if we have any differences within our caucus they are generally differences of opinion which are honest differences of opinion. We slug it out in our caucus and we go out of the caucus good friends, come out here on the floor and generally try to do a job for the Republican party.

As I said on the opening day, here in this Hall we legislate for the people of Pennsylvania within the vast reservoir of power that is reserved to us under the Federal Constitution and our own Constitution. I am hoping when this session ends that we together, both sides, have passed a good program of economy and good legislation for all the people of Pennsylvania.

This bill has been before us now for practically a month. As the Minority Leader has said, it has been amended various times. We have tried to fuse into it the thinking of many groups. We think, perhaps, we have a pretty fair bill before us today within the time limit that we have set up for it.

As has been stated, it is in the platform of both parties. Governor Fine devoted a great deal of his opening speech to the Legislature and the state of the Commonwealth having to do with the revision of our Constitution, and this particular type of legislation.

I feel that the people this fall, if this bill passes and goes to the Senate and is made the law of this state, that the people will have before them not only the question of voting on whether they want to call a constitutional convention, but the names of the very people who will represent them in the convention will also be on the ballot. They will have a birds'-eye view of the entire situation and they will determine, first, whether they want to have a constitutional convention and second, whether they want the particular type of individual who will probably represent them in the convention to sit and pass on and draft a new constitution.

I hope everybody in this House will vote for this bill and send it over to the Senate. Let us put it on the ballot this fall and let the people vote on whether they want some of the outmoded clauses of our Constitution brought up to date and other things put into it which will make it easier for the Legislature and the people of Pennsylvania to grow and prosper.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 47, as follows:

An Act authorizing fiduciaries to receive compensation from trust principal before the end of their service and before the end of their trusts and providing for allowances of compensation to fiduciaries out of trust income or trust principal or both either during the continuance or at the end of their trusts

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Neither the fact that a fiduciary's service has not ended nor the fact that the trust has not ended shall be a bar to the fiduciary's receiving compensation for his services out of the principal of the trust

Section 2 Whenever it shall appear either during the continuance of a trust or at its end that a fiduciary has rendered services for which he has not been fully compensated the court having jurisdiction over his accounts shall allow him such original or additional compensation out of the trust income or the trust principal or both as may be necessary to compensate him for the services theretofore rendered by him

Section 3 The provisions of Sections 1 and 2 of this act shall apply to ordinary and extraordinary services alike

Section 4 Where the compensation of a fiduciary is expressly prescribed either by provisions of a will or deed of trust or other instrument under which he is acting or by provisions of an agreement between him and the creator of the trust nothing in this act shall change in any way the rights of any party in interest or of the fiduciary

Section 5 This act shall apply

(1) To all services heretofore rendered by any fiduciary
(2) To all services hereafter rendered by any fiduciary heretofore appointed

(3) To all services hereafter rendered by any fiduciary hereafter appointed in a trust heretofore created and

(4) To all services hereafter rendered by any fiduciary of a trust hereafter created

Section 6 If the Constitution of the United States or of this Commonwealth prevents the application of this act to services falling in one or more of the four categories listed in Section 5 hereof the act shall nevertheless apply to services falling in the other categories or category

Section 7 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SEYLER. I desire to interrogate the sponsor of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, this has been referred to by some Members as a layer's bill, it has certain ear marks of such a bill, and needing enlightenment I would ask the sponsor to enlighten me on certain points.

I would like to ask the sponsor first of all, Mr. Speaker, whether I am correct in my understanding in believing that the chief purpose of the bill is to permit a fiduciary to collect from the principal of the trust for services rendered before the termination of that trust.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SEYLER. As I understand the bill, Mr. Speaker, this bill includes not only perpetual trusts or long term trusts, but all trusts, is that correct?

Mr. TOMPKINS. You have embraced the general term of fiduciary, which includes trusts.

Mr. SEYLER. I would ask the gentleman whether he is familiar with the—I know he is, the last opinion of the Supreme Court in the Williamson case.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I am, that is the reason for this bill, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SEYLER. It is true then that in that opinion the Supreme Court held that the present practice of attempting to collect compensation for services from principal is at present illegal.

Mr. TOMPKINS. It has been so ruled, yes.

Mr. SEYLER. I take it, Mr. Speaker, to get some evidence or some information you will have some difficulty in doing it, but the information at my command would indicate that less than two percent of trust funds in the Commonwealth are in the hands of individual fiduciaries, and that the remainder are in the hands of what are known as fiduciary corporations. Would the gentleman say from his more extensive knowledge of the subject that this is a correct estimate?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I have no knowledge of any such breakdown as that. I couldn't answer that question.

Mr. SEYLER. Would the gentleman give us an opinion what percentage of the trust funds of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania are in the hands of individual fiduciaries as opposed to corporate fiduciaries?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I have no knowledge on that. When you speak of the fiduciary, you are speaking of an executor, an administrator, a guardian, a trustee and anybody that has charge of other people's funds. It does not involve only trust funds.

Mr. SEYLER. I should narrow the question Mr. Speaker. I refer to the percentage of trust funds.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I have made no study of that. I couldn't answer on that. Any answer I would give would be a wild guess.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for that answer. I wish to interrogate him further.

Am I correctly informed, Mr. Speaker, in believing that payments can be collected by fiduciaries having a trust from income as opposed to from the principal under the present law without this amendment?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is true.

Mr. SEYLER. Am I also correct, Mr. Speaker, in believing that it is true that if a testator so desires it is possible for him to specify in the trust—let us assume that it is likely to be a long trust—that he may specify in the trust that payment from principal may be made?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is possible, yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SEYLER. Is the gentleman able to give me any sort of an estimate from his more extensive knowledge of trust matters as to what percentage of trusts are in fact perpetual trusts or long term trusts? What percentage of total trust funds are held in such trusts?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I would not be able to answer that. You would have to survey every banking institution in the State of Pennsylvania and go into the Registrar's Court and the Orphans Court of every county in the state of Pennsylvania to get that answer.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I encountered the same difficulty, but I hoped my more learned friend would be able to supply me with that information.

Well, then, is the gentleman able to answer this question: Is it true that the trusts which are in the hands of individual fiduciaries are generally those of shorter duration?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No, I would not say that.

Mr. SEYLER. I would like to ask the gentleman this question: Is it not true that payments from principal of a trust would therefore reduce the principal and therefore reduce the income to the beneficiary?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Well that is true. There is no question about that.

Mr. SEYLER. I think one final question will do it. Is there any limit in this bill, Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman can inform us of on the amount or percentage that can be taken as payment from principal. Is there any limitation?

Mr. TOMPKINS. There is no specific limitation in this bill, Mr. Speaker, and I do not know whether the gentleman refers to the total compensation to which a fiduciary might be entitled or to the compensation as he goes along under the administration of his trust.

Mr. SEYLER. I am speaking, Mr. Speaker, of the amount of payment from principal that might be asked for, excluding extraordinary services, by a fiduciary handling the trust.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Well ordinarily under the law they are limited unless it is set forth otherwise in the instrument of trust by the creator of that trust authorizing a larger fee. Five percent is the standard which is allowed by the courts in the State of Pennsylvania. That is reduced in amount for the total services according to the size of the trust.

There is a second provision in this bill that states that the courts shall have jurisdiction to fix the amount of fees they shall receive as they progress in the administration of the trust. In other words, they allow them only that amount for which services have already been rendered.

Mr. SEYLER. I think the gentleman misunderstood me. I am asking whether in this amendment this bill provides there is any limitation on the amount from capital which may be paid for services rendered before the completion of the trust. I think the gentleman's answer referred to the five percent customarily paid at the completion of the trust.

I am asking is there any limitation in the amendment that this bill makes which would limit the amount of that total overall five percent which could be paid before the completion of the trust?

Mr. TOMPKINS. None other than the regulation of the court. They would have to petition the court for the approval of payments from that fund, and I think our courts would not allow them compensation in excess of the services they had rendered up to that point.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the answers of the gentleman; it has been very enlightening. As a result of his answers I no longer believe that this bill is a lawyer's bill and I am almost certain that it is not a beneficiaries' bill, or a testator's bill.

I am forced somewhat to the conclusion that it is a banker's bill. The gentleman was unable to confirm my scattering of information that I had on the subject, also unable to offer any evidence to the contrary, but as I stated before in the interrogation, on the best opinion that I can get, 98 percent of the trust funds covered by this proposed amendment are in the hands of banks and trust companies.

The gentleman has referred to the Williamson case, and has told you that the Williamson case decision delivered by our Supreme Court is the reason for this bill. For the information of the Members, that opinion was written on June 27, 1951. The opinion of court was written by Mr. Justice Allen M. Stern. The opinion was unanimous except that Judge Ladner abstained for the reason that he had a previous concern with the case in the Philadelphia Courts before becoming a member of the court. Justice Bell, another Justice wrote an opinion which however concurred with the opinion of the majority. Therefore we may refer to it as a unanimous opinion.

With reference to that decision, I have part of the opinion of Judge Stern to offer you to back up my contention that this is a banker's bill, and it is the large banks and trust companies particularly in the City of Philadelphia that are trying to have this bill passed.

In the beginning of his opinion Justice Stern commented as follows:

A corporate fiduciary presents a test case seeking to induce this court to overrule a long line of cases extending for over a century and a half, which established principles of fiduciary compensation. The appeals are an effort to induce a general revision of the compensation of trustees. It constitutes an almost perennial attempt by corporate fiduciaries to secure increased compensation and also interim commissions on principal.

Another part of the opinion Justice Stern quotes Justice Ladner, who handled the case as a Justice in the Courts of Philadelphia before it came to the Supreme Court. And he has this very revealing statement as follows:

The Philadelphia Corporate Fiduciaries Association, composed of practically all the trust companies in Philadelphia doing a fiduciary business has been pressing the Orphans Court for years to approve a new basis and increased scale of compensation by substituting for the present rates a new rate of an annual charge of one-half of one percent of the trust principal—one half to be paid out of principal and one half out of income.

Mr. Speaker, this bill arises then because the court in the Williamson case ruled that the payments from capital to fiduciaries were illegal before the completion of the trust.

I might read from the decision in the Williamson case a few statements to prove from the syllabus the position of the court regarding the legality of this matter:

First, except in extraordinary or unusual circumstances, a trustee is to be compensated from principal only at the termination of the trustee's connection therewith. Second, where extraordinary services are rendered, or unusual labor is entailed an immediate allowance to a trustee from principal is permissible.

That is what the court held. In other words this bill is an attempt to set aside that court decision and change the practice of the courts in regard to payment of fiduciaries which has been in vogue for over a hundred and fifty years.

From the information given me by the gentleman I have certain objections to this bill. In the first place I believe that whatever case may be made for this bill is lost because of the fact that it is too inclusive. I think perhaps there might be an argument on that because in the case of perpetual trusts, or trusts of undue length, this bill does not specify such trusts. It includes all trusts, and in applying to all trusts this bill seems to be unnecessary.

In the first place you will note that the decision the court states that compensation for extraordinary services or unusual labors, which perhaps may occur during the carrying out of a trust, are permitted by the opinion in this case. As a matter of fact in a later case, decided November 13, 1951, known as the Lare Estates case such extraordinary compensation for extraordinary services was permitted from principal.

Secondly, the point has been made that if the testator, and I may explain that is the person that sets up the trust, if he so desires in the case of a trust that is likely to be long and drawn out, he can provide for payments from the principal before the completion of the trust. These trusts are usually drawn up by lawyers who are aware of the situation. No fiduciary is under any obligation to accept the trust, if it is of such a nature that it would work a hardship on him by reason of its being long drawn out. Most fiduciaries, as I have already indicated are banks or trust companies; these are continuing institutions. These institutions are not ordinarily pressed for funds.

A bank acquaintance of mine, speaking to me on the matter had the following quotations to offer: "Banking is a waiting business; banks can wait."

Furthermore the fiduciary is not totally cut off from compensation, as the gentleman informed us during the interrogation. The fiduciary is first of all able to collect 5 percent or whatever is the customary figure; although it is not necessarily a set figure. That is up to the discretion of the court. The law says "fair and just compensation," the usual figure is 5 percent that he could collect from income as the trust progresses.

Secondly, I would mention, if there is any extraordinary service that he performs, that would exceed that amount, he is able to go to the court and get, at the discretion of the court, compensation from principal therefor.

Now it may be said that this bill is intended for the purpose indicated by the evidence I have cited. It is intended for the banks that represent 98 percent by my estimate, uncontradicted, of the total trust funds. It may be said this is to protect the individual, the poor individual, who cannot collect this money—lawyer or any other individual who takes the trust. I have first pointed out of course the comparative small number of individuals who are handling trust funds as compared to the corporate type of fiduciaries, banks and trust companies.

In the next place they too have access to extra-ordinary compensation if needed. They have payment from income as the trust progresses. And they too need not accept the trust. We assume that the fiduciary that accepts the trust is originally a rational person who is competent to survey the trust and to decide whether this is one that is likely to be a hardship.

To my knowledge the banks find it no hardship. In fact I read advertisements in which they urge that they be made fiduciaries. If the individual should not outlive a trust his estate of course is able to collect the amount due to date when he resigns the trust.

In addition to the fiduciary that this bill tends to protect or favor, there are two other people to be considered, there is the beneficiary and there is the testator. To my mind the law that is being amended here, the main purpose of our whole set of fiduciary law is for the protection of the beneficiary. The beneficiary is seldom a bank. He might be a minor, a small child, or might be a widow, but scarcely a bank. Now of course the fiduciary must wait for his income, his total amount from the trust until the completion of the trust.

I believe that the main purpose of the law is to protect the beneficiary. The purpose of this amendment is to benefit the position of the fiduciary. Now, notice the point that I made in the interrogation with the gentleman. He admitted that any withdrawing of money in payment from the principal or trust would reduce the amount of the principal, and therefore would reduce the amount of income which would eventually come to the beneficiary.

Justice Stern was not unaware of this. I would like to read you a quotation from the opinion of the Justice. He said as follows—he presented this from his actual experience with cases. I might say that Justice Stern is considered that member of the higher court best able and most capable for this type of case.

This is what he said:

It should only be if absolutely necessary and in justice and fairness, that compensation of fiduciaries in trust estates should be presently increased, especially since during the past quarter of a century, which included a tremendous financial depression and two major wars, the net return of income to trust beneficiaries has been progressively diminishing and the value of corpus is so frequently found to have greatly shrunk, and in many cases disappeared. In the extreme cases, in trusts of unusual duration, the entire principal could be greatly diminished or even consumed by the annual allowance of a trustee's commission upon principal.

There is no limit set in this bill to the percentage of capital that shall be allowed to be taken in payment before the completion of the trust. But what if this contingency should arise? What if a fiduciary should be able to withdraw 2 or 3 per cent of principal and then should resign the trust. It would be difficult to find a competent fiduciary to assume his place and observe the interest of the beneficiary.

Then we must consider the testator. His purpose in setting up the trust is to protect the beneficiary. He has no intention of having the principal reduced unless he specifies it in the terms of the trust, which he is capable of doing.

In addition to these arguments I think also that one part of the bill is definitely of doubtful constitutionality. I am aware that there is a saving clause at the end of the bill which says that if any one part of the bill is found unconstitutional the rest shall stand. But I would refer you to page 2 of the bill, section 5, which says this bill shall apply to all services heretofore rendered by any fiduciary.

In other words this would affect trusts made before the possible passage of this bill. This would seem to me clearly to impair considering the trust as a contract made by the testator. This would seem to me to clearly vary the terms of a contract, which of course is specifically forbidden by our Constitution and by the Constitution of the United States.

For these reasons it seems to me that this bill is a banker's bill. It seems to me to ignore the interests of the beneficiary for which the law is created and I therefore feel that it is not a good bill and should be defeated.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to comment very long on this bill, but there are a couple issues which the gentleman from York has raised that I think perhaps should be clarified at least by an answer.

To start with, we expect that a person might withdraw 2 or 3 percent of the principal and then quit. Of course when he says that he is pre-supposing the fact that the courts are going to connive with him to let him get away with any compensation for services which he has not rendered. I have a little more faith in the courts of our Commonwealth than that.

He speaks of the diminishing returns in connection with the beneficiaries' income. I wonder if perhaps he has looked behind the screen on some other factors of this bill, whether or not they have heard of such a thing as taxes. The beneficiaries income is being reduced by the tax measures, and also a postponement of payment of income out of principal is putting your fiduciary in a position where he has to take his pay all in one lump sum at the end of his entire services and is chargeable for that in the one year in which he receives the funds. This bill will let him spread his tax load over a little longer period.

Also I would remind the gentleman that this bill had received favorable support not only from Philadelphia but from all other corners of this state. It is not a banker's bill as such, nor a lawyer's bill or anything else. It is a bill to try and give to the people compensation for services which they have rendered, whether it be an individual, a corporation or otherwise.

It is true a man can create a trust and set up a compensation to be paid to the trustee, that a testator who makes a will can do likewise in his will, and that in the case of guardians, many guardianships are created the same way. But all of our decisions are eventually subject to the review of the courts, and the courts are not going to allow compensation which is in excess of that allowed by law. We have to recognize the fact that the tax structure today is such that these men are coming in after long periods of years and asking that they get their compensations run out over a little longer period of time, so that there will not be so much of it consumed in the year of final payment.

All those factors taken together are what has brought about this bill, not any desire on the part of anybody in Philadelphia or Erie or Pittsburgh or any place else or on the part of any bankers. It is purely a bill to do justice to give a man compensation for work when he has done that work.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, for a great many years I have listened to lawyers discuss lawyers' bills and I never did know what they were talking about. Today I have listened to a school teacher discuss a lawyer's bill, and I think I know what he was talking about. He has convinced me and I shall have to vote against the bill.

Mr. TOLL. Mr. Speaker, I never had an opportunity to take the floor in opposition to anything which was said in the last session by my learned and liberal friend, the educator from York. Still I feel that in this particular case I should state my reasons why I am going to vote for the bill. I hope that the lawyers and the gentlemen who have some knowledge of the law in this Assembly will consider the situation.

It is true that the Williamson case came out of the city of Philadelphia. As a matter of fact, the judge who had the case was the Honorable Charles Kline, the President of our Orphans Court.

In our system of jurisprudence, on the argument of the case before the court en banc. It is frequent that another judge writes an opinion. And that happened here. That is how the Honorable Justice Ladner was involved.

However, this case was reported in the Pennsylvania Law Journal about a half year ago. This article was written by the Honorable Charles Kline of Philadelphia County. He pointed out that there was a manifest injustice in the Williamson case by reason of the fact that fiduciaries were unable to get compensation, particularly individual fiduciaries during their lifetime.

My friend, the gentleman from York, in his extensive and rather learned remarks about this bill, cursorily passed a factor which he referred to as compensation paid to the beneficiaries of the estate of the deceased fiduciary. That is exactly the point Judge Kline makes in his opinion in the lower court in which he calls attention to the fact that fiduciaries are most always selected from gentlemen who have maturity in years as well as maturity in judgment. So that when a man becomes a fiduciary of his friend's estate, he usually is a man up in years, and as far as that man is concerned, it means as long as he lives, he is not likely to receive any compensation but that he must die to get it. His heirs will be the ones who will receive the compensation for the work he has done. I think that is a very important factor.

Although my friend makes an estimate that only 2 per cent of the fiduciaries in the Commonwealth are individuals—I am not prepared to say that that is correct and I am not prepared to say that it is incorrect, but in my own practice in Philadelphia I know of a great many cases where individuals have been selected as fiduciaries by their friends. And so, because of the fact that Judge Kline felt that this bill worked an injustice on individual fiduciaries, he did not seem to be concerned with the banks or with banking fiduciaries. As a matter of fact, banking fiduciaries have a perpetual life. The corporate enterprise continues as long as the fiduciaries stay in business and they have every opportunity to collect their commissions when the estate is closed.

However, I think, and I join Judge Kline in his opinion, that it is an injustice to an individual fiduciary to have his heirs collect a fee to which he should be entitled in his lifetime. For that reason I am going to vote for the bill.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, I am going to vote in favor of this bill because I think there is nothing wrong with it. It does not increase the compensation of the trustees. It merely enables them to get their compensation from other than income, and the amount of compensation that they will receive will be subject to the control of the courts at all times. I do not think there is anything wrong with this particular bill.

Mr. SCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, as a member of the bar, having practiced for over twenty years, and having handled quite a number of estates, I merely want to say that although I have at all times agreed with my good friend, Mr. Seyler, this time I must disagree with him. I feel there is nothing wrong with this bill, it is just and equitable. As the work progresses the trustee, whether it be a fiduciary or an individual, receive his compensation out of capital.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 111, as follows:

An Act to continue the imposition of the tax on gross premiums premium deposits and assessments received from business transacted within this Commonwealth by foreign insurance companies association and exchanges The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania enacts as follows

Section 1 Every insurance company association or exchange of another State or foreign government authorized to do business in this Commonwealth shall continue to pay to the Commonwealth an annual tax at the rate of two per centum upon the gross premiums premium deposits and assessment of every character and description received from business transacted within this Commonwealth within the entire calendar year preceding

The annual report to the Department of Revenue the collection of the tax by the department and the penalties for failure to make the reports and pay the taxes shall be as provided by law

Section 2 The entire amounts received from the two per centum tax paid upon gross premiums premium deposits and assessments by foreign fire insurance companies shall continue to be distributed and used for firemen's relief pension or retirement purposes as provided by Section two of the act approved the twenty-eighth day of June one thousand eight hundred ninety-five (P. L. 408) as amended and the entire amounts received from the two per centum tax paid upon gross premiums premium deposits and assessments by foreign casualty insurance companies shall continue to be distributed and used for police pension retirement or disability purposes as provided by the act approved the twelfth day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-three (P. L. 259), as amended

Section 3 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment and the tax imposed hereunder shall be collected on gross premiums premium deposits and assessments received during the calendar year one thousand nine hundred fifty-three and thereafter

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?
It was agreed to.
On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Ewing.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. EWING. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman if he has the figures as to the amount of money that is raised under this tax that goes into the Foreign Fire Insurance Fund.

Mr. EWING. I have, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, how much is the money?

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, Foreign Fire, actual year 1951-1952, turned over to the municipalities was $2,455,000 for the one-year period.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman please state the amount turned over to the Policemen's Fund during the same period of time?

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, for a two-year period Foreign Casualty Insurance, an amount of approximately two million dollars.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman have the figures on how much goes into the general fund from all foreign insurance tax that is paid to the state of Pennsylvania?

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, approximately twenty million is put into the general fund from foreign life insurance.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, we find ourselves in the position in order to protect the Policemen's and the Firemen's Insurance Funds that we must also vote for additional revenue that goes into the general fund. Now my party platform stated they would protect the Policemen's and the Firemen's Insurance Funds. We find now they have attached to this bill additional revenue that goes into the general fund, which of course, we must vote for.

Last week I was accused of holding up this legislation by the people who represent the fire companies throughout the state. I find no fault with persons coming here to represent their people. Sometimes they are very quick to condemn legislators who try to hold up legislation in order to find out just exactly what the legislation does.

During the last session of the Legislature these same firemen and policemen found that legislation went through this House that interfered with their return from foreign fire and foreign casualty insurance. If we had taken a little time we might have discovered that, and we would not have this legislation before us today.

Therefore, I just want to make this statement and call to the attention of the Members of the House that it pays sometimes not to work too fast. "Go slow and be fair" is my motto, and I think we will all do better if we do that. I am going to support this bill.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. ANDREWS asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, sometime when I deem it fitting in the course of this session I propose to raise the question as to whether or not a Member of this House can, under the Constitution, vote "present"; to raise the question as to whether this House under the Constitution has any right other than to compel the presence of a quorum and whether the House has any inherent or constitutional right to compel a "yes" or "no" vote. I shall contend that a vote "present" is a vote with negative implications, that it is a vote, and that the House is without constitutional authority to compel a "yes" or "no" vote.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, on February 17, I discussed on the floor of this Senate the report submitted by the Pennsylvania Water Resources Committee, a committee appointed by Governor Fine to investigate the INCODEL Plan which was submitted for approval. At that time, Mr. President and Members of the Senate, I said I wondered whether there was collusion involved in the preparation and the submission of the Governor's Committee Report. Inasmuch as there seems to be a great deal of secrecy surrounding the activities of the Governor's Committee, of course, it aroused my suspicion. As a result, I delved into the question a little deeper.

Mr. President, on February 17, I said that the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company attempted to sell its land and water rights to the city of Philadelphia as a water supply and that after careful investigation by engineers appointed by the city of Philadelphia, the plan was rejected as unsound and impractical. However, the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company did not quit there, and, in my opinion, it has not quit yet. It still wants to dispose of some 50,000 acres of swampland, as well as whatever water rights it might have in the Lehigh River area. To bring about the sale of this land and water rights, it appears to me that the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company found a friend in Governor Fine, with whom it apparently collaborated.

Mr. President, I am going to trace a series of events here that will justify my suspicion of collusion or, perhaps, even worse. Governor Fine, as I said before, in collaboration with the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, attempted to insert in the Republican Platform of 1950 a water supply for the city of Philadelphia from the Pocono area.

Mr. President, I read to you from the Philadelphia Inquirer of September 6, 1950. It says, and I quote:

"State G. O. P. Backs Water Authority to Supply Philadelphia.

"Creation of a State Water Authority to bring Philadelphia's drinking supply from a Pocono watershed will be proposed in the Republican State Platform to be adopted by the Party's State Committee at a meeting in Pittsburgh next Saturday.

"The decision to recommend the creation of the Water Authority was reached last Friday at a meeting of Philadelphia Republican leaders and Judge John S. Fine, the Party's nominee for Governor."

That item, Mr. President, appeared in the newspapers. There was an outcry against the proposed insertion in the Republican Platform by the opponent of the then candidate for Governor, and the objection was raised by Richardson Dilworth. As a result, that plank did not appear in the platform.

Then, Mr. President, we had an election. That happened on September 6, and we had an election in November. Between September 6 and the election, the INCODEL Plan, unless I am mistaken, was approved by the States of New Jersey, New York and Delaware. Governor Fine was successful in his election in November, and he took office on January 16, 1951.

Mr. President, I understand the INCODEL Plan was submitted to Governor Duff. However, since he left office on January 16, 1951, it was impossible for him to act or make recommendations concerning the plan. I also understand that the plan was subsequently submitted to the new Governor, Governor Fine, a short time after he took office on January 16, 1951, but Governor Fine sat on the INCODEL Plan for six months, until June 8, when he made an announcement which I will read here. The question remains, though, what happened; what was going on between the time the INCODEL Plan was submitted to Governor Fine until the time when he made up his mind that he was going to reject it? I have a right to say that the schemers were scheming, and the connivers were conniving and the plotters were plotting. They had to get the right kind of a committee, they had to get the right kind of engineers and they had to get the right kind of lawyers to put this thing over.

Mr. President, on January 8, 1951—I am reading from the Philadelphia Daily News—the Governor said, and I quote:

"I am unwilling to recommend the plan to our Legislature. It is important that we get the facts. These can be ascertained only after careful and thorough investigation."

Then, the Governor said that he was going to appoint a nonpartisan committee. He also said, and I quote:

"I shall see that the committee receives, through the Department of Forests and Waters, the assistance of disinterested engineers selected in consultation with the committee." He also said, "I am authorizing the committee to select its own general counsel, and I am requesting the Attorney General to supply any additional legal assistance to the committee which it may require."

Mr. President, who were the engineers that were appointed, the disinterested engineers? The Gannett group of engineers were employed. Were they disinterested? They had been working on State projects prior to this incident and, as I understand from the records, they will have received in the five and one-half year period from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, General State Authority, a total of $631,989.71. Would you say they were disinterested engineers?

In addition to that, Mr. President, this same firm of engineers represented and were in the employ of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company when it attempted to sell its land and its water rights to the city of Philadelphia back in 1946.

Were the lawyers disinterested, Mr. President? Were they neutral? The committee, as its general counsel, appointed William A. Schnader. William A. Schnader, of course, was not disinterested because he, too, represented the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company when it attempted to sell its land and its water rights to the city of Philadelphia. Then it had to have another attorney as an assistant to Mr. Schnader, and they appointed one of his associates in the water controversy before the United States Supreme Court. They appointed Attorney Chandler and he is on the payroll at $7500 a year. Why they would need two attorneys for an engineering project, I do not know, but I hope that at the public hearing which we will have on this subject we shall find out.

And how about the committee, Mr. President? Was it a disinterested committee or did it form an opinion before the committee was appointed? I read from the Philadelphia Bulletin, of January 8, 1951, wherein it said:

"Albert M. Greenfield, whom Fine yesterday appointed chairman of the investigatory committee, several weeks ago, at a conference with the Governor on the INCODEL Plan, urged extreme caution before entering into the compact."

Was he disinterested? He had formed an opinion even before his appointment.

Then, Mr. President, the committee had to have money, because it could not function without money. So, on June 29 the Governor made an announcement, and I am reading from the Philadelphia Inquirer, of June 29, 1951, that he would seek $150,000 to finance the activities of his commission, in spite of the fact that the whole INCODEL survey and study cost less than $200,000. Now, this is significant, and this is what I want to read now in so far as the Governor is concerned. He addressed the committee after it was organized and he said, "When your report is finally submitted, I know that I will be able to recommend it to the Legislature with confidence," and that, of course, he did. There was an appropriation bill introduced in the House on July 10, 1951, and it called for $250,000 and gave the committee jurisdiction to make the survey of the Delaware River Basin and the INCODEL Plan.

On August 6, 1951, the appropriation bill passed the House, was reported to the Senate on August 7, 1951 and there it remained. Mr. President and Members of the Senate, until December 10, 1951, when it was amended in committee. Between August 7, when the Senate Committee on Appropriations got the bill, and December 10, 1951, the schemers and the connivers and the plotters were at work again. They had to have more money, more money for the big steal, so they upped the appropriation $100,000 and made it $350,000, and expanded the jurisdiction of the committee.

Mr. President, I went into the Appropriations Committee yesterday, and I asked Mr. Stoner to get me the name of the person who proposed the amendment in the Senate Committee on Appropriations. Of course, he was not able to find it for me, but he thought that it came from the Governor's office. I told him to keep right on searching because I would like to know.

Mr. President, on February 1, the engineers were hired and after thirteen months, the engineers, the disinterested engineers, submitted their report. I said here on February 17 that I wondered whether the report was made known to anybody on the outside because of the effect which it had on the stock market.

Mr. President, I want to now show you how the stock market acted, so far as the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company's stock is concerned. On January 17, 1952, there were 4200 shares sold; on the 21st, 2100 shares; on the 22nd, 1700 shares. Then, just about ten days before the report was submitted, it jumped to 24,800 shares and then it began to recede. On the 24th it dropped to 14,200; on the 27th to 8200; and on the 28th to 3700. Use your own judgment as to whether or not the report got out to somebody with the idea, of course, that it was going to be approved by the Legislature, and, as a result, those who bought those shares or who traded in the market on that day, January 23, 1952, when the 24,800 shares were sold, would reap the harvest. Then, it was not long after the Governor got his report until he kept his promise.

Mr. President, I said, or quoted, from the Philadelphia Inquirer, of June 29, that the Governor said, "When your report is finally submitted, I know that I will be able to recommend it to the Legislature with confidence." He kept his word, and made a statement to the effect that it would have his support. I have no hesitancy in saying, Mr. President, that if it would not have been attacked on the floor of the Senate, the legislation recommended in this report would have been submitted and we would have been called upon to go along with the big steal.

Mr. President, since January 17 the Governor has suffered a change of heart. He reversed himself, and now he said that he would call a meeting of the engineers of both sides, that the door has not been shut and that he would be willing to compromise. Mr. President, I say that this matter is out of the Governor's hands. This matter is now for the Legislature. This stinks to high heaven as far as I am concerned, and I am sure as far as most of you are concerned. It is the general talk among the people who know the story, it has been commented upon editorially, it has been publicized in the press and the radio.

This is a serious matter, Mr. President, and I agree with Senator Mahany in the statement which he made last week when he said, in speaking about interference with the Legislature, "We are answerable to the people who elect us and it is up to us, acting independently of the Administrative Branch, to decide whether legislation is needed for the benefit of the people whom we represent." That same rule applies to the Executive Branch of the government.

Mr. President, we are here to legislate; we are here to look into deals that are shady. We are in here to correct those things that might be termed evil and, in my opinion, this is an evil scheme to defraud the people of this Commonwealth of millions of dollars for a lemon, and a rotten lemon at that—fifty thousand acres of swamp water, fifty thousand acres of swamp water that is known as "brown water," which the experts say could not be corrected through present methods of filtration. This is simply swamp waters, brown, swamp, filthy water that could only be corrected by special chemicals, expensive special chemicals.

Mr. President, I introduced a resolution here on February 17, and I certainly hope that the gentleman who is the Chairman of the Committee on State Government will call a meeting soon and report that resolution from committee so that we can go into this matter at a public hearing; so that we can go into the activities of this committee, into the expenditures of this committee and make proper determinations. If it is found that the committee is right, the people should know it. If it is found that there is collusion, if there is conspiracy, if there is fraud, then the people should know that, too. The way to make that determination, I repeat, is at a legislative inquiry by this Senate.

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, I am very much interested in what Senator Yosko had to say because it concerns me on both sides. In the first place, under the INCODEL Plan, a greater part of Pike County, which I represent, will be flooded out. Under the Pennsylvania Water Resources Committee Plan, the greater part of Monroe County and the Pocono Mountain resort section will be flooded out. On the other hand, I represent Carbon County where the Lehigh Navigation Coal Company has its headquarters. While they are there, they have never done anything for me at any time. On the other hand, perhaps, I have never done anything for them, so I can be very impartial in my attitude.

Mr. President, I think these plans should be checked and because I am in the middle, I would like to do something to get at this matter. Next week, if the Republican Caucus approves, we have come to the point now that they have to approve the Republican resolutions, too, just like they approve Democratic resolutions—I intend to introduce a resolution empowering the Commission on Interstate Cooperation, which has outside contacts with these other States, to have an investigation and public hearings on the INCODEL Plan, the Pennsylvania Water Resources Committee Plan, this plan which has been recently advanced to funnel water from Lake Erie down through the Susquehanna River and thence to the Delaware, as another plan, and any other plans that are advanced for the good of the order and for the good of the people of Pennsylvania. I feel that the Commission on Interstate Cooperation is the organization that should conduct this hearing, because they have their contacts with the other States. If we get the leading water engineers from New York, New Jersey and Delaware, who are in the pact on INCODEL, we can hear what they have to say.

On the other hand, Mr. President, for years we have conducted our Commission of INCODEL, and if it is a futile gesture and our combination with these other States is useless, then, perhaps, INCODEL should be abolished. I think that some committee, possibly not the one I suggested, should come forward and do this job so the people of Pennsylvania can know what must be done.

On the other hand, Mr. President, if this is a proposition to furnish free water for Philadelphia, I am against it because up where I come from, the municipalities up there furnish their own water, and they pay for their own waterworks and they do not ask the State to pay a nickel. I do not know why we should have to come forward and advance State money to pay for water for Philadelphia, Erie or any other city in Pennsylvania.

STUDENTS FROM CUMRU TOWNSHIP, BERKS COUNTY, PRESENTED TO SENATE

Mr. RUTH. Mr. President, I would like to advise the Chair, and the Members of the Senate, of the presence of a group of eighty-four students from Cumru Township, Berks County, who are accompanied by their teachers, Mr. Bossler and Mrs. Rhoads.

The PRESIDENT. Will the guests of Senator Ruth please rise in place and take a bow?

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. MAHANY. Mr. President, a statement was just made by Senator Crowe which I want to correct. The Senator has the wrong impression of the Caucus action yesterday relative to resolutions. The action of the Caucus was that we would not go along with immediate adoption of resolutions unless some notice had been given, by the Member to the Caucus, relative to the content of those resolutions.

The reason for that, Mr. President, I think is wise. We should not take quick action on any resolution which is presented to us here. As you know, the resolution is hurriedly read by the Clerk, and it is not in printed form before us and there would not be very many Members who would have much knowledge of the content of the resolution. When there is a resolution that requires some study, we should not take immediate action on it. Some resolution to congratulate a home town football team on a successful season, or someone on their birthday or something like that we can take immediate action on that type of resolution. However, anything which requires some study should be referred to committee. Then the committee should study it, as they do any bill or other legislation that is introduced here, and report it to the floor. Then, we can take action on it.

Mr. President, that is the reason for the Caucus action. We did not intend to have to approve resolutions before any one of the Members here introduced them. They are at liberty, of course, to introduce any resolution, but unless we take some action on it in Caucus, and know what it is all about, then I am going to object not to the resolution but to the immediate consideration of it.

Now, Mr. President, it seems to me that we are spending a great deal of time on matters which are not before us. I do not know of any report that is before us, either on INCODEL or the other one here. At least, if it was, it was presented at some past Session. Certainly, before we spend any of the State's money on any such plan, we should have a legislative committee of some kind to go into all the details concerning the findings of any commission, and go to the heart of the whole matter and decide whether or not the State should spend its money on carrying out the recommendations of any committee concerning, especially, supplying water to Philadelphia and that area.

Mr. President, when we quote from newspapers sometimes we do not arrive at the right conclusion. Senator Yosko quoted a lot from the Philadelphia Inquirer and other papers. I suppose he could quote from the Philadelphia Inquirer and find that about a week ago they said in that paper that I was against closed hearings on the so-called Chesterman Committee Report. At no time was I against that. I think they quoted me as saying that I was against open hearings. At no time was I against having open hearings. At no time was I for closed hearings, or having no hearings at all.

Senator Yosko knows, Mr. President, that many times in the public press he will read with surprise something that he is alleged to have said. I know, especially since I have become Majority Floor Leader, I have picked up many newspapers and looked in them and wondered when in the world I ever said such a thing as I was alleged to have said. So, the newspapers definitely are not evidence in court, and I do not think they should be evidence here, as to what somebody is alleged to have said.

Mr. President, I noticed that among the rascals that Senator Yosko picked out, they were not all Republican rascals. I noticed the name of Mr. Greenfield among that group, and I understand he is quite a leading Democrat. At least, this is a bipartisan list of rascals which Senator Yosko has chosen to give to us.

Mr. President, Senator Yosko also goes into the stock market to try to find out that those rascals, and some others, profited by the upturn of the market on Lehigh Coal and Navigation stock. Well, I think he might find the opposite is true because, as I remember it, some of those 24,800 shares of stock that were sold on that big day were the shares of stock of the Navigation Coal Company which were owned by Senator Yosko. As I understand it, since that time the stock has dropped. It might be that the fellows like Senator Yosko, who sold their stock on the upturn, are a lot further ahead than those people who went in and bought and now they find that their stock has gone down. So, it seems that some of the other people, the innocent people, profited by the upturn and these other people, if Senator Yosko's statement is correct, are now holding stock that is not worth as much as what they bought it at.

Mr. President, I think we are going to get a lot further in this Session of the Legislature if we try to just discuss those things that are before us, and not spend a whole lot of time talking about things which are not immediately before us. If we do that, I am sure we are going to certainly shorten the amount of words in the Legislative Journal, and also be able to take care of our work in a lot better shape than we would otherwise.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (John M. Walker) in the Chair.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I do not want Senator Mahany or any Member of this Chamber to think that I have injected politics into this. I talked about Mr. Greenfield just as much as I talked about Mr. Schnader. I pointed out, when I spoke here, that Mr. Greenfield had sort of made up his mind about the project even before he was appointed. I have no brief for Mr. Greenfield, Democrat or Republican. He may have fitted into the scheme of things, I do not know. That is why I want a public hearing; that is why I want to find out. I am not here defending Mr. Greenfield or anybody else. I want the facts, and I want the truth.

The only time I mentioned Republican or Democrat in this thing, Mr. President, is when I read from the newspaper of a meeting in Philadelphia where Governor Fine and the Republican leaders had met on the Republican Platform. I am not saying that this is a Republican Party matter, or a Democratic Party matter. It is something that involves a group of people, and we have a right to know whether that group of people is involved in collusion, conspiracy or fraud. The way to make that determination is at a public hearing.

Mr. President, Senator Mahany is correct about my being a stockholder of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company. However, in spite of the fact that I was a stockholder in the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, I still brought this matter before the Senate. I made no bones about the fact that I was a stockholder. I think I told that to Senator Mahany, and I told it to other people. That does not excuse a committee from trying to sell a lemon, and a rotten lemon at that, as I said before, to the people of this Commonwealth.

Mr. President, Senator Mahany talks about spending unnecessary funds for investigations. This committee spent $350,000. We have a right to go into how they spent it, what they spent it for and we have a right to know their activities from beginning to end. This is not going to cost anywhere near $350,000.

Mr. President, I went to Philadelphia last Wednesday and I stopped in at the office of the Secretary of the Committee. I asked him to permit me to take a look at the engineering report, at the report prepared by the employees of the United States Department of the Interior, of the Fish and Wildlife Bureau. This group was paid $10,000 to prepare that report. He would not permit me to see the report. I asked him to permit me to examine the minutes of the committee, and he said he would have to have special permission from either Mr. Greenfield or Mr. Schnader. I told him that this committee was financed by public funds and since it was financed with public funds, its records should be open to the public and not be held in secrecy.

The next day, Mr. President, he had Mr. Chandler call me and he told me the same thing, and I told him exactly what I had told Mr. Jenks. I was again informed that the people from whom you have to get special permission are either Mr. Greenfield or Mr. Schnader, and I find out that one of the gentlemen is in South America. The other gentleman is in Florida, and they tell me, or at least it is reported, that the President of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company is over in Europe.

Mr. President, Mr. Jenks also told me while I was in his office that the engineering report was up in the Bureau of Publications being printed. When I got here yesterday, I called the Bureau of Publications and they could find nothing. I then called the Secretary of Property and Supplies. He knew nothing about it but said he would trace it, and he finally tells me that the engineering report is up in the Budget Office.

Mr. President, do I understand that the $350,000 has been spent and that now they are up in the Budget Office trying to obtain additional funds to print this report? If this is true, then the whole transaction went through the Department of Property and Supplies. However, I understand, too, that the printing contract has already been awarded. It has been awarded to the "Eleventh Hour Printing Company," in Philadelphia. I asked a few of the Philadelphia people around here if they had ever heard of the "Eleventh Hour Printing Company," and the answer was "no".

It seems to me, Mr. President, that although the resolution was adopted to submit the engineering reports to this Senate, from the way it is moving, it will probably be months before we get them.

INTERROGATION

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Crawford, Senator Mahany.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Crawford, Mr. Mahany, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MAHANY. With pleasure, Mr. President.

Mr. HOLLAND. Senator Mahany, I have a number of requests from manufacturers in Pittsburgh for copies of the Chesterman Report, and I understand there are none to be had. Do you know if they are going to be printed and made available to the manufacturers who are very vitally interested in them?

Mr. MAHANY. Mr. President, I understand that in a couple of weeks from now there will be printed copies of that report. At the present time, they have a very limited number and I cannot even obtain any extra ones. So, if the gentleman will bear with us for a couple of weeks there will be printed copies of this report available for his fellow citizens.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Crawford, Senator Mahany.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Crawford, Mr. Mahany, permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. MAHANY. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HOLLAND. These corporations have written me, Senator Mahany, and stated that they could not appear at any hearings, or take part in any hearings, unless they had a copy of the report in order to have the proper authorities of their companies study them. If we are going to start hearings on the Chesterman Report without copies, we are going to start them like a lot of other things are started here, backwards.

Do you not think that these reports should be available before hearings are held on the Chesterman Report?

Mr. MAHANY. Well, Mr. President, we plan on starting hearings next week which will not involve the problem of having copies in the hands of other people.

Next week, for instance, Mr. President, on Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock p. m., we are planning to have a hearing on the recommendation of the Survey Committee relative to placing the State Police, and the Parole Board and one other one under the Department of Justice. Now, that would not require having printed copies of this report before Senator Holland's manufacturing group. Then, I think, on Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock p. m., we are planning to hold a hearing on the recommendation of the Survey Report that the Department of Commerce be abolished and their powers transferred to other departments. These hearings are tentatively scheduled now, and will no doubt be confirmed by the committee as a whole when we meet. I believe that the chairman of the Democratic group will go along with those two hearings, although I have not had a chance to talk with him as yet about it.

Mr. President, during the succeeding week we are going to try to have a hearing on the recommendation of the Survey Report relative to the abolishment of the Milk Control Board. So, we will not get into these other hearings, with which Mr. Holland may be concerned, until at least two weeks from now, and then these printed reports will be available at that time.

We want to do this, Mr. President, and not hold up for another two weeks going into these hearings, or we will be forever getting them through. I do not believe that this Session of the Legislature is going to progress very far until after we complete these hearings. For that reason, I am trying my best to speed up this machinery of the hearings on the Survey Report.

Mr. HOLLAND. Thank you, Senator Mahany.

Mr. President, I do think, though, that we should speed up the printing because these reports on the Department of Commerce and the Milk Control Commission, I am vitally interested in. Other people should also have an opportunity to study the Report of the Chesterman Committee on both of these departments. It is going to be very hard for us to bring in help to show that these departments should be abolished if the people do not have an opportunity to study the Chesterman Report on both the Department of Commerce and the Milk Control Commission.

Mr. MAHANY. Mr. President, if I have anything to do with it, and I think I will, there will not be any committee hearings on this report unless there is a week's notice given on each one, and unless the people have some chance of being prepared.

I think, Mr. President, that the recommendations of this committee are very brief as concerns those three topics, and I believe we can go into those without delaying the thing any further.

If Senator Holland feels that they need these printed copies of this report, Mr. President, in order to go into the Milk Control hearing, then I am willing to let that go for an extra week, if he thinks that should be done. If he will examine the Report of the Committee on those particular subjects, I do not think he will find them very long or very involved, and I hope he can see his way clear to go along with those three subjects, so that we can at least get a start on this matter next week.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I will promise the Majority Leader that I will not do anything to stop or hinder the public hearings being held, because I think that we have had so many excuses here for not doing things that it is time for us to really get busy. We have wasted two months, to a certain extent, and I think it is time that we get down to doing business.

Mr. President, I also do not agree with some of my colleagues, that we should not have a suspension or a recess during these hearings. I do not think this Legislature is going to accomplish very much until they have completed the hearings on the Chesterman Report, because many of the things we will do here are going to hinge on what we do about the Chesterman Report.

Therefore, Mr. President, I feel that we would save a lot of time if we would just shut down and devote ourselves to long days, six or seven days a week if necessary. I have been appointed to the committee and I am willing to serve seven days a week, and also waive my overtime pay, to get something accomplished. The quicker we get through with the Chesterman Report, the quicker we can get down to business here. I think running out of a committee meeting and coming back here to the Senate, to worry about legislation which is pending, is not a good way to handle the matter. The thirty members on the Joint Committee should have the opportunity of devoting their entire time to concentrate on the Chesterman Report during the time these hearings are being held.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, at the request of a number of the Members of the Senate, I would like to read into the record the occasion for the introduction of both Senate Bill No. 113, now on Final Passage, and Senate Bill No. 114, which is on the last page of the Calendar today. I thought it might save time if I discussed the two bills at the same time.

Mr. President, I am going to read a letter from the Honorable Leon Wald, Chief Counsel of the Allegheny County Sanitary Authority. He addresses me in the Senate Chamber, saying:

"The purpose of these bills is to amend certain acts by extending to a possible City of Pittsburgh Authority the rights and privileges which the Allegheny County Sanitary Authority possesses in aid of its project to provide sewage treatment service to Pittsburgh and some sixty-odd surrounding municipalities. As you know, the city of Pittsburgh has reserved the right to designate this Authority or some other agency—possibly another authority to be created by the city—to build and operate the Sewage Disposal System we are now designing.

"Senate Bill 113 amends the act which authorizes the assignment of delinquent sewage service accounts to the municipality in which the delinquency occurs, and which authorizes the municipality to purchase the account and to include the same, together with delinquent tax claims, in a single lien. Under the numerous long-term agreements between the Sanitary Authority and each of the municipalities to be served, sewage service charges will be billed to each home owner. The agreement provides, however, that if the bill is not paid promptly the municipality will pay it, to the end that the Sanitary Authority revenue bonds will in any event be paid off on schedule. The particular delinquent accounts paid by the municipality will be assigned to it by the Sanitary Authority.

"Senate Bill 114, which is presently on Second Reading, further amends the so-called Sewer Rental Act of 1935. The Act provides additional legal authorization for sewage service agreements, such as the ones already entered into by the Sanitary Authority and the numerous municipalities to be served."

Mr. President, Mr. Wald goes further to tell about Senate Bill No. 115, but I will talk about that when it appears on the Calendar.

Now, Mr. President, is that clear to the gentlemen of the Republican Caucus? Several of them have asked if I would explain this to them. If they have any questions in mind, I will attempt to answer them.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. BRETH.

RESOLUTION No. 24.

In the House of Representatives, March 3, 1953.

Whereas, it has been recommended by the "Chesterman Committee" that the game, fish and forestry divisions of the state be combined under one department

And Whereas, Both the Pennsylvania Game Commission and the Pennsylvania Fish Commission operate with separate and distinct funds in which the money comes principally from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses and not from general state tax funds

And Whereas, In the interest of the approximately 850,000 hunters and 650,000 fishermen who provide game and fish funds by purchasing hunting and fishing licenses . . . it is just and fitting that before any legislation is considered by the House of Representatives to combine the game and fish commissions with the forestry department, or to combine the game and fish commissions into one department themselves . . . that the members of the House of Representatives shall be fully informed by a comprehensive study how game and fish funds are distributed and how they have been distributed in the past

And Whereas, It is also important and necessary that the House of Representatives be fully informed concerning the cost of the specific functions and divisions of the game and fish commissions in relation to their value in providing game for the fields and forests and fish for the rivers and streams and lakes and ponds, therefore be it

Resolved, That the Speaker of the House of Representatives appoint a Special Game and Fish Fund Inquiry Committee of nine members of which five shall be from the majority party and four from the minority party to conduct a complete and comprehensive inquiry into the affairs of the game commission, particularly to report on the expenditure of the sum of $25,000,000 during the past 10 years, with a further and specific report on the $8,000,000 spent by the game commission in the last biennium 1951-52, including the sums of approximately $3,000,000 for game food and cover, $2,000,000 for the operation of game farms, $1,500,000 for law enforcement, $500,000 for conservation education and with a separate itemized report listing the items included in the more than $500,000 listed under "miscellaneous" in the 1951-52 biennium.

Be It Further Resolved, That this committee report on the expenditures of fish funds in the past 10 years, with a specific report on the amount of money used for fish hatchery operations, from the approximately $3,000,000 spent in the last biennium 1951-52, and an itemized report on the cost of administration including law enforcement during the last biennium compared to the biennium 10 years ago.

Be It Further Resolved, That this Special Game and Fish Fund Inquiry Committee be prepared to make a preliminary report of its progress to the members of the House of Representatives within 30 days after the adoption of this resolution and a complete and final report with recommendations for economies and suggestions for legislation within 60 days.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. WORLEY. (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 25.

In the House of Representatives, March 2, 1953.

Whereas, The Pennsylvania Election Code approved June 3, 1937 (P. L. 1333), contains numerous changes made to it and requires additional changes and revisions to cover the complex problems caused by a rapidly expanding electorate and should be carefully studied and revised in order to make it more effective for its intended purposes; therefore, be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the Joint State Government Commission is hereby directed to survey, investigate and consider all of the election system and laws of the Commonwealth and to completely revise and restate such election laws into codified form and to report its findings, conclusions and recommendations to the next regular session of the General Assembly, with a bill embodying a codification of the election laws of the Commonwealth to be introduced at the next regular session of the General Assembly.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Messrs. READINGER and LOVETT.

RESOLUTION No. 26.

Resolved, That as much of Rule 18 as limits the number of sponsors of a bill to two Members, shall be suspended during the balance of the 1953 legislative session.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

SENATE MESSAGE

TIME OF NEXT MEETING

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, March 2, 1953.

Resolved, (if the House of Representatives concur), That when the Senate adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday, March 9, 1953 at four o'clock p. m., E. S. T., and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday, March 9, 1953, at four-thirty o'clock p. m., E. S. T.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

On the question,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

Mr. SCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, two weeks ago I had intended making the statement I am now about to make.

We have now been in session for seven weeks I do not think I am divulging any secret when I say there is quite a lot of undercurrent among the Members of this House as to the way in which this Legislative session is progressing. Men do not hesitate outside the Halls of this House to express the disgust they feel in the fact that no progress has been made whatsoever since this House organized back in January.

Each and everyone of us undertook, when we presented ourselves for election, to inconvenience ourselves and spend time here in Harrisburg upon legislative duties when necessary. But so far the time we have put in and the money we have spent out of our pockets do not warrant the continuation of a program that seems to be going nowhere. I think at this time a halt should be called in the way in which this House is deliberating.

Whether or not it is a fact that we are being held up because of failure of the Tax Commission to present its report, or the fact that we have just received the Chesterman Report and now are going into a study of that report; whether or not that is what is holding us up, I cannot say. But I do feel that the leadership of this House does know; and if that is the reason, there is no reason why this House should not recess until such time as we are recalled by the Speaker of this House and the President pro tempore of the Senate.

We have important things to do at home. We are willing to spend time here in Harrisburg to do our job; but to come here week in and week out, spend an hour on Monday and an hour on Tuesday doing nothing and then going back home and having to catch up in our work there—I think it is about time we call a halt.

So, at this time—even though I am one who voted for this resolution this week—I feel we are entitled to some expression from the leadership of the House as to how long this dilly-dallying is going to go on.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, at this session we received the Governor's budget probably the earliest during the four sessions that I have been a Member of this House of Representatives. I know a number of people have said to me, "Well, what is the program; where are we going; what do you have slated; what is on the agenda?" I want to say to the Members of the House that actually the program of the session is between the two covers of the Governor's budget.

If you will examine carefully the Governor's budget, you will find that it is a document that provides for education alone the sum of over $500 million. It is a program of public assistance and welfare that brings hope to the needy, to the sick, to the mentally ill, to the crippled, and those who need services from the Commonwealth that the people back home cannot provide for them.

You will find that we are going to provide funds to our great educational institutions in Pennsylvania; the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania State College and Temple, and we are not forgetting that grand old university, Lincoln University. It provides money for the Soldiers' and Orphans' School at Scotland, Pennsylvania. It provides money for state-aided hospitals.

It takes time to examine this budget. Norman Wood and Senator Chapman, the chairmen of the two committees in the House and Senate on appropriations, are conducting their hearings now on the budget.

We have set up combined committees of the House and Senate to have hearings on the Chesterman Report.

The tax study group are meeting again this week to give us a report on the taxes, possibly a tax program of the Commonwealth.

In the meantime it is true that we are in a sense marking time; but eventually, and we hope it will not be too long, all these studies will be completed. They will be wrapped into one package, we will get them on the floor and then pack up and go home.

As to the proposition of a proposed recess while these various studies are progressing, I feel there is plenty of work that can be done by our being in session. We can have committee meetings. The Members are here to attend, those who care to, the budget hearings which are conducted in the House Appropriations and Senate rooms.

The studies on the Government Survey Report, we hope, will start next week. Some of them will be held on Tuesday, and those who want to stay in town can hear them. Of course they will proceed on Wednesday and Thursday and perhaps Friday, and there will be perhaps even evening sessions. So there is work to be done.

I realize that we have been proceeding slowly but, as I say, the program is here; we have it in front of us. Soon we will have it on our desks; we can pass it and go home and have a quick and orderly session.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I had not expected to intervene in this situation. I have listened with great interest while the Majority Leader sang his song in praise of the sweet bye and bye.

I had imagined that the business of this session would concern itself with some matters other than the appropriation bills which may be brought to the attention of the House for the purpose of financing the routine operations of our state government.

I see by the history that some four hundred bills are pending in committee. They cannot all be bad. Some of them must be good. I do not imagine that the bills submitted by the minority are one hundred percent chaff. Up to the present time we have seen measures that have had a particular push back of them manage to emerge from committee and brought to the attention of the House.

I would not have taken the floor, I say, if the gentleman from Allegheny had not opened the subject. I shall if the conditions continue, bring before the caucus of the minority, if our calendars continue in the present form, lean and hungry and without great moment, the question of asking for a leave of absence for the entire minority delegation. If you want to dally, dally by yourselves. If you have a majority, a constitutional majority, you can go ahead and pass all the legislation you like. But I cannot insist, week after week, that the members of this minority come here to no purpose at all. And we will be well within our rights if we ask for leave of absence for the entire minority until such a time as the majority is prepared to face the facts of life and get down to business and enable us to begin to go somewhere.

On the question recurring,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

It was concurred in.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

SENATE MESSAGE

LEGISLATIVE REFERENCE BUREAU

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, March 2, 1953.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

On the question,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. TOLL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. TOLL. Mr. Speaker, in connection with the resolution, does that mean that the Legislative Reference Bureau will not take any work other than the bills which are prepared as a result of the Chesterman Committee Report?

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the resolution again.

The resolution was read by the Clerk.

Mr. TOLL. Mr. Speaker, I note that the language used is "undivided time as far as necessary. I suppose that as long as it does not say "exclusively" there will still be an opportunity to get a bill drawn during this time; is that correct?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the Majority Leader, the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson.

RESOLUTION LAID ON TABLE

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I must say that I have not had an opportunity to examine this resolution, and I therefore move to lay it on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

CONDOLENCE

Mr. VAUGHN offered a resolution which was read, considered and unanimously adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 3, 1953.

Our fellow member, Albert M. Bell, representing the eighth legislative district of Allegheny County, died this past Saturday, February 28, at his home in Pittsburgh. He was fifty-four years old.

Mr. Bell had been active in Republican politics for several years previous to his election as a member of this House in November. He was the district committeeman in the twenty-seventh ward in Pittsburgh and had served as sergeant-at-arms and as a document clerk for the General Assembly during 1947 and 1948.

He was born in Baltimore, but lived in Pittsburgh for forty-seven years. He graduated from the public schools of Pittsburgh and attended Duffs Iron City Business College.

Mr. Bell was a veteran of World War I, during which he received the Purple Heart Medal for wounds received in battle. He was a member of Riverview Post 681 of the American Legion and Brightwood Post No. 9407, V.F.W.

Although a new member of this House of Representatives, his presence will be sadly missed by all of us. Therefore, be it

Resolved (by the House of Representatives), That we hereby extend to the widow and family of the late Albert M. Bell our heartfelt sympathy in the loss of their beloved; And be it further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to his widow Mrs. Eva Starner Bell, 1436 Woods Run Avenue, North Side, Pittsburgh 12, Pennsylvania.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Allegheny County Delegation to attend the funeral of Honorable Albert M. Bell will meet at the William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, Rooms 566, 568 and 570 on Wednesday, March 4, at 11:30 a.m.

RESOLUTION CONGRATULATIONS

Messrs. ROYER, PAUL G. MURRAY and BOMBERGER offered a resolution which was read, considered and unanimously adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 3, 1953.

Whereas, The Honorable Norman Wood, who represents the second legislative district of Lancaster County, has been a member of this House of Representatives for thirty consecutive years; and

Whereas, Mr. Wood has distinguished himself by his high type of service in this House and stands high in the estimation of his colleagues and in the esteem and respect which they have formed for him through long association; and

Whereas, Mr. Wood, through voluntary conscientious service to his community, which has taken the form of active association in fraternal activities as well as in the Grange, in addition to his exemplary participation in the democratic processes of government, has set a high and honorable example to his friends, neighbors, colleagues and constituents; therefore be it

Resolved, That this House of Representatives hereby extends its greetings and felicitations to the Honorable Norman Wood at this time, and commends and congratulates him for his lengthy and useful participation in its activities as one of its outstanding members; and be it further

Resolved, That the membership of this House of Representatives hereby expresses its earnest hope and desire for the continued association of the Honorable Norman Wood in its activities as one of its most stalwart members.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the Dean of the House, Honorable Norman Wood of Lancaster.

Mr. WOOD. Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, it is certainly overwhelming to have this resolution adopted today. I thank the Members very much for it.

RESOLUTION CONGRATULATING BOROUGH OF LATROBE

Mr. JIM offered a resolution which was read, considered and unanimously adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 3, 1953.

On May 24, 1954, the Borough of Latrobe will celebrate the 100th anniversary of its incorporation as a borough.

Latrobe is an industrial center producing tool steel, explosives, ceramics, blankets, and many nationally advertised products, including the famous Rolling Rock beer. The value of the products produced annually, $48,000,000 and its average annual payroll $12,000,000 are fabulous considering its population of 12,000 persons.

Latrobe is a cultural center also, being the home of St. Vincents Archabbey and college, the oldest Benedictine foundation in the western hemisphere, and a short distance away is situated St. Xaviers Academy for girls. The National Professional Football League has recognized Latrobe as the birthplace of professional football.

The community leaders of Latrobe are planning a centenary celebration next year, and many of its citizens are already devoting long hours of labor to this civic enterprise; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Members of the House of Representatives extend to the citizens of Latrobe, our congratulations on their anniversary and our hopes that their celebration will be, as their borough is, the most successful of its kind; and be it further Resolved, That copies of this resolution be forwarded to Victor B. Stader, Burgess and James Underwood, President of Council.

The Senate met at 4:00 o'clock p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Lloyd H. Wood) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. WILLIAM H. KELLY, Pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical United Brethren Church, Lewisburg, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray. Dear Lord and Father of mankind, forgive our feverish ways. Reclothe us in our rightful mind. In purer lives Thy service find; in deeper reverence, praise.

God, our Father, refresh us and help us keep step with Thee at the beginning of another week. May we move forward with hopeful hearts and understanding minds.

God help us to be worthy of the priceless heritage, traditions and institutions of our State. May Thy guiding hand be upon us as we sit in the high councils of State. Ours is a sacred trust and we would be true to it. Make us sensitive to the obligations which we cannot escape.

Heavenly Father, lead us by the word of Thy truth, by the direction of Thy wisdom and by the grace of Thy holy spirit. Grant that the business of this day bear the mark of distinction and intensity of desire to serve our beloved State of Pennsylvania and Thee, O God, in Christ's Name, Amen.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. LEADER read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 248, entitled:

An Act requiring water companies supplying water to cities, boroughs, towns, and townships to fluoridate the same under certain conditions.

Which was committed to the Committee on Local Government.

He also read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 249, entitled:

An Act authorizing the Department of Welfare to establish farms for the care training and rehabilitation of chronic or habitual inebriates providing for buildings and equipment therefor and the management and control of such farms and the compensation of employees providing for costs of transportation and maintenance of inebriates as in State institutions providing for admission and discharge of chronic and habitual inebriates from such farms

Which was committed to the Committee on Public Health and Welfare.

Mr. CROWE read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 250, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the Department of Welfare for the maintenance of the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Which was committed to the Committee on Appropriations.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. CROWE asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. CROWE. Mr. President, the bill which I am about to present is a bill empowering the Pennsylvania Committee on Interstate Cooperation to hold hearings on the water development program of INCODEL, the Pennsylvania Water Resources Committee and possibly this new project that has been presented to us, of tapping Lake Erie and drawing water from that source down into the Susquehanna and thence to the Delaware River to fill the necessary requirements.

Now, Mr. President, there have been charges of malfeasance and skulduggery at the crossroads and so on. In introducing this bill, I want to say that it is with no thought of embarrassing anyone but I feel if there is anything wrong that the Republicans, because this is a Republican Administration, should clean up their own back yard. I know, in doing this, we will have the respect of the taxpayers of this Commonwealth.

Mr. President, in going over this proposition, I speak with some authority because for a number of years I was with INCODEL as a member. I am also greatly concerned because all these water projects that have been proposed so far are practically ninety per cent in my own district; some are in Carbon County, some in Monroe County, and some in Wayne and Pike Counties. In fact, my district extends from Hancock, New York to Portland, in Northampton County, a distance of 130 miles along the Delaware River. You can readily see when I get into this thing, that I have some interest involved.

BILL INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. CROWE read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 251, entitled:

An Act requiring the Pennsylvania Committee on Interstate Cooperation to study and investigate the problem of securing an adequate water supply for this Commonwealth; and making an appropriation.

Which was committed to the Committee on State Government.

INTERROGATION

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President—

The PRESIDENT. Does the gentleman from Northampton desire to make a statement? The Order of Business is Bill Introduced and Referred.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Monroe, Senator Crowe, in regard to his last remarks.

The PRESIDENT. Well, I assume the Senator must request unanimous consent to interrogate the Senator from Monroe.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President. I ask unanimous consent to interrogate the gentleman from Monroe, Senator Crowe.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Crowe, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. CROWE. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. YOSKO. Thank you, Mr. President.

Senator Crowe, you introduced a resolution the week before last, I think, calling upon the Pennsylvania Water Resources Committee to submit to the Legislature the engineering report upon which is based its report which was submitted to the Legislature. I now ask whether this report has been submitted to you?

Mr. CROWE. Senator Yosko, I believe the report is on all our desks now. When I came in, I found an envelope on my desk and it has the report in it, although I have not had a chance to look at it or study it. I assume this is all the report they have to distribute.

Mr. YOSKO. Thank you, Senator.

Mr. President, I wish the Senators would take particular notice of those dates and times, which will be announced in the press as well, because we are trying to give at least one week's notice of scheduling each of these hearings on each particular recommendation.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. LEADER. Mr. President, I would like to say a few words with regard to a newspaper release which I read the other day, an article carried in the Wednesday evening paper of the York Dispatch, an Associated Press Release, dated March 4, which carried the following information which I believe is of interest to the gentlemen of the Senate. I quote from it, Mr. President:

"Freed, speaking in the absence of chairman Donald P. McPherson, said a committee meeting to discuss the bill 'certainly will not be held for a long time.'" This was referring to the Committee on Constitutional Changes and Federal Relations. The article stated further, and I quote:

"I believe only a few people want a new constitution," said Freed. "Why rewrite the whole document when we can always adjust it through amendments to meet current needs?"

"A survey of the other 10 Republican members of the 15-man committee bore out Freed's opinion for the most part.

"Only two G. O. P. senators said in advance that they would vote to bring the bill out on the floor. These were Senators Robert D. Fleming (Rep., Allegheny) and Henry G. Propert (Rep., Montgomery).

"In addition to Freed those opposing the measure as it now stands included Senators C. Arthur Blass (Rep., Erie) and Albert R. Pechan (Rep., Armstrong). A number of others were undecided or said they had not had time to study the bill.

"The five Democratic members of the committee are expected to follow the stand taken by House Democrats—that is, opposition to holding a referendum on whether to hold a constitutional convention, but approving the bill if that is the only way to get it through."

Further along in this release, Mr. President, it is also stated:

"One G. O. P. member of the constitutional changes committee predicted just such a wave of opposition from the minor judiciaries and tax collectors.

"Due to their pressure," said Senator Pechan, "I don't think the people will take a new constitution. For that reason I'm against it—I don't think it can win."

"Blass said that he opposed a new constitution on grounds that he did not believe a document 'written under the pressure of these times could properly reflect the things that should be in it'."

Mr. President, I just want to say that for a long time I have been looking forward to this first meeting of the Committee on Constitutional Changes and Federal Relations. I remember very vividly the one meeting held by that committee in the 1951 Session. It was a rather stormy meeting, but fortunately two bills were reported out at that time. One bill called for a Constitutional Convention and one called for a referendum to see whether or not the people wanted it. Unfortunately, those bills were recommitted and left to die.

Now we find ourselves again, in this 1953 Session, Mr. President, pretty much in the same position in which we were in 1951. In fact, I am not at all looking forward to that committee meeting any longer because the whole matter seems to be cut and dried. It seems to be cut and dried, Mr. President, in spite of the fact that both parties carried this in their platform planks, pledging to the people of Pennsylvania that they would support legislation calling for a Constitutional Convention.

Mr. President, I can find little rhyme or reason in the argument advanced by those who were polled by the press on this matter. In regard to Senator Freed's statement—perhaps I should say the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Freed—that very few people want it, I believe it is elementary politics, Mr. President, that two major parties in their platforms would not have contained planks unless they believed quite a few people wanted a Constitutional Convention, because you know and I know, and the gentlemen of the Senate know, that when platforms are drafted, it is with one eye cocked on the election to see what is going to make votes for the particular party in the coming campaign.

Beyond that, Mr. President, the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Pechan, stated that he believed certain pressure groups would destroy this anyhow, that it would be killed in the referendum. That may happen, Mr. President, but if this General Assembly is going to base its judgment on whether or not a few small pressure groups, who have vested interests, are going to go out publicly and destroy something that is for the common good of all of the people of this Commonwealth, then I hope we are not going to hinge our decisions on that kind of a basis.

Mr. President, the pressure of the times has been advanced by the gentleman from Erie. I want to say to him, I believe the finest Constitution ever produced was our Federal Constitution, and you and I know the pressure of those times. They had no tradition to build on at that time. They had to do all the spadework right from the very start.

I believe, Mr. President, in all fairness, that all of us in this Chamber must realize that we cannot simply say we can have no Constitutional Convention, that the people will refuse it anyhow, without attempting to find out if we are going to be overwhelmed by just the sheer difficulty of this problem. If such is the case, then we should never have attempted to become a part of this body in the first place.

Mr. President, I say to you and the Members of this Senate, I hope we will have a meeting of the Committee on Constitutional Changes and Federal Relations in the not too far distant future. I hope that the ten Republican Members mentioned in the article, which I quoted from the newspaper, will come to that meeting with open minds, not succumbing to the pressure of any small groups in Pennsylvania, who may want to protect their own interests, but will come in there and think of the welfare of all of the people of the Commonwealth and that they will do as all the other old States of this Country have done, that they will revise their Constitution and bring it up to date.

Mr. BLASS. Mr. President, in answer to the gentleman from York, I want to tell him this, that the Constitution of the State of Pennsylvania, as well as the Constitution of the United States, has stood the test of time through troublesome periods. Today we are in a transitory period. Conditions around us are unstable, our ideas are unstable, and it should not be reflected in a basic instrument as valuable as the Constitution of the State or the Constitution of the Nation.

Mr. President, I will say to the gentleman that if he is patient for three or four years, until things become normal again, until we can get down to a common sense period, until we can get down to a common constructive basis for government, then, and then only, is the time to write a new Constitution for the State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, if there is anything wrong with the present Constitution, in my opinion and in the opinion of every other lawyer of the State, and every other person in the State who exercises sound common judgment, it can be changed by proper revision. There is nothing in that Constitution that cannot be changed by revision after due thought and due deliberation is placed upon it.

For this reason, Mr. President, I have said, and I say again, that I am opposed to a basic change in the law at this time. I feel that the time may come when conditions become so normal, and people exercise a degree of sanity in their ideas of legislation, that we will be able to rewrite the entire basic law of the State. If we adopt a new Constitution at this time, it will open the field to a tremendous expense era. We might as well throw all of the decisions of the courts out of the window and start again from scratch, and the litigation that would arise out of a new Constitution in this period would be tremendous.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, referring to the remarks of the gentleman from Erie, I am living in these times and I am just as sane as the first day I came into this Legislative Hall, and I do not like the inference that the people of this Country are working under such pressure that in the Legislative Hall they are not using sane judgment.

I presume, Mr. President, that the gentleman, being a member of the Republican Party, subscribed to their platform in 1950 when it was adopted in the great city of Pittsburgh. I am almost positive, as I was around that hotel quite a bit that day, that he was one of those who attended the meeting of the Republican State Committee.

Mr. President, it brings to my mind a speech I read the other day. It was made by the former Governor of Illinois and the Democratic nominee for President in the last Presidential election. In his speech he called attention to the day, and I have forgotten the date, when they have the famous plowing contest, at which time both he and President Eisenhower spoke. If you will remember that day, it appeared to me that they were not only borrowing planks from our platform, ones that they did not put in theirs, but they were going a little bit further, in that the then Republican nominee said he was for 100% parity. Now his Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Benson, has said that he is for 80% parity. In other words, they only borrowed that plank for political purposes and quickly returned it after the polls closed last November 4th. I consider a pledge to the people in a platform one that should be kept.

I regret, Mr. President, that the vice-chairman of the committee took it on himself the day that the bill came over from the House to usurp the power of the chairman of the committee, because I do not think that the chairman of the committee would have handled a serious situation the same as the vice-chairman did. I know the chairman of the committee, and I am positive that he is the type of a Republican who will give this bill a fair hearing in the Committee on Constitutional Changes.

Mr. President, it was such a great bill in the House that it was made House Bill No. 1. If the Republicans think one way in the House and do not think at all in the Senate, then I must go back to Mr. Blass and say maybe there is not the sanity there should be among the Republican Members of the Senate on the other side of the aisle.

Now, Mr. President, I heard the Governor in his address, at the opening of this General Session of the Legislature, when he reiterated the plank in the Republican platform for a Constitutional Convention. I, for one, would rather have the convention and then let the people vote whether they want to accept the Constitution. However, I may find myself, and I hope to find myself, at least, in this bad position that I will have to vote for the bill with a referendum in its asking whether the people do want a constitutional convention called if necessary.

I do not know, Mr. President, whether the chairman of the committee is going to get up and make any remarks, but I do think that if he does not want to get up and publicly say so, he rather owes it to us to advise us if he is not going to have a meeting of that committee shortly, and, at that time, discuss this all important bill.

Mr. FREED. Mr. President, I do think that I should set the other side of the Senate straight in this affair because, after all, I did not take the liberty of talking for the committee. The reporters definitely know that I talked, when I answered their questions, for myself only and not as the chairman or vice-chairman of the said committee. So, I would like the boys on the other side to know that I took no authority on myself; I did not talk for any one of the other members of the said committee.

Since that time, Mr. President, I am stronger than I ever was in saying that I am certainly not for the entire revision of the Constitution. I did say at that time, and I repeat now, that I hoped if we ever did take it up that we would take it up about one week before election, so it certainly could not fall on this particular election day. I said that, but since that time each Senator has on his desk a bulletin from the Chamber of Commerce, I believe, as of March 6, and out of putting out 4,000 circulars, or questionnaires, they have 79.2% opposed and 20.8% for it. Now, that is the Chamber of Commerce. I imagine that is just a small outfit in the State.

Mr. President, back home in my territory, I am quite sure that my people want to have the Constitution left as it is, so I am talking for Senator Freed and not for the rest of the committee.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President and Members of the Senate, I am sorry that the constitutional convention debate has come up at such an early date. However, it was entirely right to bring this phase of it up at this time. I think Senator Leader has put the people of Pennsylvania on notice that there appears to be a deliberate attempt in the Senate to keep the bill in a position where the Members of the Senate will not have an opportunity to vote for it.

Mr. President, political parties destroy themselves by destroying the faith of the people in the party. I believe the Republican Party, when it went before the people of this Commonwealth with a platform plank calling for a constitutional revision, meant what it said. If they did not mean what they said in that particular plank, then, of course, we must assume that we would take the same course that any court, or jury and court, would take. That course is, when a witness lies once, then the court or jury has the right to disregard all the other testimony given by that witness. If they do not mean it when they put in their platform a plank concerning such a vital issue, then evidently we can say honestly to the people of Pennsylvania that they do not mean anything which is in their platform.

Mr. President, no group of representatives can detach themselves from the responsibility of putting into effect the party platform. The party platform does not mean anything to anybody in the State, insofar as the fulfillment of that platform, except to the Members of the General Assembly. The Members of the General Assembly are the party spokesmen. They speak for the political party; they have to put into effect that party's platform.

Mr. President, I want to announce to the Members of the Senate that the eighteen Democratic Members of the Senate of Pennsylvania, having fully considered the platform of their party, are standing ready and willing to vote for a constitutional convention if they are given that opportunity by the Republican controlled committee.

There are a great many people, Mr. President, over the years, who would always fight, and have always fought, any change in the fundamental law, not only of this Country but of other countries. The Magna Charta of England was never written without a fight by courageous men. The Constitution of these United States, which we hold so proudly before the whole world, was never written without a fight by courageous men.

Mr. President, the Constitution of Pennsylvania is antiquated. Every person knows that, because every two years when we meet in General Assembly, we find before us many proposals to amend that Constitution. We have before us today, I heard over the desk, an amendment proposed to the Constitution, introduced by a Member of this Senate. Every year they try to amend the Constitution. The Chesterman Reports, which call for a complete change in the administrative policies and program of this Commonwealth, are nothing but a throw-back to the antiquity of this Constitution.

Sooner or later this General Assembly, Mr. President, whether it is the General Assembly of this year or of the future years, or the near future, must sit down and deliberately set aside the present Constitution; keep that which is good, amend that which is bad and introduce that which is needed in order that this Constitution of such an age will reach the new maturity of this age of ours in which we are living.

We all know, Mr. President, that the State administration is antique, that it needs changes. You cannot make changes piecemeal; you have got to make them in the light of the events. We have got to change the Constitution in Pennsylvania in order to allow the taxing system of this State to be revised and revamped.

I know the program and I know the proposition before us, Mr. President, but that does not, in any way, take away from the Republican Members of the Senate their responsibility to carry out their platform plank. I, for one, say this, that whether the newspapers carry it or not, the people of Pennsylvania will know, through other means, that the Republican Party is deliberately trying at this time to sabotage their platform promises.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would like to suggest to the gentlemen of the Senate, I know that when our very distinguished colleague from York was speaking, in no way was he attempting to cast any aspersions on the very distinguished Chairman of the Constitutional Changes Committee. However, I would just like to respectfully call to the attention of the Senate, and to the 10,000,000 people in Pennsylvania, that this bill was referred to Senator McPherson's committee on March 3 of this year. That happened, Mr. President, to be last Tuesday, which was the last day that we were in session that week, and under the normal course, or the mechanics, involved the chances are ten to one that the clerical staff was unable to place in Senator McPherson's hands the actual bill until we returned today.

Mr. President, this view-with-alarm that springs up on the other side, simply because we have been in session for almost an hour and the chairman of that committee has not taken recognition of the fact that at long last a House bill has been referred to his committee, and to accuse the Republican Party of an attempt to create in the minds of the people of Pennsylvania that the Republican Party is going to ignore its responsibility, simply because the bill has not been acted on during the hour that the chairman of the committee has had it, I do not think is very fair to Senator McPherson and his committee.

I would cheerfully suggest to the Minority, Mr. President, that they give Senator McPherson and his very capable committee an opportunity to have a hearing, and see what happens to the bill then. I am sure that Senator Leader had no idea of suggesting that Senator McPherson, or any member of the committee, was dragging his feet in preparing this bill. When he made his comments, he was commenting on statements purported to have been made by individual members of the committee.

Since then, Mr. President, the discussion has moved over into a field of viewing with alarm the attitude of the Majority Party on a plank in their platform. I might say—I am sorry, Mr. President, I was talking and I could not hear the compliments from the other side—that the Republican Party's record over the last fifty years of keeping their platform pledges certainly will measure up to any record established by any other political party that may have been in existence during the last fifty years and in a position of power.

There is an old saying, Mr. President, that usually the termites get to a plank in a political platform before the politicians get around to it, and I think that even in our short political time, we realize that the art and science of neglecting planks in a political platform is not something over which the Republican Party has exclusive control. If we wanted to delve back into history, Mr. President, we could cast the finger of suspicion at the other political party which was on the scene for a long time in Washington, and we used to view with horror the fact that they did not keep their political planks or keep up the pledges which they made in their political platforms.

Mr. President, in this specific instance, I think it would behoove the gentlemen of the Senate to wait until the committee has had an opportunity to act on this bill which was presented to them by the House. Then, if the bill does not meet with the approval of a majority of the committee, there will be time enough for them to jump to their feet and, following that old political custom, view with alarm the attitude taken by the Majority Party here in the Senate.

Mr. PECHAN. Mr. President, I do not want to prolong this debate, but I do want to clarify one thing. When I was interviewed by the press, I did not realize that he was interviewing me as a Member of the Committee on Constitutional Changes. Just the same—I was interrupted a little bit by the compliments which were thrown at me from the other side, too—I want to say this, in reference to the statement which I made, as you know, Mr. President, I have in this Session introduced two amendments to our Constitution; one is the eighteen-year-old franchise and I introduced one today, with my distinguished colleague, Senator Mallery, which would grant absentee voting.

Now, Mr. President, on two occasions the people of Pennsylvania have defeated the graduated income tax. There are proponents for that. When I was talking to the press, I said that I did not believe that the State should spend $750,000 getting a Constitution prepared, and then presenting it to the public to vote on after the convention. I did not make the statement that I would vote against the referendum concerning the question of whether or not the people shall request a new Constitution.

I also made the remark to the press, Mr. President, that I felt the minor judiciary, the justices of the peace, the tax collectors, the assessors, were politically minded. Maybe that was not printed. I did not see the statement that Senator Leader read a while ago, I did not see it in our local paper, but I made the remark that these people are all politically minded, and if there is anything in a new Constitution which would hurt those people, they would go out and vote and influence their friends to kill the whole Constitution. I cannot see spending $750,000 preparing a whole new Constitution when we can take it piecemeal, get the major things done one at a time and then maybe incorporate it in the Constitution.

If the bill comes before the committee and I am present, Mr. President, I am certainly going to give it every consideration. I did not say that I would vote for or against it in committee.

INTERROGATION

Mr. LEADER. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Erie, Senator Blass, with his permission.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Blass, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BLASS. I certainly will, Mr. President.

Mr. LEADER. Did you run as a candidate for the Senate of Pennsylvania on the Republican Platform?

Mr. BLASS. Mr. President, I ran on the Republican ticket and I read the platform, and in some respects I did not agree with all the provisions therein but I still remained a candidate. I glanced at the Democratic Platform as well.

Mr. LEADER. Mr. President, I would like to further interrogate the gentleman from Erie, Senator Blass.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Blass, permit himself to be interrogated further?

Mr. BLASS. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. LEADER. Mr. President, it is generally accepted that many of the recommendations of the Chesterman Committee would require changes in our Constitution. Does the gentleman from Erie believe that we should amend our present Constitution if we decide to accept those recommendations of the Chesterman Committee?

Mr. BLASS. Mr. President, I certainly believe that we should. I believe that in any respects where the Constitution should be revised or amended, we can do it by an amendment without the necessity of a Constitutional Convention which is designed purposely for bringing about a graduated State Income Tax in the State of Pennsylvania. I was elected on both tickets up in Erie County on the platform pledge which I made to the people of Erie County, and I make it to the people of the State of Pennsylvania as well, that we cannot stand any other income tax, whether it be graduated or flat.

Mr. LEADER. Mr. President, I take it, then, that the gentleman feels that those provisions, or those recommendations of the Chesterman Committee which require changes in the Constitution, should not be acted upon or should not be put into effect for a four- or five-year period. I would like to ask the gentleman from Erie if that is what he is trying to convey, Mr. President.

Mr. BLASS. I did not say that, Mr. President. I said in those cases where the Constitution can be revised by amendment, we can do that at the present time after due deliberation on the requested provision.

Mr. President, when you call a new Constitutional Convention and change the entire basic structure of the Commonwealth, you are going to be confronted with a lot of other ideas that are not contemplated until that convention meets, and it would be very dangerous to the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to be compelled to face such a situation.

Mr. LEADER. Mr. President, I would like to thank the gentleman and I would like to make a few remarks.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman may proceed. We are still under the Order of Business of Petitions and Remonstrances.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. LEADER. Mr. President, there are just a few things I would like to say. First of all, in reply to the gentleman from Lehigh, it was very interesting to note that seventy-nine percent of the Chamber of Commerce, or whatever figure he quoted, was opposed to a Constitutional Convention. However, I believe that is only one element of the population of Pennsylvania, and I would not, myself, with a clear conscience, be able to base my decision on that.

I would like to say, too, Mr. President, in reply to the Senator from Armstrong relative to his statement that it is going to cost $750,000, I believe that the Senator from Allegheny, Senator Walker, who spoke a few minutes ago, had a bill introduced into this Senate in 1951, and reported out by the Committee on Constitutional Changes and Federal Relations, which might have drafted a new Constitution for Pennsylvania for a little over $100,000, if my memory serves me right. So, while this cost might be a factor, I cannot believe it is the only factor which we need think of, and I cannot believe, further, that even the members of the minor judiciary, of which I am a part I might add, Mr. President, would go out in opposition, all out opposition, to a good revised Constitution.

I want to also say this to the gentleman of the Senate, Mr. President. Everyone seems to feel that if we have one provision here that chops off ten percent of the electorate in their support of a revised Constitution, and another proposition that cuts off another ten percent, eventually we are going to get down to the minority of the people and that the new Constitution would, by necessity, be defeated in a referendum.

Mr. President, I want to say that there are other means of dealing with those controversial issues. This convention could draft the main body of the Constitution, on which all parties and all peoples could unite, and that could be voted on separately. Then these controversial issues could be listed as amendments, one, two, three, four, five, or as many controversial issues as this convention should uncover and have to deal with. The people could vote on those amendments separately, and so we might salvage this thing and put it through. We could very easily succeed in a referendum on that basis. There are no insolvable problems. We can deal with it and we can deal with it successfully.

I would like to say to the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. President, that I, too, would like to be benevolent with the Chairman of the Committee on Constitutional Changes and Federal Relations. I admire his benevolence, especially in light of the stormy road that his bill traveled in there during the 1951 Session. I am not taking the chairman of this committee to task at this time. However, the point which I wanted to bring out, and I stress this for the benefit of the gentleman from Allegheny, was that I resent going into a committee meeting where everything is cut and dried beforehand and we know we are licked before we start. If this poll means anything, if this gentleman who conducted the poll is accurate and if it means anything, then I am afraid that is what we face. I dislike going into that situation, and that is what I view with alarm.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I do not think that we should discontinue this without at least carrying into public view some of the weaknesses in the arguments given.

Mr. President, my friend and colleague, Senator Pechan, is for letting the eighteen-year-olds vote, but he is against a Constitutional Convention which would allow these eighteen-year-olds to vote, if approved, sometime in 1955. However, if Mr. Pechan's proposal, as he now has it, goes through, it takes four years for a constitutional change to be made under the procedure now set forth. So, the eighteen-year-olds for the next four years will not need to worry about voting, whether the Pechan Bill goes through or not.

Mr. President, the fallacy to which I want to call attention is that $750,000 item which Senator Pechan is so worried about. Under the so-called Chesterman Report, they claim that there is $100,000,000 that can be saved in a biennium by accepting the Chesterman Reports. We do not know whether that is true, but that is what they say. The Governor said that he can only save $16,000,000 this biennium because the other items would have to come, in the main, from constitutional changes. Now, if you want to bank on $750,000 as against $126,000,000 in the next three years, then your arithmetic does not agree with mine. You may as well have taken the Chesterman Committee and saved all of the money you spent for it, unless you had in mind trying to expedite putting into effect the recommendations so made.

If we are going to wait, Mr. President, and piecemeal change the Constitution of Pennsylvania, to put into effect the Chesterman Committee Reports, many Members of this Senate will never live to see the day when the $100,000,000 is saved for the taxpayers of this Commonwealth.

Mr. President, the only way in which we can tackle the problem that we have before us is by a Constitutional Convention. I want to say also to the Senator from Erie that I am not doing the thinking for the delegates who will be elected to that convention. I do not believe that any person in this room can name one single delegate who may be elected. How anybody can establish, at this moment, that whoever is elected to that convention is going to come up with a graduated income tax, is beyond my comprehension. I do not know who is going to be elected and I do not know what they are going to discuss. I do not know what kind of a tax program they are going to outline for Pennsylvania, and I certainly do not think it is fair to say to the people of Pennsylvania at this time that any Constitutional Convention means a graduated income tax, because he nor anybody else can stand in the Senate and say that that is what it means.

Mr. President, I predicted last week to the members of the press that this is the kind of propaganda which would be used to defeat the Constitutional Convention. We lived through that once in this State, we know what the people were told. Here we are again, before the convention is set up, before the plan for the election of the delegates is passed, and we already have the red herring of a graduated income tax to be dragged across the horizon to defeat the much needed changes in our Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Now, Mr. President, you cannot have everything.

Either you are faking on the Constitutional Convention, or you are faking on the Chesterman Report or you are faking on economy. Just what are we doing in Pennsylvania?

As far as the committee is concerned, Mr. President, I have no reason to doubt but what the chairman of that committee will call a committee meeting for it, and if he cannot get the bill out of committee, if the vote follows the line set in the newspapers by the so-called poll taken by a newspaperman, then, of course, the gentleman from York was absolutely right in getting up on the floor and protesting.

Mr. President, we are not viewing with alarm. We are stating facts, and all I can say to the gentleman from Allegheny about any other political party being in power fifty years in Pennsylvania, "there ain't no such animal." The only political party which has been in power in Pennsylvania for the last one hundred years, outside of four, is the Republican Party.

I say again, Mr. President, if there is a mess in Harrisburg, as so many anonymous letters written to me claim there is, then, of course, it must be Republican in nature. I do not think it is fair to get up and say that the Democrats are "viewing with alarm." We are just stating to the Members of the Senate, and to the people of Pennsylvania, that coming events cast their shadows before and the shadows are here, the shadows of the death of the Constitutional Revision Bill in the Senate Committee in Pennsylvania.

Mr. MAHANY. Mr. President, I do not object to my colleague, Senator Dent, having the last word; it is the delay he has in getting to it that drives me crazy at times.

Mr. President, I wish it might be possible for this Senate to spend as much time on the legislation that is before us as we do on the legislation that is not before us. I venture there is more debate that has taken place here now when this Constitutional revision legislation is not before us, than will take place when it finally does get before us.

Now, Mr. President, it has been brought up that this bill has only been in the hands of the Senate Committee on Constitutional Changes and Federal Relations less than a day or so, because the chairman of the committee had not received the bill until today. I would suggest that we try to spend some time on the legislation that we have on our desks, and wait for a little while to see if that committee will perform its duties and, perhaps, when it does report that bill out, it might be in changed form.

There were several amendments presented in the House, Mr. President, and adopted on that legislation. None of us know right now whether or not we would be for this bill presently. It would depend upon how many amendments were placed in the bill by the Senate committee, and then after it gets out, whether or not there are going to be any amendments presented here. Later when it gets into final form, and is on third reading and we see what it looks like in the final state, we are going to be able to decide whether we are going to be for or against it. I hope we will be able to bide our time and wait until such time as this measure gets to that stage.

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, I should like to call the Senate's attention to some chronological data. Our present Constitution became effective on January 1, 1874. That is approximately eighty years ago. Now, let us stop and see how long it took, from the prior Constitution, to have the Constitution of 1874. I note here that the one that was done away with was the Constitution of 1838. In other words, in the Nineteenth Century, the people of Pennsylvania waited thirty-six years for a new Constitution. In the Twentieth Century, we are waiting over eighty years for a new Constitution.

Mr. President, we have had patches in the way of amendments, and then patches on patches, and when we stop to think that it takes two Sessions of the Legislature, approximately four years, to put a patch on a patch, it is time we had a new Constitution.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. M. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce bills at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Messrs. DiSILVESTRO and WATKINS read in place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 268, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one of the act, approved the twenty-sixth day of April, one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 318), entitled "An act to regulate the sale and possession of penicillium (penicillin), and its derivatives, preparations and compounds in the interest of public health," by providing certain exceptions to said act and by omitting the word "written."

Which was committed to the Committee on Public Health and Welfare.

They also read in place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 269, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one of the act, approved the twelfth day of May, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine (P. L. 133), entitled "An act to regulate the sale and possession of sulfanilamide and its derivatives in the interest of public health," by omitting the word "written."

Which was committed to the Committee on Public Health and Welfare.

They also read in place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 270, entitled:

An Act to further amend section two of the act approved the eighteenth day of July, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 1303), entitled "An act to regulate the sale of certain hypnotic, analgesic, and body-weight reduction drugs, in the interest of public health," by omitting the word "written."

Which was committed to the Committee on Public Health and Welfare.

RESOLUTION REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

ATTORNEY GENERAL AND GOVERNOR OF COMMONWEALTH TO SUBMIT CERTAIN REPORTS TO LEGISLATURE

Mr. YOSKO offered the following resolution which was twice read as follows:

In the Senate, March 9, 1953.

Whereas, in the middle of January, 1953, it was reported by the United States Senate Internal Security Subcommittee investigating communist activities that such activities were prevalent in Philadelphia, and

Whereas, it was further reported by State Attorney General, Robert E. Woodside, that "Philadelphia cases came to light during a four month's state-wide probe of subversive activities by his department and that "facts would be made known to the legislature," and

Whereas, the Pennsylvania Loyalty Oath Act (Senate Bill No. 27), which became effective March 1, 1952, provides in part:

"No public funds shall be paid to any state-aided institution of learning unless the institution annually files with the Governor a written report setting forth what procedures the institution has adopted to determine whether it has reason to believe that any subversive persons are in its employ and what steps, if any, have been or are being taken to terminate such employment. The report also shall set forth unequivocally that the institution has no reason to believe that any subversive persons are in its employ."

Therefore, be it resolved that the Attorney General of Pennsylvania, the Hon. Robert E. Woodside, submit to the legislature any and all reports of investigations made by his department.

Be it Further Resolved that the Governor of Pennsylvania, the Hon. John S. Fine submit to the Senate and House Appropriations Committee written reports of state-aided institutions of learning required to be filed under the Pennsylvania Loyalty Act.

REQUEST THAT RULE 39 BE SUSPENDED

Mr. YOSKO. Mrs. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be dispensed with and the Senate proceed to the consideration of the foregoing resolution.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. MAHANY. Mr. President, I object.

The PRESIDENT. The resolution is referred to the Committee on State Government.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

TIME OF NEXT MEETING

Mr. BLASS offered the following resolution, which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, March 9, 1953.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur) That when the Senate adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday, March 16, 1953, at four o'clock p.m., E.S.T.; and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday, March 16, 1953, at four-thirty o'clock p.m., E.S.T.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. BARR asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, this seems to be "platform day," so I intend to introduce a resolution to try and help carry out the provisions of both the Republican and Democratic platforms of 1950, and also the Democratic Platform of 1952, on the subject of reapportionment. At the same time, I would like to read an editorial to the Members of the Senate, which is not too long. Then I will introduce the resolution, which is a Concurrent Resolution.

Mr. President, the editorial is as follows:

"A Fair Non-Partisan Plan for Reapportionment.

"It is difficult, perhaps even impossible to frame a fair legislative reapportionment measure that would not step on some politician's toes. Because some existing seats would be eliminated in the reshuffling a certain number of jobs and the influence that goes with them, would be lost.

"Although the Pennsylvania Constitution requires redistricting after each decennial census, succeeding sessions of the Legislature have been able to defy the law for 32 years because it lacks self-enforcement.

"Probably the best way to compel compliance would be through amendment of the Constitution holding up the pay of the legislators unless they adopt a reapportionment bill within a specified period."

Now, I think that would be very difficult to pass.

"Philadelphia's new City Charter contains a provision of this kind relating to a change each 10 years in the Councilmanic districts.

"Pending insertion of an enforcement clause in the Constitution, the redistricting issue probably will be tossed back and forth by the two parties at Harrisburg, without effective action, unless it is removed from partisan politics.

"One way to do this has been suggested by a resolution now before the House establishing a non-partisan commission to draw up a redistricting plan designed not to favor or to injure one party or the other but only to provide for fair representation of every section of the State in the Legislature.

"Members of the Commission, as proposed by the resolution, would be the heads of the departments of political science at the University of Pennsylvania, Temple University, the University of Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania State College; the president of the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters; the president of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, and two members of the Senate and House representing both parties.

"A nonpartisan group of this kind could focus public attention upon the inequities of the present district setup and the need for alteration, and could submit a reasonable plan for reapportionment as a guide to the Legislature. Here is a fair solution to the districting problem, and it should be accepted by Republican and Democratic leaders at Harrisburg."

Mr. President, my reason for bringing this up, and for presenting this resolution at this time, is that the resolution was presented in the House, and they have the same dungeon that there is in the Senate, the Rules Committee. That resolution is lying there or dying there, I do not know just which.

I have heard of various redistricting plans Mr. President, and to show you how partisan some of them are, there are two districts in Allegheny County, the Tenth and Twelfth Districts. The Tenth District, under this plan that is being talked about here in Harrisburg, has four members. They happen to be Democratic and I think that this district should be divided into two and two, and that this bill does. I am here to say that if it is divided that way, there will be two Republicans and two Democrats.

Then, Mr. President, we move across the river to the Twelfth Legislative District, where there are four members elected to the General Assembly. Three of the members happen to come from one township so, therefore, we do not want to redistrict that section of the county. In this way, they can elect four Republican members.

Now, Mr. President, if we are going to have that type of reapportionment, we are not going to get any place. I am going to present this resolution and I will ask, if possible and if the Chair wishes, that it be referred to the Redistricting Committee.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

COMMITTEE TO STUDY AND INVESTIGATE
REAPPORTIONMENT

Messrs. BARR and WEINER offered the following resolution which was twice read and referred to the Committee on Constitutional Changes and Federal Relations.

In the Senate, March 9, 1953.

Whereas, The Constitution of Pennsylvania, Article II, Sections 16 and 17 provides for the manner in which the Commonwealth shall be apportioned into senatorial and Representative Districts; and

Whereas, The Constitution of Pennsylvania, Article II, Section 18, places a mandatory duty on the General Assembly after each United States decennial census to apportion the Commonwealth into Senatorial and Representative Districts agreeable to the provisions of Article II, Sections 16 and 17; and

Whereas, The General Assembly has not so apportioned the Commonwealth after the last United States decennial census in 1950 or since the apportionment under the Act of May 10, 1921, P. L. 449 and 455, after the United States decennial census of 1920; and

Whereas, The present apportionment of this Commonwealth into Senatorial and Representative Districts is not agreeable to or in conformance with Article II, Sections 16 and 17, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania; and

Whereas, in the thirty-two years since the last apportionment in 1921, the shift and growth in population in this Commonwealth have raised complex technical and political problems with relation to apportionment under the provisions of the Constitution; therefore be it

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur) that a commission is hereby created which shall consist of ten members who shall be the following persons: The head of the Department of Political Science, or person occupying a similar capacity, of the University of Pittsburgh, the University of Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania State College and Temple University, the president of the League of Women Voters of Pennsylvania, the president of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, two members of the Senate to be appointed by the President, pro tempore of the Senate, one from each of the major political parties and two members of the House of Representatives, to be appointed by the Speaker of the House, one from each of the major political parties. The commission shall organize by electing a chairman, vice-chairman and secretary. The secretary need not be a member of the commission. The members of the commission shall serve without compensation but shall be reimbursed for all necessary expenses incurred in the discharge of their duties.

It shall be the duty of the commission to study and investigate the present system of apportionment of this Commonwealth into Senatorial and Representative Districts and the present population and its distribution in this Commonwealth, and to recommend in detail a specific reapportionment plan to guide the General Assembly in reapportioning the Commonwealth into Senatorial and Representative Districts in a manner agreeable to the provisions of Article II, Sections 16 and 17, of the Constitution and to the spirit of representative government in Pennsylvania.

The commission shall have the power to employ and fix the compensation of such stenographers and assistants as may be deemed necessary to carry out the work of the commission, but due diligence shall be exercised by the commission to enlist such voluntary assistance as may be available from citizens' research generally recognized as qualified to aid the commission with information or advice. The Legislative Reference Bureau, the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Internal Affairs and other agencies of the Commonwealth, as well as all local governments within the Commonwealth, shall give the commission on request such information and assistance as may be reasonably accessible.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. SILVERT asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, I understand that three Executive Nominations, covering membership on the Securities and Exchange Commission, have been reported from the Committee on Executive Nominations and have been laid on the table.

One of these members, Mr. Presdient, Mr. J. Myron Honigman, happens to be a resident of my Senatorial District. I want it noted of record that I have no objection to his confirmation, and that I have checked with the members of the Democratic Caucus and not a single one has any objection to Mr. Honigman's confirmation.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. BARR asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I find myself in the same position about a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission, but he did not get as far as the desk. However, I have no objection to Mr. Honigman, but I am going to object to a lot of these nominations until they bring them all out. I am getting sick and tired of the Democrats getting blamed for holding up and opposing these confirmations.

Mr. President, I am referring to Mr. Louis J. Conley, who is a member of my Senatorial District.

The PRESIDENT. I am sure the remarks of the two gentlemen of the Senate will be spread upon the Journal, and the Chair would be delighted to volunteer to advise any inquiring individuals that the record is as it has been demonstrated or explained.

Section 2 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. President, I do not rise to oppose this bill; I have every intention of voting for it, but I just want it brought to the attention of the gentlemen of the Senate, and of the press, that while we on the Republican side, from Allegheny County, are voting for this bill, it in no way means, as some people think, that we condone the creation of the Water Authority which is being created by the city of Pittsburgh.

Mr. President, we are voting for the bill because it does provide the means by which the new authority, if and when created, can enter into contractual relations with the Sanitary Water Authority of Allegheny County.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, for the information of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fleming, in case he does not know it—although he should know it, it has been in the newspapers a long time—I do not care whether we pass the bill or not.

Mr. President, the Authority was created several months ago. Articles of incorporation were granted by the Secretary of the Commonwealth's Office. The names of the gentlemen who are on that Authority, I think, are well known to Senator Fleming, and if he wants to play cheap politics, let him send the bill back to committee. I have never lived or died by any bill.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. President, I would call to the gentleman's attention that I stated I had no intention of voting against the bill. I am going to vote for it. I merely wanted to call to the attention, not only of the Senate of Pennsylvania but of the citizens of the city of Pittsburgh, who are under some misapprehension that we, of the Republican Party, are furthering the creation of this Water Authority for the city of Pittsburgh, that this bill does not do that.

Mr. President, I certainly have no intention of opposing the bill or of sending it back to committee.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fleming.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Fleming, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. FLEMING. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. BARR. Senator Fleming, do you represent any of the citizens of Pittsburgh in your Senatorial District?

Mr. FLEMING. Part of the Twenty-Sixth Ward in the city of Pittsburgh.

Mr. BARR. Will you tell the Senate how many?

Mr. FLEMING. The exact number is about 600, I believe, Mr. President.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, not that numerical strength would detract from or add to the position taken by my colleague, Senator Fleming, but I would like to advise the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Barr, that in my Senatorial District I have four of the city wards in the city of Pittsburgh. There are thousands of voters and thousands of residents who live in those four wards, and I certainly concur in what Senator Fleming has said.

Mr. President, by no stretch of the imagination would I want the people in those four wards, whom I have the privilege of representing here on the floor of the Senate, to gain the impression that by voting for this bill I am condoning what was done by the organization of this Water Authority in the city of Pittsburgh. I do not think that is playing cheap politics; I think it is merely putting our position on the record, and, through the kind medium of the press, before the people of the city of Pittsburgh.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, the gentleman's words are well taken, because he does represent a segment of the people of the city of Pittsburgh.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

PRAYER

The Reverend Charles F. Trunk, Jr., guest Chaplain and Pastor of Bethlehem Lutheran Church, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, offered the following prayer:

Eternal God, Father of us all, we thank Thee for making us stewards of life. Help us to know how to administer our legacy of responsibility. Guide us in the use of our wealth for the common good. May we see that any expenditure for selfishness is extravagance, and that no price is too great for the health of our souls. Make us worthy of the price Thou hast paid for us by teaching us the rules of Thy economy. Thou who wastes nothing, keep us from wasting our substance for that which is not eternal; but lend us the courage to give our very lives for that which is good. Make us more like Thy Son in whose spirit we pray. Amen.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. MORAN.

RESOLUTION No. 27.

In the House of Representatives, March 3, 1953.

The comic book available on the newstand and at the magazine counter designed primarily for juvenile consumption and purchased largely by its intended market, is a comparatively recent venture in the publishing world.

While many comic books provide wholesome reading for children, and while the contents of many others are harmless, there is a type of publication masquerading as a "comic" book, the subject matter of which is lurid, gruesome, fear-inspiring and morbid to say the least.

This type of "comic" book purports to be published subject to the publishers' self-imposed code of decency. If these standards are exemplified by the type of publication put on the market week after week are the best publishers can arrive at, it is incumbent upon the Legislature to investigate the need for establishing standards of decency, adequate to protect the impressionable minds of our children; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission is hereby directed to make a study of comic books available for sale to children in this Commonwealth, and to investigate their contents, particularly with reference to the gruesome, morbid type hereinbefore referred to. After completing such study, it shall make such recommendations as it deems necessary with respect to the establishment of standards commensurate with the proper education and protection of the impressionable minds of our children, together with accompanying drafts of necessary legislation and submit its report thereon to the General Assembly at its next regular session.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Messrs. GLEASON and SUCHER.

RESOLUTION No. 28.

In the House of Representatives, March 9, 1953.

Whereas, The members of seven volunteer fire companies aided members of the Muncy Volunteer Fire Company in a $25,000 fire at the F. B. Heal Variety Stores Inc., and warehouse at 4:15 o'clock on the afternoon of Wednesday, February 18, 1953; and

Whereas, The store and warehouse, located at 13 South Main Street, in the Borough of Muncy was destroyed, one fireman, a member of the Muncy Company, was overcome by smoke; and

Whereas, These firemen showed expertness in the performance of their duty and the execution of their skills necessary to bring the fire under control before further damage was inflicted to other residents of the community; and

Whereas, In another fire, occurring in the City of Williamsport, in the County of Lycoming, a greater loss in property damage was inflicted to the Clark and Hoag Tire Sales Inc., Market and Fifth Streets, in the City of Williamsport, and the fire spread to three nearby homes which left 10 persons homeless; and

Whereas, Damage in this fire was estimated at $350,000, and more damage and possible loss of life would have prevailed if it would not have been for the alertness of three Volunteer Fire Companies who responded to the general alarm in a manner reflecting credit to each man who labored at the scene of the fire as well as the companies as entire units; and

Whereas, The Volunteer Fire Companies of the West Branch who aided in the Muncy Fire, and the Volunteer Fire Companies of Clinton Township, Muncy Township, Muncy-Muncy Creek, Hughesville, Willing Hand Hose Company of Montoursville and the Loyalsock, and Citizen's Company No. 2, of South Williamsport, along with the Williamsport Bureau of Fires, are to be commended on their splendid performance of duty and aid to their communities; therefore be it

Resolved, That the members of this House of Representatives hereby extend their hearty and sincere congratulations to those fireman who fought the two fires in Muncy and in Williamsport, for their fine cooperation and brotherly spirit among themselves, and for keeping disaster to a minimum in their respective communities. Their work in bringing the two great losses under control in a minimum length of time and in saving life, limb, and property was a great success; and be it further

Resolved, That this House of Representatives hereby commend all the Volunteer Fire Companies of the West Branch Firemen's Association for bringing together the caliber of men needed to form such organizations and which brings together men who are willing to serve in any emergency and accept their responsibilities in saving life, limb and property.

By Messrs. KAMYK, KALANKIEWICZ, POLASKI, SARRAF, WALLACE, MUSTO, TAYLOR, VAUGHAN, WELSH and PETRASKY. RESOLUTION No. 29.

In the House of Representatives, March 9, 1953.

Whereas, A Select Committee of the United States Congress to investigate the Katyn Forest Massacre has recently concluded its investigation; and

Whereas, This Select Committee of the United States Congress has concluded on the basis of its investigation that 15,000 Polish Army Officers who disappeared in 1939 were in fact massacred by Soviet Authorities in the Katyn Forest in the spring of 1940; and

Whereas, This Select Committee of the United States Congress has made certain recommendations to the President of the United States; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives hereby requests the President of the United States to implement by prompt action the fulfillment of these recommendations:

In the House of Representatives, March 3, 1953.

Whereas, The death of Prime Bishop Francis Hodur on Monday, February 16, 1953 is recognized as a great spiritual loss not only to Scranton and the Lacakawanna Valley where he resided but to the whole Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and

Whereas, His founding of the Polish National Church in Northeastern, Pennsylvania, and the designation of the City of Scranton, Pennsylvania, as the headquarters of the PNC has brought world wide attention to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and

Whereas, He had labored for the past fifty-six years faithfully for his church and for the welfare of the inhabitants of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and

Whereas, From humble beginnings his work grew and he had established parishes of the PNC in over one hundred sixty-five cities and towns of the United States of America, and

Whereas, He had carried his work from Pennsylvania to Canada and even to Europe, and

Whereas, Those who knew, loved and were influenced by him have suffered a great loss, therefore be it

Resolved, That the members of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania tender deepest sympathy to those who looked to him for spiritual guidance; and be it further Resolved, That the Clerk of this House send a copy of this resolution to Bishop J. Misiaszek, 529 E. Locust Street, Scranton, 5, Pennsylvania.

MEMBER WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair is very happy to welcome to the Hall of the House the gentleman from Schuylkill, Mr. Shoemaker, who has been away from us for a considerable length of time because of illness. We are glad to see him back, looking bright, happy and sunburned.

PERMISSION TO ADD ADDITIONAL SPONSORS

Mr. TAYLOR asked and obtained unanimous consent to add additional sponsors to a resolution to be introduced by him.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. BRETH asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I want to bring to the attention of the Members of this House a condition which should be remedied in the setup of our Game and Fish Commissions.

First of all, times have changed. Thirty years ago this Legislature was still appropriating money for the operation of fish hatcheries and the Fish Commission. It had been only twenty years ago that this Legislature was still making the game seasons and setting the game bag limits. But now all this is done by the commissions themselves, which is as it should be.

However, in the past twenty years hunting and fishing has become big business—and I mean big. The sportsmen of this state alone are spending around 200 million cash dollars a year for their sport. In the last biennium the Game Commission spent more than $8 million and $5 million just last year on the game setup for 1952. The biennium for 1951 and 1952 saw $3 million spent by the Fish Commission. Now this shows that the game and fish funds expended in this state in the last two years was more than $11 million of the sportsmen's money. That is big business.

In spending these huge sums, we still operate the Game and Fish Commissions the same as we did back in 1873 when the Fish Commission was first formed, and in 1895 when the Game Commission was formed.

As it is now and was then, the men responsible for spending these multi-millions of dollars are appointed by the Governor to serve eight-year terms. They may be removed at the Governor's pleasure.

In the past twenty years we have seen the Game and Fish Commissions, however, go along for years with only three members or four members, and now and then they have reached five members with succeeding Governors not even bothering to fill the long-standing vacancies.

The official quorum required by law for either Commission to do a job for the hunters or the fishermen is five members.

We have also seen the spectacle in the past of a Game Commissioner being fired, removed from office by a Governor just four days before his full eight-year term expired.

At present it is true that we do have full game and fish commissions, but who can say that we may not have more bob-tailed commissions again at some future time.

Let me point out also to the Members of this House that in the past ten years we also have had a decline in small game. For example the hunters are now taking only around one million rabbits a year, where they formerly ten years ago were taking four million a year.

The game bag of ruffed grouse has fallen from 200,000 or more a year to less than 50,000 a year. Ringneck pheasants have dropped from half a million to around 200,000. Bob White quail have dropped practically out of existence—down from more than 100,000 a year to less than 5,000 a year.

I do not say that this is all the fault of the present Game Commission. I do say that with 850,000 individual hunters buying hunting licenses every year in Pennsylvania, and with 650,000 fishermen buying fishing licenses, and with both groups spending $200 million a year, it is high time to bring both the Game and Fish Commissions up to date and see that they function in the future on the right basis.

In the past it has been possible for Governors to appoint men on either Commission who frankly admitted that they knew practically nothing about game or fish management. But they would try to learn. We cannot afford to teach men game and fish management these days and permit them to familiarize themselves with the needs and wants of wild life, and the sportsmen want, at the same time they make the rules and regulations and establish the policy that costs millions of dollars of the sportsmen's license money, apparently $11 million a biennium and then not have that money produce results.

It has long been the belief of many sportsmen throughout the state that Game and Fish Commissions should be elected and not appointed. I agree with that idea. Game and Fish Commissioners could be elected in off years from the eight or nine county districts as they are now set forth for each Commissioner in the Game and Fish Codes. It would be a simple matter to keep such offices out of politics, merely by having them elected on a separate nonpartisan ballot.

In a primary election any aspirant to the Game or Fish Commission, by securing one hundred signers just as the Members of this House do, and sending that petition in to the Secretary of the Commonwealth with the necessary fee, could get his name on the county ballots in the counties of the fish or game district in which he resided and desired to represent on the Game or Fish Commission.

In primaries, in voting, voters would get their regular party ballot, Republican or Democrat, but also a separate Game or Fish Commissioner ballot. Then the two men who secured the most votes in those eight or nine county districts would then go into the general fall election. The two high men, either two Republicans or two Democrats, or one of each as the case may be, an Independent, a Non-Partisan, anyone who received one of the two high votes in the primaries on a separate ballot. Then the one receiving the highest vote would be named Game or Fish Commissioner for a four year term in the fall election.

A separate ballot would also be given voters in those fall elections. Now, this method of electing Game and Fish Commissioners would give the public and the sportsmen a chance, a long awaited opportunity to name the men in whom they had confidence and were experienced in wild life and familiar with game and fish situations and Commissions. It would also guarantee full and complete Commissions at all times, and furthermore and most important, these men would be men elected who could create programs and policies for the sportsmen and spend multi-million dollars without fearing pressure or reprisal from higher officials, because they would be elected instead of appointed and elected for a definite term.

It would also give men of experience and high reputation among sportsmen the opportunity to formulate programs that would go far in making hunting and fishing better in this state.

In closing I want to say that I am this day introducing the necessary bills to elect Game and Fish Commissioners, and I would appreciate the Members of this House to study those bills.

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 112, entitled:

An Act to further amend Section 1 of the act, approved the thirtieth day of March, one thousand nine hundred fifteen (P. The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. SARRAF. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the sponsor of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allgeheny, Mr. Ewing, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. EWING. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SARRAF. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask whether tomorrow this can be amended with unanimous consent on the part of the sponsors.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, as far as I am concerned, the bill can be amended tomorrow on third reading.

Mr. SARRAF. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would have the gentleman understand that it requires unanimous consent to amend the bill on third reading.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second section and title were separately read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

PERMISSION TO ADD ADDITIONAL SPONSORS

Mr. QUISENBERRY asked and obtained unanimous consent to add additional sponsors to bills to be introduced by him.

Mr. BLAIR asked and obtained unanimous consent to add additional sponsors to a bill to be introduced by him.

VISITORS WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair has the honor to present to the House Honorable Charles Klein, President of the Orphans Court of Philadelphia.

Also Honorable Leonard M. Propper, Judge of the Municipal Court of Philadelphia.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. PETROSKY asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I wish to make a brief statement relative to a proposal which I submitted to the legislative hopper on this date. There has been existent down through the years a laxity, as I see it, in fiscal affairs of the Commonwealth as related to bond issues and the sale of bond issues between various state agencies.

I have submitted a proposal in which a state agency, or persons responsible for or controlling a state fund, when purchasing bonds of another state agency, these same bonds will not be subject to a commission being paid to a financial syndicate handling these bonds. May I just for a moment give you an example of what I mean. On a total of $14,000,000 worth of Turnpike Commission bonds of the September 1952 issue that were purchased by Workmen's Insurance Fund, State Employees' Fund and School Employees' Funds, a commission of nearly $300,000 was paid to the financial syndicate originally set up to handle these bonds.

Now my proposal will give first call to these state agencies to purchase any such bonds of another state agency, whereby they may invest in them for a return and we can make a saving in the taxpayers dollar in prohibiting the paying of commissions to the financial syndicate which do nothing more than act as an intermediary in the transfer of funds from one state agency to another.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. JOHNSON asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, from what the gentleman has just stated, if that condition is true as he has stated, certainly that money should be saved, and his bill or resolution or whatever it is should certainly receive very good consideration.

PERMISSION GRANTED COMMITTEE TO MEET DURING SESSION

Mr. WATKINS asked and obtained permission for the Committee on State Government to meet during the session of the House.

RESOLUTION

Mr. VAN SANT and Mrs. MARKLEY asked and obtained unanimous consent to offer a resolution which was read, considered and unanimously adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 9, 1953.

Whereas, The honorable Reginald P. Stimmel is today celebrating his birthday anniversary; and

Whereas, Mr. Stimmel in addition to his business interests in the general insurance and brokerage concern of Stimmel and Grant, has been active in various fraternal and sportmen's organizations as well as in various groups of the Republican Party; and

Whereas, Mr. Stimmel has shown by his expertness as a golfer that he is "on the ball" in this field of sport as well as in his numerous other activities; therefore be it

Resolved, That this House of Representatives hereby extends its hearty congratulations to the Honorable Reginald P. Stimmel on this anniversary of his birthday, and extends its sincere hope and desire that his legislative, business, fraternal, and sportmen's activities continue at their present high caliber and excellence and that his originality and cheerfulness continue to be important factors in the activities of this House of Representatives for many years to come.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the "Birthday Child."

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker and fellow Members, I think it was very thoughtful of my colleagues from Lehigh County to remember that I had a birthday anniversary. However, I am getting up a bit in years, as you can hear from my voice, and I do not know that I am too anxious to see the next one come so soon.

However, it is very thoughtful of them, and it is very kind of you to join in wishing me a happy birthday, and thank you very much.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes that the gentleman does not have very much hair to lose, but hopes he has very many more happy birthdays.

The Senate met at 11:00 o'clock a. m., Eastern Standard Time.

By Appointment of the PRESIDENT and PRESIDENT pro tempore:

The PRESIDING OFFICER (John M. Walker) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. WILLIAM H. KELLY, Pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical United Brethren Church, Lewisburg, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray. The Name of the Lord, our God, is blessed from the sun's rising unto the going down of the same. Let all praise the Lord, for Thou hast healing in Thy heart for the world's heartaches, and cleansing in Thy blood for mankind's sins. Thy mercies are new every morning.

Open our eyes to see the truth, open our minds to know the right and open our ears to hear the voice of righteousness. Deepen our wisdom and awaken our desire to aid the common welfare. Give us strength to crowd out of our lives evil desires and sinful tendencies. In all things may we hallow Thy Name.

We ever seek Thy help, for upon this Senate rests great and solemn responsibilities. Be near all Members, control all thoughts and acts, that in all things we may be wise, just and noble, for ours is a sacred duty. Pave the way and make plain the path of duty.

Direct us to do the things that love, justice and patriotism inspire.

Establish the work of our hands; the work of our hands, establish Thou it, in our Redeemer's Name, Amen.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. HOLLAND asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. HOLLAND, Mr. President, the bill I am introducing I believe is long overdue. The State of Pennsylvania is in the liquor business and it is making very high profits due to the sale of intoxicating liquors.

We have found in our large industrial areas, Mr. President, that drunkenness is on the increase. In a survey that I made of some of the larger cities, I found that some men and some women have spent as high as 205 days out of a year in jail. These men and women are, unfortunately, alcoholics and have no control over their drinking at all. They come out of jail after spending sixty, or ninety or thirty days, at the expense of the real estate taxpayers of that community, and are only out a few more days, when they are back in for another thirty, sixty or ninety days. It is getting to a point where these men might as well be incarcerated for the rest of their lives, because that is exactly what we are doing by letting them go in and out without doing anything to help them improve their condition.

Mr. President, alcoholism has become even as bad as the drug habit. We take care of the drug addicts by sending them to hospitals and giving them cures, but with the alcoholic, all we do is send him to jail to spend his thirty, sixty or ninety days.

I was very glad to find, Mr. President, that the Chesterman Committee even recognized this fact and recommended that one of the State Teachers' Colleges be used as a hospital to rehabilitate the alcoholic. I have, in a number of Sessions, asked that a hospital be created so they could go there voluntarily, not through the courts, in order to try and cure themselves of the habit.

With this in mind, Mr. President, I am introducing this legislation.

BILL INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. HOLLAND read in place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 274, entitled:

An Act providing for the study, treatment and care of inebriates; creating a State Fund for Inebriates; establishing a board of trustees to administer the fund; conferring powers and imposing duties upon such board, and providing for the commitment of inebriates to the custody of the board.

Which was committed to the Committee on Public Health and Welfare.

GROUP OF WOMEN FROM LEHIGH COUNTY PRESENTED TO SENATE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. At this time, the Chair would like to call to the attention of the gentlemen of the Senate the presence, in the gallery, of a group of women from Lehigh County, headed by Mrs. Anna Rockel and Mrs. Ella Sandt. They are the guests of Senator Freed.

Will the ladies please rise in place and take a bow?

BIRTHDAY FELICITATIONS EXTENDED TO SENATOR DENT

Mr. MAHANY. Mr. President, I would like to take time, at this time, to congratulate upon their birthdays a couple of very good friends of all of us.

Mr. President, I notice that the genial gentleman from Westmoreland, the Minority Floor Leader, Senator Dent, has a very nice floral display over there on his desk and, I understand, that it is some commemoration for his birthday. I do not know what particular one, perhaps the thirty-ninth. I think Jack Benny does not get beyond thirty-nine; perhaps Senator Dent does not neither. So, I wish to congratulate him upon his birthday and also to congratulate our Senate Librarian, Charles Lathero, who happened to be born on the same day as Senator Dent. I do not know whether he was born in the same year, but it is on the same day.

Happy birthday to both of you.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes Senator Dent, who will now explain how old he is.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President and Members of the Senate, I want to thank the Majority Leader for his kind expressions of good will. I want to thank the Members of the Senate for the privilege of having served so long with so many of them.

I want to say to all of you that my age is an open book. Everybody knows exactly how old I am. I heard one of the Senators say yesterday that the way to figure a man's age was very easy. You take and divide his actual age by two, you add fifty per cent to that and then you know exactly how old he is, and that is how old I am.

My father once told me that over in Italy they never knew how old anybody was because everybody that was born in March was usually born on the night of the "big wind," and that was my birthday.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Well, I want to say to the gentlemen of the Senate that according to the age which he is giving, he first became a Member of the Senate at the age of eighteen.

I also want to point out that those flowers were purchased locally by the Minority Floor Leader.

Senator Dent, I am certain that Senator Holland's bill, which will require us to tell all, will encompass this problem of how old we are.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I know how old you are. I do not have to ask you, because you were with Pinchot with me a long time ago.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. I am proud of that, Senator Holland.

Mr. HOLLAND. So am I, Mr. President. At least I had religion for awhile.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Well, there is a question as to which one of us slipped. Would you like to put that to a vote?

Mr. HOLLAND. Not in this Senate, Mr. President.

I want to correct Senator Dent, Mr. President, because I did not know that the "big wind" occurred in Italy or in Westmoreland County. I thought that was left only to the Irish, because in the old days the Irish were either born before the night of the "big wind" or after the night of the "big wind," and I am trying to find out how he is getting into our Irish territory.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. May I say to the Senator from Allegheny that wherever Senator Dent is, there is the "big wind?"

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I only took credit for being born on the night of the "big wind." I did not take credit for making the "big wind."

Mr. MAHANY. I understand, Mr. President, that Senator Dent will be out in Nevada next Tuesday giving some competition to the atomic bomb.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Well, the Chair would like to inquire of the Majority Floor Leader, I read in the paper this morning where the Minority Floor Leader in the House and the Minority Floor Leader in the Senate were both going to Nevada.

Mr. DENT. Does that suggest anything, Mr. President?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No, I am just wondering how they missed out on the Majority Floor Leader.

Mr. DENT. They could not spare him, Mr. President.

Mr. MAHANY. Well, Mr. President, that may not be the final release.

Whereas, Clarence J. Wierman was active in politics for years and a Republican committeeman for several years; and

Whereas, He was a veteran of World War I and wounded at the Verdun front; he was a foreman of the F. X. Smith Cigar Company; a member of the church of the Annunciation of the Blessed Mary of McSherrystown and a member of many fraternal and patriotic societies; and

Whereas, He was a man of such great activity in so many civic, religious and fraternal organizations that he will be greatly missed by everyone in McSherrystown; therefore be it

RESOLUTION No. 31.

In the House of Representatives, March 9, 1953.

Whereas, there has been conducted by the Engineers of the Bureau of Mines an extensive survey of conditions existing in the Pennsylvania anthracite region's Lackawanna basin; and

Whereas, this survey has revealed possibility of tragic results in event said conditions are permitted to continue; and

Whereas, these same results affect not only a short lived economy in the Industry but foretell the probability of loss of life to the men working in the bowels of the earth: which tragedy could strike at any time due to lack of action by responsible persons, and

Whereas, this study was begun in 1947 and since its completion has gathered dust in the files of the Department and every observation related to this problem indicates that with cooperation of State and Private Agencies favorable action can be accomplished, and

Whereas, it now becomes apparent that the Members of the General Assembly of this great Commonwealth

must exert their efforts together with placing into action the facilities of Government in order to aid in whatever manner is possible the Industry and the many peoples confronted by this problem, therefore be it

Resolved, that the Mines and Mining Committee be requested to make a thorough study of the matter and report its findings together with the necessary Legislative proposals which it deems advisable to correct the situation, such report to be made to the House of Representatives within thirty (30) days after the passage of this resolution.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

RESOLUTION No. 32.

In the House of Representatives, March 10, 1953.

Lieutenant L. J. Kolankiewicz, Jr., serving overseas with the 66th Engineer Topographical Company of the United States Army, for which unit he acts as Voting Officer, recently wrote the following in a letter to the Speaker of this House:

"Perhaps some of our own legislators are not fully aware of the unnecessarily restrictive voting regulations which other states impose. However, from my observations, Pennsylvania is among the most liberal of states in facilitating the voting of its servicemen, and for that we can be proud. Appreciation was evidenced by the men themselves when almost all of the eligible voters from Pennsylvania, cast their ballot in the last election.

I would, then, like to commend our legislators on their practical and considerate views when enacting the liberal privileges permitted men in the service. By encouraging the all-important participation of voters as individuals, Pennsylvania is contributing to the development of better citizenship."

Receipt of such a communication is a compliment of which the Members of the House of Representatives of the General Assembly can indeed be proud; therefore be it

Resolved, (by the House of Representatives) That we hereby thank Lt. Kolankiewicz for his kind remarks and hope that Pennsylvania's example in facilitating the voting of servicemen will in time be followed by other states; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution shall be sent to Lt. Leon J. Kolankiewicz, Jr., 66 Engr. Topo. Co., APO 107, c/o PM, N. Y., N. Y.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. ANDREWS asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, yesterday for the first time since I have been a Member of the General Assembly I was absent from a session of this House. And my term of service has not been what one might term brief.

It is a privilege, Mr. Speaker, to be a Member of this House. Those of us who have lived for three score years and ten, plus five, plus two recognize that we are living on borrowed time. And yet, Mr. Speaker, it is a consoling thought that no matter when we pass away, if we have been Members of this House, it is possible for us to live in the lives of the people.

During my term of service in this House, I believe that we have touched helpfully the school situation; that we have broadened educational opportunities. I believe that we have done much to alleviate the condition of the sick and the afflicted; that we have contributed to the health of future generations. I believe that we have improved the parliamentary practices of this body, and it has been a privilege to have been a part of that, no matter how inconspicuous.

When I accepted the mandate to serve in this body, Mr. Speaker, I realized that I had asked for it; that I had made a compact with my constituents, my employers, that I would render service. It has been my conviction that I have no more right to defraud my employer, the people of this Commonwealth, from such service as I can render—no more right than I would have to defraud a private employer. I have viewed with real grief the fact that so many of us on both sides of this House have been unmindful of their obligations to serve, and it is my hope that as this session progresses, insofar as fate makes possible, we will have the Members in their seats. I want to assure the Majority Leader that we need the counsel and assistance of the majority in legislating for this Commonwealth.

Now, Mr. Speaker, unfortunately, or fortunately, I will be absent all of next week. I am going to have the privilege of witnessing the big blow-up out in Las Vegas where they are going to explode some atomic bombs. While I am gone I hope you will be kind to the Speaker. The poor fellow is the victim, the prisoner of a situation, proscribed and surrounded by Rules and with a master, always standing at his left telling him what he can or cannot do.

I want to pay a tribute to the parliamentary procedure in this House. Our Parliamentarian served as parliamentarian when Sarig was Speaker; he served when Kilroy, I guess that is his name, was Speaker—Democratic Speakers. In all that time he never framed the Rules to make it possible for the party in the majority to gain a temporary party advantage. And do you know that we here constitute practically the only General Assembly, insofar as the House is concerned, in which it is not a practice for the Parliamentarian and the Speaker to join together to juggle the Rules for the benefit of a political faction.

Mr. Speaker, I think we face a long session and we on this side will view with disfavor any attempt to enact a tax program until the other chamber of this General Assembly, has passed either affirmatively or negatively, upon the Constitutional Convention bill.

We will view with disfavor any action upon the part of this House in major matters until House and Senate have acted affirmatively or negatively upon an FEPC bill, and we will view with disfavor particularly the enactment of tax legislation until such time as the House has had the opportunity, and the Senate has had the opportunity to act upon a reapportionment bill.

It is our determination, Mr. Speaker, that we will not wait until the final sessions of this General Assembly to be confronted with a reapportionment bill forced through in the final days, particularly if that bill fails fairly, honestly and equitably to reapportion the various legislative districts of this Commonwealth. We say that with some determination.

We would be glad, Mr. Speaker, to join with the majority leadership in establishing a priority list insofar as the major measures to be considered are concerned. We want to know when FEPC comes before the General Assembly. We want to know when the other Chamber is going to act upon the Constitutional Convention bill, and we want to know when legislative reapportionment will become an issue upon the floor of this body.

We would regret very much to resort to any dilatory practices but within the framework of our legislative procedure we will stand by the general policy which we have announced.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. JOHNSON asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I am sure we all enjoyed a great deal the remarks of the Minority Leader. I will say that during his absence yesterday the session was not the same. We missed his glowing countenance; we missed his caustic comments; we missed his grand wit, in fact we just missed him tremendously. I do not think he ran into any trouble in his caucus. I do not think there was any movement put on foot to remove him, in fact I would imagine that they probably sang his praises in his absence.

I could not help but think when he was making his remarks that he was a little apprehensive about this trip he is going to make. When you speak on the atom bomb, that means terror and strife, and turmoil, but when he starts telling what a grand House this has been, how lovely his tenure has been, what a wonderful man the Parliamentarian is, I think he, as I say, wants us all to know that he loves us and is coming back. But atom bombs being what they are, he is not just sure what will happen. For goodness sake, Mr. Minority Leader, do not get too close to that bomb because we want you; we need you here. After all, we are operating under a two-party system and we need a strong militant minority just like we need an aggressive majority. It is here that we fight out the battles for the people of this state; we want you back and I am sure things will be left in good hands while you are gone.

I take it from the remarks of the gentleman that if this General Assembly passes FEPC, passes the Constitution Revision bill and passes a reapportionment bill, that the Democrats will vote for taxes. I do not want to say that I would like to see that, that I do want to see that, but we are after all legislating here to run this great state. As I pointed out the other day we have a budget which calls for half a billion dollars for education alone. Some say that can be cut, some say it cannot be, that education is one of the vital needs of this great age and that we need that much money if not more to run our educational system.

We have other things in the budget—over a hundred million dollars for relief purposes through the Department of Public Assistance. That is all going to take money. If we are going to vote to spend that money, we should all get back of a program to help raise the money in as painless a way as possible.

As to the Senate, and what they will or will not do, we have absolutely no control over them. The theory of our Government is one of checks and balances. Sometimes I say "thank God" for the State Senate; other times I think they say "thank God" for the lower House, because there are some things that are sent over to us which we politely sit on because they should never be enacted into law. I think by the same token things get over into the Senate and they are, shall I say, buried. We have not control over what they will or will not do.

We have a very pleasing Majority Leader of the Senate, who is very, very cooperative and will listen to what we have to say, and we will certainly endeavor to get them to go along with our program. Every effort will be made to enact a program and live up to party pledges.

The Minority Leader says we will perhaps have a long session. Well, that certainly is not my wish or intention.

I would like to see us get our job done, complete these hearings on the Government Survey Report, have the Appropriation Committee finish their budget hearings, evolve what money we need, and finish this session, say by April 30th.

The tentative schedule of Government Survey hearings will end on the 2nd of April. That will give us a month to do our business in an orderly and businesslike way, and get out of here so the Members can get back home and get about their tasks.

In closing, all of us want to say, not "farewell" to the Minority Leader but "God speed." Have a good time. We hope he will give us a report on that "big bang" when it occurs out West.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Andrews.

Mr. ANDREWS. May I have the privilege of interrogating the Majority Leader?

The SPEAKER. Will the Majority Leader permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JOHNSON. I shall, Mr. Speaker. I should say no newspaperman's questions. The gentleman generally says no lawyer's questions.

Mr. ANDREWS. As, if and when we reach the stage of considering tax legislation, would the Majority Leader agree that it might be a bright idea to attach to each bill levying a new tax a referendum provision?

Mr. JOHNSON. Speaking for myself personally, not having taken that momentous question to the caucus, my first answer would be no. Time marches on. We want to get out of this place. We cannot wait until next fall for the people to decide. They sent us here to make their decisions for them, good or bad. Therefore my first answer would be "no."

The SPEAKER. The Chair must also disagree with the Majority Leader if the Chair has the right to do so. I do not know what he means when he says the "lower House." As I understand it, it is "the" House.

The Chair would like to compliment the Minority Leader on his attendance. We are sure that his loyalty to the people of Pennsylvania has been proven many times over. The Chair also would like to say that he is sure there is not one Member of this House that would not wish him many, many, many more years of service as a Minority Leader.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, before starting on these statements I have to make, I would like to ask who the Majority Leader of the Senate is today?

The PRESIDENT. Does the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Holland, desire to interrogate the Sergeant-at-Arms? The Chair cannot answer that question.

Mr. HOLLAND. Who, Mr. President, has been assigned to act as Majority Leader?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I can answer the gentleman's question. I will act in that capacity today.

Mr. HOLLAND. Thank you, Senator Berger. I just wanted to find that out for the information of the Members of the Democratic group over here.

INTERROGATION

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Holland, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HOLLAND. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I would like to ask the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, who the Minority Floor Leader is today.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, we have our Whip here, Senator Ruth.

Mr. BERGER. Thank you, Senator Holland.

The PRESIDENT. The Whip has been promoted today.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, this Legislature has now been in Session for two and a half months. There is a rising clamor from the people back home asking when this "do nothing" Legislature is going to buckle down to work and tackle the vital matters of legislation which demand action.

It is obvious that the present Administration, battered and beaten by the dog-eat-dog struggle for political power which is going on within the Republican ranks, has been rendered completely impotent in offering legislative leadership. Must the whole apparatus of State government grind to a halt while the various factions within the Republican Party jockey for political positions?

When is the "hidden government" which is actually in control here going to loosen its paralyzing grip on this Legislature and allow us to proceed with our work?

The answer has been given that we must mark time until we have before us the Report of the Governor's Tax Study Commission and until we have concluded our public hearings on the Chesterman Committee Report.

Mr. President, on taxes and appropriations it is true that we must withhold action until we have made a complete study of these two reports, but is that any reason why we are blocked from consideration of any other legislation? To date, the only legislation which has come before us has been that in which the banks have had a special interest. Are the banks the only group in this Commonwealth whose interests are to be served by this Legislature?

Why is it that only four out of twenty-two committees of the Senate have met to date; Banking, Judiciary General, Appropriations and Local Government? Why haven't committee meetings been called to consider the multitude of bills which must be acted on, which are aimed at safeguarding the interests of the vast majority of the people of this State, legislation designed to protect the interests of consumers, labor, farmers, sportsmen and other broad groups who make up the bulk of our population?

Mr. President, why are we being blocked from consideration of those measures on which early action was pledged by the platform promises of both political parties, a Fair Employment Practices Bill, Constitutional Revision, a fair and equitable Legislative Reapportionment Bill? Has the "hidden government" decided, in the secrecy of smoke-filled hotel rooms, to stall and block these matters in the hope that they will die in the last minute shuffle, when we finally get down to considering tax and appropriation bills? If so, Mr. President, the time has come to smoke out the "hidden government" and restore the processes of government to their rightful place, in the committee meetings and floor of the General Assembly, where such decisions should be openly reached.

Gentlemen, I hereby serve notice that unless this legislative log-jam is broken immediately, next week the Members of the Democratic Party will move that on bills affecting the general welfare, discharge motions shall be offered to release these bills to the Senate Floor for action.

Mr. BLASS. Mr. President, in reply to the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, I just want to make one remark. The least governed is usually the best governed, and the quality of the Legislature is not determined by the number of bills it introduces and passes, but the kind of legislation that it enacts.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, according to recent newspaper releases, it appears that the leadership of the Republican Party, both in the Senate and in the House, is considering the scuttling of the Chesterman Committee Reports. It seems to me, Mr. President, that if these statements are true, the Majority Party here in Pennsylvania is playing with fire because, in my opinion, a number of these survey reports merit very careful consideration, and the people as a whole are vitally interested in any action which might be taken by these legislative bodies.

Mr. President, it seems to me that it is rather unusual that the special committee should consider Report No. 8 instead of handling the surveys in a proper manner or in their proper order. Is it possible that they might have found a weakness in the figures in regard to merging the State Police and the Department of Justice, that they have decided to take advantage of these weaknesses by criticizing the report in its entirety?

In my humble opinion, Mr. President, I feel that this report should be given every consideration, not because I believe and agree with everything they might say, because I have taken issue on this floor in regard to several of the survey reports. However, we have one of two alternatives; either we find a way, and find the means, of cutting these budgets or we are going to be faced with the problem of levying $156,000,000 of additional taxes upon the already overtaxed citizens of this Commonwealth.

Mr. President, I do not know what the idea of the Republican Party is; I do not know if these statements are true, but I say this to you here this afternoon, I believe when this committee meets this week they should suggest that the department heads attend the meetings, armed with facts and figures. They should supply that committee with those figures in order that we can go over it in detail. I have never seen a budget yet that I could not cut, and I do not think there is any man here who has had any administrative experience that has not seen likewise. It can always be done. We have to do this job because the people are looking toward this Senate to do the job for them.

Mr. President, in conclusion I want to say this to you. We, of the Democratic Party, agree that Governor Fine is very sincere in his endeavor to streamline government. We take that position because he has demonstrated that fact to us over a period of time. We are going to support that position, and any action on the part of the Republican Party in this Senate to scuttle the Chesterman Committee Reports, or to abandon public hearings, is going to meet with united opposition on this side of the aisle.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I only wish to concur in the remarks made by my colleague from Allegheny, Senator Holland, and add to them by saying that I am thoroughly disgusted with the work of this Senate. We are going now on the third month of this Session, and have not acted upon one bill of any importance.

Mr. President, a few weeks ago it was recommended by some of the Democrats and Republicans that we might take a recess in order to determine where we are going.

They thought that out in a hurry. It is very costly, not only for the Members individually but for the Commonwealth, to have us come down to Harrisburg, Monday after Monday, hoping that work may start, and go back Tuesday morning having done nothing. Just how long will this continue? We have work back home, each and everyone of us, to make our livelihood, but because of our sworn duties we must make our appearance at the Capitol every Monday, hoping something will happen. We should either make up our minds to get down to work and act upon some of these bills, or recess until the powers that be make up their minds.

Another thing, Mr. President, I have noticed that we have had a privilege here, I might say a practice rather than a privilege, of committee heads taking it upon themselves to circle the Senate and ask for the approval of committee members to report bills to the floor. We have not objected to that, especially when we are in Session and when we are quite busy. However, I see no good reason for any committee chairman to poll the Members on the floor in order to report a bill without first having a committee meeting.

Mr. President, I say that is a practice which has been abused, and I serve notice that in the future it shall be determined whether or not there has been a committee meeting called before any such bill is reported to the floor for further action.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I just want to call to the attention of the Senate the fact that when today's Session ends, we will have broken one record. It is not a complimentary record, but we will have broken a record which is not a credit to the Republican leadership.

Mr. President, unless I am mistaken, this has not happened since 1931. In 1931, it took until March 16 to pass the first bill by both branches of the Legislature. As I understand it, the first bill will have passed this Session of the Legislature on March 17 or 18. It is the bill amending the Commercial Code. It passed the Senate and is now on the House Calendar. When it passes the House and is sent to the Governor, we will have broken that 1931 record.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, we appreciate greatly the apprehension which the Minority Side seems to feel for the Majority Side in this matter. I might say that we are concerned over here more with the quality of the bills which are received by the committees, rather than with the quantity of them. I have every confidence that the committee chairmen, when they have bills of the right caliber in their committees to consider, will report them out for appropriate action on the floor.

In so far, Mr. President, as the work of the hearing committee studying the Government Survey Report is concerned, this committee is doing its work. The subject matter has been committed to it for its consideration, and I believe that the Senators would do well to wait until that work is completed before they begin to criticize the committee, which has not yet made its report.

INTERROGATION

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the temporary Majority Leader, Senator Berger.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Potter, Mr. Berger, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BERGER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. LANE. Senator Berger, you said that the committee chairmen were awaiting the proper quality of bills. Will you please tell me just what you mean by that? What are proper quality bills the committee chairmen might consider?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I believe that is a matter that the committee chairmen, themselves, are to decide.

Mr. LANE. I see; then you were speaking for the committee chairmen. Is that correct?

Mr. BERGER. I think I can speak for them in that respect, yes, Senator.

Mr. LANE. I thank the gentleman from Potter, Senator Berger.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS

COMMEMORATING FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF HERSHEY, PENNSYLVANIA

Mr. TAYOR offered the following concurrent resolution which was twice read as follows:

In the Senate, March 16, 1953.

Milton Snavely Hershey, a Pennsylvania born farm boy, in the year 1903, at the age of forty-six, after a successful career in the caramel business in Lancaster, returned to Derry Township, Dauphin County, the home of his birth, and began preparations for the building of a chocolate factory and the founding of a town for the personnel to be employed there.

In the fifty years since that time the town, now called "Hershey", and known locally as "The Chocolate Town," and the factory for the making of chocolate candy and chocolate syrups, has established a world-wide reputation, and in addition to the purely business aspects and accomplishments attributed to the genius of Mr. Hershey, the Hershey community has become a great cultural and sports center, known and appreciated by hundreds of thousands of people.

Mr. Hershey, during his lifetime, established and endowed one of the great charitable projects of America, "Milton Hershey School," a free school for orphan boys, with a present population of over eleven hundred boys who live in cottages and farm homes.

During this year of 1953, Hershey and the various enterprises connected with the Hershey interests, under the Management of P. A. Staples, President of Hershey Chocolate Corporation, and John B. Sollenberger, President of Hershey Estates, are celebrating a Fiftieth Anniversary.

In order to pay a deserved tribute to the life and character and success of the philanthropist, Milton Snavely Hershey, and to congratulate and pay a tribute to the loyalty and industry and success of the people who live and work in Hershey, and the vicinity thereof, it is hereby

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur) That in deserved recognition of the life and accomplishments of Milton Snavely Hershey, and in harmony with the celebration of the Fiftieth Anniversary Program in Hershey during this year of 1953, congratulations and best wishes for continued prosperity, success and happiness are hereby extended to the Management and Employees of the several Hershey enterprises, the Teachers and Pupils in Milton Hershey School, and the Citizens of Hershey and vicinity; and it is further

Resolved, That certified copies of this resolution be transmitted by the Secretary of the Senate to Mr. P. A. Staples and to Mr. John B. Sollenberger.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. President, I move the immediate adoption of this resolution.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. Before I ask for a vote on this motion, with reference to the adoption of the resolution, I can, perhaps for the third time since I have been the Presiding Officer of this body, feel the pinch of my incapacity to vote. So, I will just give a little lip service to the resolution by saying that I wish to concur in everything that is contained therein.

With the permission of the distinguished Senator from Dauphin, I would like to point out that the Trustees of the Hershey Estates and the Directors of the Corporation down at Hershey have always given a splendid account of themselves in bringing to fruition that wonderful institution known as Hershey in the Fair Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

I would just like to go a little bit further and say that the thing after all which imbued Milton Hershey to establish that wonderful community down there was to do something along the line that the Majority Floor Leader was talking about here two or three weeks ago, when he talked about giving love and affection to orphans and homeless children.

So, for whatever it is worth, I vote "aye" in favor of the resolution.

On the question, "

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk present same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

REQUESTING THAT BUST OF DR. SAMUEL. G. DIXON BE PUBLICLY ENSHRINED IN ROTUNDA OF CAPITOL

Mr. BERGER offered the following concurrent resolution which was twice read and referred to the Committee on Rules:

In the Senate, March 16, 1953.

It is appropriate that the bust of Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, the Commonwealth's first Commissioner of Health, be publicly enshrined. Dr. Dixon was appointed in the year, one thousand nine hundred five, by Governor Samuel Pennypacker, to establish a public health program for Pennsylvania.

The work of this lawyer-physician is the basis for our present day health program. He championed the idea of direct aid to rural areas, establishing a system of county health protection under the guidance of the State Health Department. He organized the Bureau of Vital Statistics, providing thereby the basic plan for the Federal Vital Statistics Registration services. His broad vision enabled him to establish the State Tuberculosis Hospitals at Mount Alto and Cresson. His acute sense of responsibility for his fellow men, coupled with his vast knowledge of the value of the use of antitoxins in combating diphtheria, enabled him to materially aid in greatly reducing the mortality rate of this disease; now therefore be it Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That the bust of Dr. Samuel G. Dixon be accepted by the Commonwealth, and that the bust be publicly enshrined in the rotunda of the main capitol building.

TIME OF NEXT MEETING

Mr. WATKINS offered the following resolution, which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, March 16, 1953.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur) That when the Senate adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday, March 23, 1953, at four o'clock p. m., E.S.T.; and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday, March 23, 1953, at four-thirty o'clock p. m., E.S.T.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

CONSIDERATION OF EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS

Mr. WATSON asked and obtained unanimous consent for immediate consideration of the nominations reported at today's Session.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

A motion was made by Mr. WATSON and Mr. BERGER, That the Senate do now resolve itself into Executive Session, for the purpose of acting upon the nominations reported at today's session.

Which was agreed to.

The nominations were read as follows:

MEMBERS OF COUNTY BOARDS OF ASSISTANCE

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg January 26, 1953.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

In conformity with law, I have the honor hereby to nominate for the advice and consent of the Senate the following persons for appointment as Members of County Boards of Assistance:

ALLEGHENY COUNTY

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. AUKER, GEORGE E. JONES and ERB.
(Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 33.

In the House of Representatives, March 10, 1953.

The importation of residual fuel oil into the United States and more particularly into the eastern seaboard of the United States has assumed such proportions as to be a matter of deep and lasting concern to a large economic segment of the people of the United States, and more particularly and specifically to the people of the central Pennsylvania area, since the approximate importation of residual fuel oil in 1952, reached an amount of approximately 128,000,000 barrels, or the equivalent of 31,000,000 tons of coal.

The net production of soft coal in the central Pennsylvania area, known as the central Pennsylvania bituminous coal fields has declined in an average annual amount of 16,120,115 tons of coal between the years of 1942 and 1952, inclusive, the cause of said decrease being mainly a direct result of the importation of residual fuel oil into the eastern seaboard of the United States, which has always been and still is the main market for the central Pennsylvania bituminous coal field.

Practically all of the bituminous coal is transported from the central Pennsylvania area to the eastern seaboard over the railroad system or systems of Pennsylvania.

The loss of 16,000,000 tons of coal in production means a subsequent loss in tonnage transportation of coal over these railroads of approximately 2,900 trains a year, resulting in loss of employment, namely the train crews and other operating employees, such as signalmen, yardmasters, yard crews, and clerical help, all employees necessary for maintenance of rolling stock and road bed and the employees and labor necessary for repairs and replacement and new construction of rolling stock. This has resulted in loss of employment to thousands of railroad employees in the central Pennsylvania area, especially in Blair County and Altoona, Pennsylvania, the heart and site of the greatest railroad shops in the world, and has in many other instances directly and indirectly seriously affected many small business enterprises, and has greatly adversely affected all business in that area.

Residual oil tariffs as presently in force under the United States Government, as well as national and international trade agreements and national policies concerning the same afford entirely inadequate protection, and, as a matter of fact, are adverse to the productivity of the central Pennsylvania bituminous coal area and the Pennsylvania railroad or railroads' transportation of coal and to all railroad employees, as well as coal employees and all other persons directly or indirectly affected thereby; therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby memorializes the Congress of the United States to provide for an adequate limitation as to the quantity of foreign residual oil to be hereafter imported into the United States, and to provide for an adequate tariff necessary to create an equitable competition with the bituminous coal industry and the foreign residual fuel oil, in order to avoid further great loss of employment in the central Pennsylvania bituminous area, not only from the coal production standpoint, but also from the standpoint of all railroad employees affected thereby, small business enterprises and to all other businesses and business employees in the Altoona and Blair County area, and to avoid the impairment of industry that is very vital to the defense of these United States and in all otherwise contrary to the best interest of the United States, and of Pennsylvania, the central Pennsylvania bituminous area and of Altoona and Blair County; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the Presiding Officers of each House of the Congress of the United States, to each Senator from Pennsylvania, and to each of the Representatives from Pennsylvania in the Congress of the United States.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. GLEASON. RESOLUTION No. 34.

In the House of Representatives, March 10, 1953.

Whereas, Norman E. Annich, a Captain in the Pennsylvania State Police, has been assigned, as Commanding Officer, during the past several years, to a nine-County area in Northern-Central Pennsylvania, with headquarters in Montoursville, Lycoming County, Pennsylvania, from which command he has been recently transferred by order of the Commissioner, Pennsylvania State Police.

Whereas, The transfer of Captain Annich has caused considerable differences of opinion among the citizens of this area and considerable space in Williamsport and Lycoming County newspapers has been devoted to speculation as to whether such transfer was justified, and whether or not the transfer was due to reasons other than those usually the policy in these matters.

Whereas, An elected representative of the Citizens of Lycoming County to the House of Representatives has, on behalf of the people he serves, and on the basis of numerous complaints against Captain Annich's actions in the performance or non-performance of his sworn duties, protested to the Commissioner of the Pennsylvania State Police, who, apparently acting in accordance with the usual policy of the State Police in these matters, saw fit to transfer Captain Annich to more suitable duties.

Whereas, The newspaper comment, both in news columns and editorial space, has continued to make this transfer a matter of public notoriety and confusion. In addition, a method of causing increased speculation among the public has been devised in the form of a petition, which has been circulated among the citizenry, requesting that Norman E. Annich be immediately returned to his former post "without prejudice."

Whereas, the good name of the Pennsylvania State Police is in jeopardy because of this controversy, and, the decision of the Commissioner of State Police to effect this transfer is being publicly questioned as to whether or not "political pressure" was exerted, or if the transfer was actually made in the best interests of the State Police.

Whereas, In justice to the public to the Pennsylvania State Police and to Captain Annich, this body must determine the facts of the case; therefore be it

Resolved That a committee is hereby established to be composed of twelve (12) members of the House of Representatives to be appointed by the Speaker from among members of the majority and minority parties and to make a full and complete investigation of the transfer of Captain Annich and to report its findings to the House of Representatives; and be it further

Resolved That the committee created hereby shall have the power to meet, hold hearings, examine witnesses and issue subpoenas under the hand and seal of its chairman requesting or commanding any proper person to appear before it and to answer such questions touching matters with respect to such inquiry for and on behalf of the House of Representatives and to procure such books, papers, records and documents as the committee may deem necessary. All original notes and statements taken during any investigation of Captain Annich by his superior officers shall be subpoenaed in their entirety. Such subpoenas may be served upon any proper person and shall have the force and effect of subpoenas issued out of the courts of this Commonwealth. Each member of the committee shall have the power to administer oaths and affirmations to witnesses appearing before it; and be it further

Resolved That the committee shall hold closed hearing at which it may call, subpoena and examine any commissioned officer, non-commissioned officer or private who served under the command of Captain Annich during his period of service at Montoursville Barracks, including those transferred or requesting transfer from troop "D" State Police during that period, and that any State Policeman so testifying be guaranteed that no reprisals be taken against him as a result of his testimony, and if such testimony be thereafter referred to, it shall be assigned a number so that the identity of the officer will be known only to the committee; and be it further

Resolved That the Member of the House of Representatives representing Lycoming County, and Captain Annich be permitted to present names and addresses of other witnesses; and be it further

Resolved That all hearings except the closed hearings at which State Police personnel testify be open to the press.

Resolved further, that the Committee report its findings to His Excellency the Governor for appropriate action.

NAYS—0

NOT VOTING—0

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order, .

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 120, entitled:

An Act to reenact and amend the Title and Section 1 of the act, approved the twenty-eighth day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 477), entitled, as amended "An act providing for the payment of the salary, medical and hospital expenses of policemen, firemen and park guards by counties, cities, boroughs, towns and townships who are injured in the performance of their duty; and providing that absence during such injury shall not reduce any usual sick leave period," by extending its provisions to cover some cases of diseases of the heart or tuberculosis or the respiratory system; and providing for payment in the case of total permanent disability, and for employment at other duties in the case of continuing partial disability.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the Clerk for information.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 3, line 17, by striking out the words "is total and."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 3, line 18, by inserting after the word "of" where it appears the second time in said line, the following "at least."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 3, lines 18 and 19, by striking out the words "If the total disability" in line 18 and all of line 19.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 4, lines 1, 2 and 3, by striking out all of lines 1 and 2, and the words "and he shall be paid his full rate of salary" in line 3.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. WILBUR H. HAMILTON. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say that I have no objections to the amendments offered by the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Readinger.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, for the information of the Members these amendments remove from the bill as originally brought out on the floor of the House a provision which would require municipalities to pay park guards, firemen and policemen who are disabled while working and who remained partially disabled after three years. It removes the liability from the municipality of continuing to pay a person his full rate of salary indefinitely.

Those of you who are familiar with the Act of 1935 will recall that a policeman or fireman at that time who was in injured in the course of duty, would receive all his medical expenses, hospital expenses, no matter how long a period of time he might require them. In many cases he was paid his full salary for a long period of time.

However the Act of 1935 used the words "temporarily incapacitated" and I have been informed that the Philadelphia City Solicitor's office ruled that after one year an injured person is no longer temporarily incapacitated and therefore can receive no compensation.

The amendments as proposed in the original bill and by my amendments would allow such a person to receive his full salary for a period of at least three years, and of course if he continued to be disabled thereafter he might very possibly be covered by workmen's compensation for a period as long as five hundred weeks from the time of the original injury.

I think the way this bill was originally drawn went much too far. We forget sometimes that we have many small municipalities in this state having some firemen, some policemen, some park guards. But to require such a municipality to retain a man's services, even though he might be ninety percent disabled, after three years and to pay him his full salary, might wreak havoc with the budgets of such municipalities. I do not think that the firemen, park guards and policemen sincerely think that any municipality should be made to go to that length.

We have been improving our workmen's compensation laws over the years, and probably the best answer to this whole problem is an increase in the length of time during which an injured person may be compensated. But the way this bill was originally drawn is not the right way to do it.

We ask your support for these amendments.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the bill as amended lie over for printing.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 354, as follows:

An Act to further amend the act approved the seventeenth day of April one thousand eight hundred seventy-six (P. L. 29) entitled "An act relating to appeals in cases of summary convictions" by extending the time within which appeals may be taken

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 The act approved the seventeenth day of April one thousand eight hundred seventy-six (P. L. 29) entitled "An act relating to appeals in cases of summary convictions" as last amended by the act approved the first day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-five (P. L. 98) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 1 Be it enacted &c That in all cases of summary conviction in this Commonwealth before a magistrate or court not of record either party even though any fine imposed has already been paid may within [five] ten days after such conviction appeal to the court of quarter sessions of the county in which such magistrate shall reside or court not of record shall be held upon allowance of the said court of quarter sessions or any judge thereof upon cause shown and either party may also appeal from the judgment of a magistrate or a court not of record in a suit for a penalty to the court of common pleas of the county in which said judgment shall be rendered upon allowance of said court or any judge thereof upon cause shown Provided That pending the taking of an appeal by either party or the allowance or refusal thereof by the court or judge the fine or penalty and costs imposed by the magistrate or court not of record need not be paid if bail is entered with one or more sufficient sureties in double the amount of such fine or penalty and costs for the payment thereof on the refusal of such appeal or if allowed on the final disposal of such appeal If the defendant pays the fine or penalty and costs imposed and wishes to take an appeal under the provisions of this section he shall give bail in double the probable amount of costs that may accrue in the final disposition of the appeal

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

FORMER MEMBER WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair is also happy to welcome to the House a former Member, the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Dalrymple.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. FILO asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, it has been brought to our attention before in this House about various Departments lobbying for bills. My statement is not concerned with lobbying for bills, but in respect to telling various people, probably constituents, regarding the status of certain bills.

Recently I introduced a bill, just the same as any Member of this House, with the full understanding that it would be given proper consideration and voted on by the Members of this House.

I have learned that a certain Department that was concerned with this bill has made the statement to my constituents back home that the bill has no chance whatsoever of passing on the floor of the House. I think that this sort of business should be stopped immediately, because every one of you, just as I said, puts bills in this House for your constituents back home and for the good of all the people of Pennsylvania.

I think the Department has made an error in making such a statement, and I do want to so state.

The Chaplain, Dean JOSEPH HARTE, Pastor of St. Paul's Cathedral, Erie, offered the following prayer:

O Lord, who art always more able to do than we are to ask or expect, give us that faith that shall believe that what God wants us to do or not to do, God finds a way of letting us know how to do.

If we could but have that old-fashioned religion, that made great and strong the hopes of our fathers who built this fair State, and in so building left us a goodly heritage, we might, indeed, look up to the hearty faith of that great champion, Saint Patrick, whose day this is, and for the Governor of this State and all in authority, the Senate and the House, and for the courts of law, we bid Thy holy blessing this day and always, Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, before I went to bed last evening, I had the radio on and the last thing I heard was the talk about the atomic explosion at Las Vegas, Nevada. When I got up this morning, I turned on the radio and I heard an account of the explosion. That reminded me of an article I read in the Philadelphia Bulletin last Tuesday evening. I tried to get a copy of it but was not able to do so. However, if my memory serves me correctly, it had the title, "This Is Real Economy."

The news item went on to say that up in Massachusetts, the Governor asked the Head of the Civil Defense up there whether he wanted to witness the atomic bomb explosion at Las Vegas. The Head of Civil Defense there said he did not think it would do any good to make the trip, because he did not think he could see very much and that he thought he could get a better view of it when the movie was shown in the theaters. The Governor decided then, after he found out that the Head of Civil Defense did not want to go to Las Vegas, to ask him whether he would like to go to the movie to see the moving picture of it. The Head of Civil Defense said, "Yes." So, the State of Massachusetts allocated fifty cents to the Head of Civil Defense to go to the movies, and that is real economy.

Mr. President, the explosion took place this morning, and I hope that when the bomb exploded it also produced a legislative program for us here in Harrisburg because I notice that the Governor, the Majority Leader, the Majority Whip, the Minority Leader of the Senate and the Minority Leader of the House went to Las Vegas.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I wish to compliment the Chief Clerk and the printer for the printing of the Calendar today in the color of the "old sod."

Secondly, Mr. President, I know nothing about the case, I do not mean to be too critical of the Liquor Control Board and I do not represent the city of Erie, but word has just come to me that they have today suspended the license of the "Shamrock Inn," in Erie, Pennsylvania.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. YOSKO asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I desire to make a statement before I present this resolution.

Mr. President, according to the newspapers an effort will be made today or this week to discontinue the public hearings on the Chesterman Committee Report. I do not know the exact reason for the contemplated action. The opinion seems to be that the hearings thus far have been more or less what they call a flop, which, of course, I agree with to some extent. If the hearings have been a flop, they have been a flop because the committee has not been properly organized. I think the Members of the Senate should know what happened thus far, so far as the committee activities are concerned.

Mr. President, it seems to me that when the resolution was being drafted, calling for these public hearings, those who drafted the resolution more or less had in mind the idea of making these hearings a flop. In the first place, this was to be a bipartisan committee to conduct these hearings. The whole matter was to be bipartisan. Yet, when the resolution was drafted, I understand that the Minority was not consulted relative to the provisions of the resolution. If my memory serves me correctly, the resolution was presented on the morning that the entire group of the Senate went to Philadelphia to the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' dinner and because the group was going to Philadelphia, we had a Session at eight o'clock. The sentiment at the time was, "Let's have no debate; let's not waste any time because everybody must get the 8:55 train."

Mr. President, the resolution was presented, and it was adopted and it was incomplete. It was incomplete, Mr. President, in that it did not provide subpoena powers which should be provided in connection with any public hearings. It did not provide for an appropriation to take care of the expenses of those who might be called to the hearings to testify. It did not authorize the employment of competent personnel, such as accountants, because this is an accounting matter. It did not provide for proper notices to be sent to interested parties, such as the Chesterman Committee Members themselves, the department heads, the Economy League, the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce and others who might be interested in submitting testimony for or against the recommendations of the committee. The resolution did not establish a proper and orderly procedure for the conduct of the hearings. Neither did it provide for the recording of the testimony by a public stenographer, or by the recording system that is in use here in this chamber during the Session of the Legislature.

In any event, Mr. President, after the resolution was adopted by the House and the Senate, the committee appointments were announced and a meeting was called of that committee for last Monday morning at ten o'clock. I live in Bethlehem, about a hundred miles from here, and I had to get up at six-thirty in the morning to arrive here on time. Fortunately, I got here on time. We met down in the Senate Caucus Room and, lo and behold, before long we learned that some of the House Members of the Committee were not given notice of the ten o'clock meeting and, therefore, were not present.

As a result, Mr. President, we could not transact any business and the meeting, after a short period of time, adjourned until the following afternoon at one-thirty o'clock, with the actual hearings to begin at two-thirty. We met in the House Caucus Room at one-thirty. There was about a fifteen minute or more delay in getting the meeting started. We elected a chairman and a vice-chairman. We discussed some possible rules and regulations, many of which were not adopted because of the lack of time, and it was agreed that we would attend the first hearing on a more or less experimental basis. What an experiment it was.

Mr. President, those of you who were present know exactly what happened. It was a farce, as Senator Holland pointed out. It was nothing more than a merry-go-round. I would not say, in spite of that, that we did not accomplish something. I, at least, was satisfied that we could effect some savings from the testimony that was given, although it was not complete.

Mr. President, there was a great deal of talk as to why the Chesterman Committee Members were not present. There are some people in this world, you know, who will not come to a meeting or attend any affair unless they get an invitation. I am sorry to say that the Chesterman Committee was not invited to attend the hearing last Tuesday afternoon. As a matter of fact, no one was invited to attend that hearing.

Mr. President, after the hearing adjourned, the committee met again, and Senator Berger and I sent a telegram to Mr. Chesterman to come to the meeting the next day, either personally or through a representative. The hearing was called for nine o'clock in the morning and because a sufficient number of people who were interested were not present, the meeting was adjourned until the afternoon.

The afternoon rolled around, we started the hearing and still the Chesterman Committee was not present. Who was present at the meeting last Wednesday afternoon? Only the parties in interest were present, people who were getting money, patronage from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. They advocated that we spend more money for advertising purposes, to bring visitors into the State. That is as far as it went.

Mr. President, I understand that there is a whispering campaign going on over the Hill, from department heads, employees and all those affected, and they are saying,

"We have never had it so good in our lives; let's not disturb the situation as it is. Don't let the Chesterman Committee take anything away from us." I can see where the Republican Majority would probably be in sympathy with that sort of thing.

For instance, Mr. President, if the Department of Commerce were abolished, it would mean about 124 jobs and next year we are having a campaign. It would mean contributions from 124 people. It seems to me that is all the Majority Party is interested in, the patronage, the jobs. If all of the recommendations in the Chesterman Committee Report are followed, it might mean a couple thousand jobs and a couple thousand enemies, the loss of patronage and the loss of political contributions for next year's campaign.

I say to you, Mr. President, that these hearings should continue, but they should continue under a proper practice and procedure. They should be conducted orderly. The committee ought to organize, and if it does, these hearings will be a success.

For that purpose, Mr. President, I present the following resolution calling for amendment of the original resolution which was presented to set up the hearing committee in the first instance.

RESOLUTION REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

REQUESTING AMENDMENT TO SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, SERIAL No. 120

Mr. YOSKO offered the following resolution which was twice read as follows:

In the Senate, March 17, 1953.

Whereas, Senate Concurrent Resolution, Serial No. 120, introduced by Majority Leader, Rowland B. Mahaney, on February 24, 1953, authorizing the appointment of a Committee of 15 House and 15 Senate Members to conduct public hearings on the Chesterman State Government Survey Committee Report, was not sufficiently broad in its provisions for the successful conduct of said hearings in that

- (a) It did not provide subpoena powers
- (b) It did not provide for an appropriation
- (c) It did not authorize the employment of competent personnel to assist and advise in the conduct of the hearings
- (d) It did not provide for proper notice to be sent to interested parties
- (e) It did not establish a proper orderly procedure for the conduct of the hearings
- (f) It did not provide for the recording of testimony by a public stenographer and/or recording of the testimony

Therefore Be It Resolved, That said Resolution is hereby amended as follows:

(1) That the said committee of 30 shall have the power to issue subpoenas, under the hand and seal of its chairman, requesting and commanding any person or persons to appear before them and to answer such questions touching upon matters inquired into by the committee and to produce such books, papers, records and documents as the committee may deem necessary. Such subpoenas may be served upon any person and shall have the force and effect of subpoenas issued out of courts of this Commonwealth. Each member of said committee shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations to witnesses appearing before the committee. Any person who shall wilfully neglect or refuse to testify before said committee, or to produce any books, papers, records, or documents shall be subject to the penalties provided by the laws of the Commonwealth in such cases.

(2) That a sufficient sum be appropriated to compensate witnesses subpoenaed to attend such hearings and for other expenses which the committee may deem necessary and proper.

(3) Authorize the committee to appoint such accountants and other personnel as may be deemed necessary to assist the committee to successfully conduct said hearings.

(4) That State Officials and/or employees involved shall be given at least one week's notice of the hearing at which they are to appear, and said notice is to indicate the books and records that are to be produced at the hearing.

(5) That a bipartisan subcommittee from the 30-man committee, composed of 5 members, be appointed to draft rules of practice and procedure for the conduct of said hearings.

(6) That all testimony adduced at said hearings shall be recorded by a public stenographer or upon the recording system used during the regular sessions of the General Assembly.

REQUEST THAT RULE 39 BE SUSPENDED

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be dispensed with and the Senate proceed to the consideration of the foregoing resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, before discussing the subject matter of this resolution, it would appear to me that the amendment of this Concurrent Resolution should ask for the concurrence of the House, which it fails to do. However, before objecting to the immediate consideration of the resolution, Mr. President, I would like to point out that many public hearings upon bills and reports have been held by the various legislative bodies, the Senate, the House and combined hearings, and it has never been the custom nor procedure to provide the committees with subpoena powers in order to effectuate the matters which are under consideration by the hearing committees.

Mr. President, I notice also that the resolution requests a sum to be appropriated to compensate witnesses subpoenaed to attend such hearings, and for other expenses which the committee may deem necessary and proper. I question very much, Mr. President, whether that would be a proper inclusion in the hearing committee's resolution, under the procedure which has been adopted on previous hearings on matters of this kind.

Now, Mr. President, as far as this committee being bipartisan, I am sure that anybody who has attended the hearings up to this point can be left in very little doubt that there is bipartisan participation in the proceedings. I think that is one of the most difficult things that the committee has had to contend with in the presentation of the testimony which has been adduced at these hearings.

Furthermore, Mr. President, in so far as the kind of information which the committee has been receiving, it seems to me that the proponents of any of these measures have an equal opportunity to come before us and discuss them, as well as the opponents. I am sure that this afternoon, when we have the hearing on the recommendations on the subject of education, put out by the Government Survey Committee, we will have some pros and some cons.

Mr. President, I do not wish to prolong this situation at all. We are going to have a hearing this afternoon at two-thirty, and I am sure that at that time we will again find bipartisan participation in the proceedings.

Mr. President, at this time I object to the immediate consideration of the resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair refers the resolution to the Committee on Rules.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. YOSKO asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, the general attitude of Senator Berger, who is Co-Chairman of the Committee, and I am not making an attack on Senator Berger, but his general attitude in finding fault with the resolution is indicative of his attitude toward the success of these hearings. Now if, for any reason, that resolution is not in proper form or if it should be amended, it is only seven minutes of twelve. We have a lot of time. All we must do is call a recess and get it in the shape it should be, and then let us present it so that this Committee, when it functions, can function effectively, and with an established practice and procedure; and in an orderly fashion.

Mr. President, when I talked about bipartisan, I talked about bipartisan from beginning to end, to only during the conduct of the hearings but in setting up the machinery for the conduct of the hearings. I am sure that if such a consideration were given to the Minority, the original resolution that was presented would have certainly been in better shape.

Mr. President, I think it is an insult, myself, to the Chesterman Committee to attempt to scrutinize its report without even so much as an invitation to it to come here.

I will go further than that, Mr. President. I understand that Mr. Chesterman said that no good purpose would be served by his attendance or the attendance of any of his committee members at these hearings. I do not agree with him. I think he should be subpoenaed to come here with his group if he does not come voluntarily. He assumed a task on behalf of the Commonwealth.

I personally think that force of men who worked on this project did an excellent job. They have spent approximately $55,000 up to this point. Are we going to say, "Now that $55,000 is gone and we will just forget about all of the work that was done?" I do not think we should. All of the Members of the Legislature, and the general public, I think would like to hear from the Chesterman Committee. If the Chesterman Committee does not want to come here voluntarily, I think it should be subpoenaed to come here.

Mr. President, Senator Berger said we were going to go into the Department of Education this afternoon. I would like anyone in this chamber to raise his hand who will admit that he knows what I think he should know about the procedure and the practice in the Department of Education. If you look at the Task Force Report of the Chesterman Committee, this is what you will find (indicating). If you take a look at the chart of the organization of the Department of Education, you will admit to yourself that it is a complicated department, and it requires thorough study and it requires the assistance of experts to help this committee in its task to scrutinize the recommendations outlined in this report.

Mr. President, the least that we should have before we go into the hearing is the Task Force present here, who compiled this report, to tell us exactly how they went about it and interpret some of the statements that are in the report. We should call the people from the Department of Public Instruction over here this afternoon. Not having a thorough knowledge of the operations of the department, we should call them over, because to attempt to go into a public hearing without that knowledge is mere folly so far as I am concerned.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. BERGER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I do not have any wish to prolong the discussion on this subject, but I would like to point out once more that we have publicly stated and reiterated that far from disregarding the recommendations of the Government Survey Report, it is the intention to have bills drawn and presented to the Senate or the House, and have those bills considered in debate. I am sure we will hear a great deal about the Department of Education and other recommendations in the bills when those bills are debated on the floor.

BILL INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. SILVERT read in place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 301, entitled:

An Act to further amend Section 502 of the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 905), entitled "An act for the protection of the public safety; regulating the use of highways, and the operation of vehicles, tractors, street cars, trackless trolley omnibuses, bicycles, pedestrians, and the riding of animals upon the highways of this Commonwealth; providing for the titling, including liens, encumbrances, and legal claims; registration of certain vehicles and licensing the operators thereof, upon payment of prescribed fees; prescribing and limiting the powers of local authorities to deal with the subject matter of this act; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Department of Revenue, the Department of Highways, peace officers, mayors, burgesses, magistrates, aldermen, justices of the peace, the courts and the clerks thereof, owners of vehicles, and garage keepers; providing that records are admissible as evidence; imposing upon owners, counties, cities, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships, within the Commonwealth, liability for damages caused by the negligent operation of their motor vehicles; imposing penalties; imposing certain costs upon counties; providing for the disposition of fines, forfeitures, fees, and miscellaneous receipts; making an appropriation and providing for refunds," by further limiting the use of manufacturer's, jobber's and dealer's registration plates.

Which was committed to the Committee on Highways

INTERROGATION

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Potter, Senator Berger.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Potter, Mr. Berger, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BERGER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HOLLAND. Senator Berger, are the Chesterman Committee Reports available as yet to the interested parties who wish to attend these meetings?

Mr. BERGER. I believe, Senator Holland, that all of the Members, at least, have a copy of the Chesterman Report. While I am not informed on the publication of additional copies, I understand that there are copies available or at least being prepared. I, frankly, cannot give you a satisfactory answer on that.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. HOLLAND asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I was informed this morning that even the Board of Education in Pittsburgh has been unable to get a copy of the Chesterman Report. They have not had an opportunity of studying the Task Force Report on Education.

I was also informed last Saturday by the president of the smaller manufacturers, connected with the Chamber of Commerce in Pittsburgh, that he has written to the Senate and to the House and has been unable to get a copy of the Chesterman Report. He asked me how anyone can appear at these meetings unless they have an opportunity to study the report that is under discussion.

Mr. President, it looks to me as though by holding these reports we are doing a very fine job of imposing an iron curtain, the same as the communists did in keeping information behind the iron curtain. Interested parties are not being given the opportunity of making a study on what the report contains, and cannot very well appear and give an intelligent presentation before the committee.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. HALUSKA asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, for the last couple of days or couple of weeks, I might say, we have heard so much concerning this Chesterman Report. It appears to me that some of my colleagues are unduly alarmed about the outcome of this report. Thus far I have served on the committee and I expect to serve throughout this week, to take part in the interrogations and to listen to what is taking place.

I, for one, can find no fault with the committee in its actions. I find no fault with the gentleman from Potter, Senator Berger, when he tells us that it is the intention of the committee to follow through after the hearings and present bills, giving all of us the opportunity to discuss them on the floor. I must commend the committee because it has been fair. Each and everyone of us has had the privilege to interrogate and to stand interrogations. The chairman has conducted the hearings fairly thus far. What may happen next week, I do not know.

Mr. President, we have been hearing so much about the discontinuance of the hearings. That day has not arrived. If the job is not completed, then it is our duty to rise in place and voice our opinions. However, I see no reason why any man should be condemned for his actions on this committee, in any manner whatsoever, up until the present time.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. WALKER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I think in all fairness I should say to my distinguished colleague from Allegheny County, Senator Holland, that I was of the opinion, and have been advised, that the Department of Education in the city of Pittsburgh has received a copy of this and it was delivered to them by a Representative from the House, who is a resident of the city of Pittsburgh and who represents some of the city boards. I was informed that over a week ago they had been given a copy by this Member of the House, and, therefore, they did have it.

STATEMENT OF PRESIDING OFFICER

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair, at this time, would like to call to the attention of the Members the very lovely flowers which all of us have. I understand that they are gift from the Speaker of the House, who hopes that we will enjoy the spirit of the day with his compliments.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. HOLLAND asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, in reply to my very good friend, Senator Walker, from Allegheny County, I was told as late as this morning that the members of the Board of Education had not had an opportunity to study either the Report or the Task Force Report made by the Chesterman Committee Task Forces. That is the important report which they should have an opportunity to study.

Mr. President, as far as the Chesterman Report is concerned, as late as last Friday I was called by two members of the Board of Education, who asked me if it was possible to get a copy of the Chesterman Committee Report for their perusal. I told them I could not get it for them unless I gave them my own report, and I needed that at the hearings. That is the extent of my information concerning the Chesterman Committee Reports.

Mr. WATSON asked and obtained unanimous consent for immediate consideration of the nominations reported at today's Session.
